A. F. L. Ousts Lewis, Million Union Rebels For Industrial Drive

Revolt Chief Is Defiant, Says Suspended Units Will Not Obey.

Terms Decision 'Act of Stupidity'

Ballot Demanding C.I.O. Dissolution Has One Dissenting Vote.

By Felix Bruner.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor late yesterday ordered one-third of its membership—1,000,000 workers—thrown out of the organization.

The council ordered that unless ten unions comprising the committee for industrial organization, headed by John L. Lewis, cease by September 5 their activities in competition with the federation they will be automatically suspended.

Lewis, in a defiant statement, made it clear that his organization had no intention of obeying the order. He called the suspension "an act of incredible and crass stupidity, an act dictated by personal selfishness and frantic fear."

Long Fight.

The suspension order, splitting into two competing organizations the 50-year-old federation, followed weeks of discussion and consideration. The final vote was 13 for suspension and 1 against. The opposing vote was cast by David Dubinsky, president of the Ladies Garment Workers Union, which was one of the 10 thrown out. William Green, president of the federation, whose union, the United Mine Workers, also was suspended, did not vote.

The official announcement of the suspension order said:

"It was the opinion of the executive council that it could not condone the setting up of a rival organization within the officially recognized family of organized labor or tolerate and countenance it without sacrificing its self-respect or making an unconditional surrender to a minority group composed of members who are in open rebellion to democratic procedure and majority rule, as exemplified at the latest convention of the American Federation of Labor."

"Lack of Consideration."

Continuing his comment upon the order, Lewis said:

"It indicates a total absence of consideration for the well-being of the Nation's workers and the requirements of an effective movement of labor. The executive council would not trust the judgment of a convention of the federation which meets in November. It hastened to prejudice the action of the convention by stripping the defendant unions of their voting privilege.

"The constitution of the federation contains no warrant for the exercise of such arbitrary power. It amounts to an appalling blunder which Mr. Green and his confederates may continuously rue.

"We will not disband the Committee for Industrial Organization. The decision of the executive council will not change the policy of the C. I. O. nor will it have any effect upon the organizing activities of the committee. The committee has made its position clear.

"Its plans to aid the workers in steel and other industries will continue unabated. The shame of the act of dismemberment will lie on

'Polar Front' Aids In Keeping D. C. 'Reasonably' Cool

What Weather Bureau experts call a "polar front"—an area of cool air moving out of the far North—kept Washington out of the "sweltter belt" yesterday.

During the day temperatures rose no higher than the "relatively" comfortable reading of 87 at 3:30 p. m. The rise began at the day's low of 72 at 5 a. m.

Showers will fall today, the forecaster predicted last night. They probably will continue until early tomorrow, he added. There will be little change in temperature.

Drought Is Recorded as Worst In 100 Years; Wallace Hopeful

Secretary Looks for Some Aid From Rains; Railroads Approve Freight Rate Slash on Food Sent Into Five States.

By Robert C. Albright.

The relentless heat wave that has withered Western grain crops, thinned out cattle herds and forced thousands of farmers on relief, went down in history yesterday as "the great drought of 1936," breaking all previous Weather Bureau records dating back over 100 years.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who still looked for some aid from scattered rains, was slow to accept fully the Weather Bureau verdict. Meteorologically, he said, bureau experts may be correct, but the economic effects of the blight may not be so severe as the 1934 drought.

Emergency agencies, meanwhile, redoubled efforts to furnish relief. The Resettlement Administration, assuming an increasingly dominant position in the farm-aid picture, announced that 32,191 farmers had been given assistance, and facilities are available for 125,000 more families.

Although a co-ordinated plan of drought relief action by the various agencies is scheduled to be worked out, claims of the Works Progress Administration yesterday sharply conflicted with the Resettlement Administration statement.

Following a conference between Deputy Administrator Aubrey Williams and Howard C. Hunter, in charge of drought operations, when employment quotas in the Great Plains area were raised from 89,000 to 93,500, WPA authorized the following statement:

"Mr. Hunter reported more than 40,000 farmers now at work, and added that practically all relief so far extended to drought-stricken farmers had been through the Works Progress Administration and that the Works Progress Administration now is prepared to handle the entire drought relief program."

Railroads, Wallace announced, have approved freight-rate reductions on hay and forage shipped into five drought States. The Interstate Commerce Commission, which already has approved lower rates on cattle shipped out of the drought belt, still must act on the feed-rate cuts.

In a statement released by the Weather Bureau, Joseph B. Kincer labeled the drought the "worst in the climatological history of the country." April and July of the 1936 growing season have left a large part of the agricultural United States with a handicap that the remaining two months cannot possibly overcome, he said.

In a later interview with The

Landon's Drive For Vote in East To Start Aug. 22

G. O. P. Nominee to Speak in Pennsylvania and New York State.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 5.—Gov. Alf M. Landon today chose August 22, 24 and 26 for the three addresses which will open his Eastern Presidential campaign in Pennsylvania and New York.

His office announced that the Republican candidate would speak at his birthplace, West Middlesex, Pa., at 3 p. m. on Saturday, August 22. On Monday evening, August 24, he will speak at Chautauqua, N. Y., and on Wednesday evening, August 26, at Buffalo.

Further details of the itinerary and the number of stops to be made were not immediately available at the office of the Republican nominee. Aids predicted that before making the first Eastern drive, Landon would join his family at Estes Park, Colo., for at least a week, divided between rest, recreation and work on speeches.

There also was an expectation among some Republican advisers that the West Middlesex talk would deal with social security, although the candidate has declined to commit himself definitely. After a recent conference with Landon on his Buffalo plans, William J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general, told reporters that "employment and jobs" would prove of greatest interest to the electorate in that area.

Landon discussed Michigan's political situation with Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald and Howard C. Lawrence, Republican State central committee chairman; talked over the Iowa outlook with Senator L. J. Dickinson, Berry Halden, Republican candidate to succeed the late Senator Louis Murphy, and George Wilson, Republican candidate for governor, and conferred on the Kansas drought situation with State aids.

Noting that Frank Murphy, former Governor General of the Philippines, was seeking the Democratic

Credit Outlook 'Good,' Eccles Tells Roosevelt

Federal Reserve Head Says Rise in Bank Loans Is Recovery Sign.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, Aug. 5.—Improvement in credit conditions, dovetailing with general economic recovery, was reported to President Roosevelt today by Marriner Eccles, Federal Reserve Board governor.

In the seclusion of Mr. Roosevelt's summer home, Eccles said he discussed the general credit situation with the President.

Afterward, in one of his rare interviews, he said: "We discussed the general credit situation. I consider it good.

"There is a gradual increase in bank loans and investments—that is, exclusive of the purchase of governments, of course. For a long time this was decreasing. That is always a favorable trend in recovery—an indication of recovery."

No Increase in Rates.

Regarding a 50 per cent increase in reserves ordered to go into effect August 15 for all banks in the Federal Reserve system, Eccles said there was no reason why this change would increase interest rates and that it should have no unfavorable effect either on the long or short-term credit situation.

Eccles was the last of three Roosevelt callers. He stayed for lunch with the President. Senator Dieterich (Democrat), Illinois, had preceded him to the Roosevelt estate and told the President Illinois was "safe" for the Democratic Party in November.

Charles W. Taussig had brought what he said was the first bottle of Government rum from the Virgin Islands and a report on operations of the National Youth Administration. He is a member of the advisory council to the Islands government and chairman of the ad-

N. Y. Dog Gets Another Chance, But District Spaniel Gets Death

Brockport, N. Y., Aug 5 (AP).—A magistrate who owns a dog himself today spared the life of Idaho, a tawny mongrel accused of drowning a boy, but "sentenced" the animal to 26 months' confinement.

Justice of the Peace Homer D. Benedict's decision brought 300 courtroom spectators to their feet cheering. However, the court in the next breath ordered Brockport police to kill Idaho on sight if he is found at large in the village during the period of confinement.

"After considering all the evidence in the case regarding Idaho's actions in the water which, in my opinion are dangerous, I have decided to order the dog returned to his owner, Victor Fortune, to keep in confinement until October 1, 1938," the court said.

Sitting in a front seat was the drowned boy's father, William Breeze, a WPA employe. The mother, who had insisted on the death penalty for Idaho, was not present.

Her 14-year-old son, Maxwell, sank while swimming in the Barge Canal July 4, while the dog pawed his shoulders.

Mrs. Grace Riley, an invalid who lives at 477 F street southwest, yesterday applied for a warrant against Oscar E. Allen, Fourth Precinct policeman who shot Mrs. Riley's dog, Tippy, on Sunday.

Agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals filed a joint application for the warrant against Allen, charging him with cruelty to animals.

Mrs. Riley, in court yesterday to answer charges of allowing an unmuzzled dog to run in the streets, was advised by Judge Robert E. Mattingly to bring suit against Allen.

Mrs. Riley, sobbing on the witness stand, charged Allen deliberately shot the dog while her daughter, Betty, 18, pleaded with him not to fire.

Allen said he was investigating a car in the alley when the dog jumped over a fence and attacked him. He was not bitten, however, he said.

'Black Beauty' Is an Also Ran

Books That Thrilled Parents Are 'Cold' to Children of Today

Boys Turn From 'Treasure Island' to Verse While Girls Forsake 'Little Colonel' Type for 'Tom Sawyer,' Library Adviser Asserts.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

Children's reading tastes aren't what they used to be. Boys who once would have considered anything less than "Treasure Island" sissy fare are now perusing Vachel Lindsay's verse and other poetry while the girls who once doted on the sticky-sweet "Little Colonel" series are now turning to "Tom Sawyer" and Huckleberry Finn."

"It always was the parents or other relatives who drew the dividing line between boys' and girls' books," said Dorothy Gaffney yesterday as she traced the change in reading habits of the younger generation within the last 20 years.

Miss Gaffney is adviser to adults in children's literature for the Washington public library.

The youngsters, if left to themselves and to the trained librarians, she said, will read pretty much the same books no matter whether they are girls or boys. But tales which thrilled their parents often leave them cold today.

There's "Black Beauty," for instance. According to Miss Gaffney, it is now rated as "a little weak" and boys and girls never ask for it unless they've been urged to by their fathers or mothers.

And then there's "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Once extremely popular, it is seldom called for today.

"I don't believe boys and girls ever did care much for that saccharine type of story," said Miss Gaffney. "I think it was probably their mothers who made Fauntleroy a popular book. They liked to read it to their children, especially to their sons."

Series, which used to go on and on, through 12 or 14 volumes, also are passe among the younger readers, which is a mighty good thing in the opinion of librarians.

"They were almost always poorly written and the same plot was repeated in volume after volume," explained Louise P. Latimer, director

Liberty League Will Hold Aloof In Campaigns

Group Declines to Indorse Either Candidate, or Contribute Funds.

The American Liberty League, bitter foe of the New Deal, through its executive committee announced last night that it will indorse no party or candidate in the current Presidential campaign and will contribute to no campaign fund.

The announcement was issued as preparations were going forward for the meeting of anti-Roosevelt Democrats at Detroit tomorrow, a meeting which Alfred E. Smith, a member of the league committee, announced yesterday he would be unable to attend. However, former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, another member of the committee, will participate in the Detroit sessions.

Saying that its statement was prompted by "continued newspaper surmise" concerning its position, the league pointed to a statement of principles adopted in September, 1934, and said:

"The league is neither an adjunct nor an ally of the Republican Party. It is not an adjunct of the Democratic Party, even though many of its principles harmonize with the excellent platform adopted by that party in 1932 and proclaimed as 'a covenant with the people to be faithfully kept.' Certainly the league is not an adjunct of the New Deal Party which for the moment has usurped control of the

Jarrett Will Sue U.S. Olympic Unit In Wife's Ouster

Berlin, Aug. 5 (AP).—Art Jarrett announced late tonight his intention of taking legal action against the American Olympic Committee when he returns to New York with his wife, Eleanor Holm Jarrett, who was dismissed from the Olympic team on its arrival in Germany.

After being refused a conference by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Committee, Jarrett in a statement asserted he would take "the proper steps, first to obtain the facts about the case, which the American Olympic Committee apparently tried to conceal, and secondly to get redress for damages to my wife's reputation."

Owens Wins 3d Crown as Mates Continue Rout

Negro Breaks World 200 Mark; U. S. Shatters 3 Olympic Records.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Incomparable Jesse Owens, whose blazing bursts of speed and jumping ability have thrilled nearly half a million spectators on four successive days, completed his classic Olympic triple title conquest in record-smashing style in the rain today.

Approximately 75,000 spectators, the smallest crowd yet occupying the huge stadium any afternoon, made up in cheers what it lacked in numbers as the dynamic American Negro added the 200-meter title to his previous triumphs in the 100-meter sprint and the broad jump.

Pursued by his dusky Pasadena, Calif., teammate, Matthew (Mack) Robinson, who finished second, the Ohio State all-around star ended an unbeaten campaign by lowering the world as well as the Olympic mark around one turn to 20.7 seconds.

Owens, in contributing the fifth American Negro triumph in these games, featured another big day in which the United States team soared well over the 100 mark in the team point standing, leaving all rivals far behind.

In addition to the 200-meter final, Americans finished one-two in the discus throw with big Ken Car-

Worker Plunges 5 Stories; Suffers Dislocated Finger

John Juliana, 24-year-old rodman employed on an apartment hotel construction job at Connecticut avenue and California street, fell five stories late yesterday but escaped with a dislocated finger and minor abrasions, according to hospital authorities.

The workman apparently lost his balance while handling reinforcing steel on the top floor of the uncompleted structure, which will be eight stories when finished. He did not lose consciousness.

Rushed to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance, his condition was pronounced fairly good after an examination which disclosed no broken bones

Loyalists Turned Back After Surprise Attack On Revolters in Hills

France Seeks Arms Embargo; 7 Nations in Neutrality Parley

14 Paris Planes Reported Ready for Delivery to Spanish Buyer; Italy Regarded as Only Stumbling Block to Accord.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 5.—France tonight sought to clamp an arms embargo on Spain as the first step toward preventing the civil war from becoming an international conflict.

Frenchmen meantime streamed across the border at Perpignan to volunteer in the fight on the side of the Spanish radical government.

That was regarded as within the meaning of neutrality as long as the men had their passports in order.

At Toulouse airport were 14 pursuit planes reported lined up and ready to take off for Spain for delivery to a Spanish buyer. They were held motionless while France pressed the nonaggression agreement.

French newspapers hostile to the Madrid government said the planes were sold to the Spanish when the Lithuanian government canceled its order for them.

Particular emphasis, officials said, was placed upon success of the arms embargo in negotiations at Rome for a proposed seven-power agreement on neutrality, because Italian planes already have been flown to Spanish Morocco, where the rebels hold sway.

England, France and Belgium already were in accord, and Russia expressed willingness tonight to join. Germany was said to be hinging a reply on what others will do.

Portugal, the seventh power, was expected to agree readily.

Il Duce's reply, which was likely to accept the principle of non-intervention, French sources said, might declare airplane and arms traffic difficult to control.

It also was expected to raise the question of Soviet propaganda and Communist contributions of money to anti-Fascist forces in Spain.

The French "peoples' rallying committee," which is the executive organization of Leftist government parties, appealed for a million francs (about $68,000) by August 15 to provide medical care for Leftist fighters in Spain and food for their families.

"Spanish Fascism, the sower of ruin and death, is finding support in international Fascism," said the appeal.

"Torturers of German and Italian peoples are furnishing Spanish torturers with the means to establish on our Pyrenees frontier a military dictatorship which would complete the encirclement of France."

While Premier Leon Blum's own government was trying to get most of Europe to enter a non-interven-

Queen to Quit Dutch Throne, London Hears

Wilhelmina to Retire After Daughter's Wedding, Paper Reports.

By the Associated Press.

London (Thursday), Aug. 5.—The Daily Herald today declared Queen Wilhelmina of Holland "has decided to abdicate probably next year."

She will give up her throne, it was said, in favor of her daughter, Juliana, after the princess marries Prince Charles of Sweden, to whom, the newspaper asserted, her engagement soon will be announced.

The newspaper added that private talks between the Dutch and Swedish families have been under way for sometime in connection with the engagement.

Financial arrangements for the match, the newspaper said, were facilitated by a proposed amendment to the Dutch constitution reducing Queen Wilhelmina's income £27,000 sterling (about $135,000) annually in favor of any prince consort.

A Reign of Prosperity.

The Dutch people have enjoyed great prosperity during the 46-year reign of Queen Wilhelmina. Vast fortunes from the rubber plantations of the tropical colonies of Holland have been amassed during her years on the throne.

Democratic, fabulously wealthy in her own name, the Queen always has been greatly popular among her subjects, and today, because of her wise financial moves and those of her advisers, the guilder is one of the most stable of the world's coins.

Queen Wilhelmina, who is 56, ascended the throne at the age of 10, on August 25, 1890, shortly after the death of her father, King William III. At 18 she assumed full sway over her people, having been guided by a regent until then. Her husband was Duke Henry, of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Juliana is her only child. Juliana is 27—more than 7 years older than Prince Carl Johan, of Sweden, to whom, it was reported, her engagement would be announced soon.

Greek Dictator Invokes Martial Law in 'Revolt'

Metaxas Revamps Cabinet, Dissolves Deputies in Strike Threat.

By the Associated Press.

Athens, Greece, Aug. 5.—Iron-willed John Metaxas, Europe's newest dictator, tonight set about to crush with a series of martial decrees what he called an attempted Communist revolt.

The Chamber of Deputies was dissolved, martial law decreed and rigid censorship imposed after alleged Communists supported the calling of a 24-hour general strike.

Metaxas, in a cabinet shake-up, took for himself the portfolios of the army, navy, air and foreign affairs and retained his friend, George Skylakakis, as minister of the interior.

He named Constantine Zavitziana, veteran politician, the vice president of the council, and changed the undersecretaries of the ministries of finance, labor, public assistance, hygiene and air.

Metaxas in a proclamation tonight promised enforcement of an eight-hour day, a minimum wage, and institution of a social insurance system.

Premier-Dictator Metaxas moved a battleship near the city's electric light plant and sent two destroyers to patrol the Piraeus Harbor.

Metaxas, who won the title "Greece's Strong Man" when he followed in the footsteps of the late Eleutherios Venizelos, won full support of King George in a letter demanding "fullest powers" and asserting "we are on the eve of a Communist revolution upsetting the social order. Parliament is useless, powerless."

Transport services functioned normally, except for taxicabs, tonight. Many army commanders messaged their approval of the government's action to King George, returned to the throne after abandonment of republican government only a few months ago.

Foster Father Kills Girl, Self After She Flees to Neighbors

By the United Press.

Vails Gate, N. Y., Aug. 5—A 16-year-old girl who fled her home to escape the "don'ts" prescribed by her foster father, was found dead with him in a neighbor's home near here today.

The girl was Clara Lynch Gaerbrandt, and the foster parent was Normin Gaerbrandt, 36. Coroner W. A. Calyer of Newburg, said Gaerbrandt had fired the fatal charges from a shotgun into the girl's body and his own. The verdict was murder and suicide.

The pathetic grief of the child was disclosed, the coroner said, by a crumpled list in the pocket of her dress reading:

"I can't have any boy friends.
"I can't have any girl friends.
"I can't stay out after 8 o'clock.
"I can't go to the movies.
"I can't go to my grandmother's."

Mrs. Hazen Lewis, of Firthcliffe Heights, near here, in whose home the bodies were found, said the girl had sought sanctuary there for three days last week after complaining at Gaerbrandt's treatment.

Monday morning, Mrs. Lewis said, her husband, arising at 4 o'clock to do his farm chores, found the girl asleep in a barn and brought her indoors.

She had been with Mrs. Lewis since.

Soon after Lewis left the house early this morning, his wife said, she heard a back door open. She called out, but received no answer. Then, she said, she heard a match scrape, footsteps on the stairs and a moment later, two shots.

She ran into Miss Gaerbrandt's bedroom, she said, and found the girl's body on the bed, a shotgun wound in the head. Gaerbrandt's body lay on the floor, part of the head blown away. Beside it was the gun.

Coroner Calyer said a butcher knife was found in Gaerbrandt's clothing.

Neighbors said the girl had been adopted when 2 years old by Gaerbrandt and his wife. Mrs. Gaerbrandt, they recalled, had left home a few years ago and since that time the girl and foster-father had lived alone.

Hundreds Are Killed or Wounded in Battle for San Rafael.

Village Becomes Roaring Fortress

Rebels Bombed by Air; Townsfolk Join in Heavy Fighting.

The Revolt in Spain.

Bitter fighting between rebel and loyalist armies in the mountain passes outside Madrid yesterday left the positions of the opposing forces little changed. There was heavy loss of life.

Leftists were beaten back after a surprise attack on insurgents at San Rafael. In the south the rebel ships landed thousands of troops on the Spanish mainland after a dash from Ceuta, Morocco, and a battle with a loyalist warship.

France stressed embargoing arms as she pressed for an agreement with other powers to insure neutrality in the civil strife. Great Britain and Russia indicated willingness to co-operate. At Rome, Italian inclination to recognize the authority of Spain's rebel government was discerned.

Battle Rages.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

With Rebel Forces, Guadarrama Front, by Courier to Burgos, Aug. 5.—Madrid government forces furiously attacked hard-won insurgent positions at San Rafael today, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

The loyalists, unleashing a surprise flank assault behind the rebel lines, attempted to encircle the Guadarrama sector, but the Popular Front fighters were mowed down like ten pins.

Columns of loyalists streamed down the Sierra slopes onto the tiny summer resort of San Rafael, but they were dropped in piles of dead and wounded by regular infantry and artillerymen supported by well-trained rebel forces.

Hundreds were killed or wounded on both sides but the respective positions remained unchanged.

Mass for Battle.

After the sanguinary, inconclusive battle both government and insurrectionist forces were massing on each side of the Guadarramas front in preparation for what loomed as the major, bloodiest battle of the civil war in northern Spain.

Following up their victory over the counterattacking Loyalists at San Rafael, rebels piled up reinforcements behind Buitrago. Rebel airplane pilots reported that rival forces were converting buildings along the roads to Madrid into blockhouses. Cannon and machine guns were emplaced ready to meet the long-heralded insurgent march on the capital.

Most of the rebel losses in the battle for San Rafael today were caused by Loyalist, trimotored bombing airplanes, which dropped 100-pound bombs.

Attack Is Sudden.

The government attack on San Rafael started suddenly, rifle bullets and artillery shells raining down on the town. At once the village became a roaring fortress.

Townsfolk in slippers and white night shirts rushed out of their homes with rifles and shotguns and took their places along the line of fire beside khaki uniformed regulars and blue-shirted rebels.

Loyalists knelt behind trees and fired down on the town. Beyond,

Townsendites Lose in Kansas Primary Vote

Incumbents Renominated in Both Parties; Capper an Easy Winner.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 5 (AP).—Tuesday's primary in Kansas saw a general rout of Townsend forces and renomination of all incumbents.

Will G. West and Walter A. Huxman were chosen Republican and Democratic nominees respectively in the contest to elect a successor to Gov. Landon.

West was unopposed in the primary. Huxman defeated former Gov. Jonathan M. Davis, who advocated the Townsend pension plan and a ban on 3.2 beer.

Senator Arthur Capper, seeking a fourth term, breezed through a three-man primary contest. His election opponent will be Omar Ketchum, defeated by Landon for the governorship two years ago. Ketchum left three opponents far behind, including Dempster O. Potts, endorsed by Dr. F. E. Townsend, old-age pension advocate.

Republican Vote Heavy.

"The total vote cast for Senator in the Republican primary in 2358 out of 2690 precincts was 224,576, in the Democratic primary in 2326 precincts, 133,177. Two years ago the total Republican vote for governor was 292,000 and the Democratic vote was 155,000.

All six Congressmen seeking reelection weathered the primary. They are W. P. Lambertson (Republican), first; U. S. Guyer (Republican), second; E. W. Patterson (Democrat), third; John Houston (Democrat), fifth; Frank Carlson (Republican), sixth, and Clifford Hope (Republican), seventh.

Only Lambertson and Carlson had opposition. Lambertson nosed out James B. Kelsey, while Carlson was far in front of William Schoen, Townsend advocate.

Townsendite Defeated.

In the Fourth District where Representative Randolph Carpenter (Democrat), did not seek re-election, Ed H. Rees, State Senator, had a big margin for the Republican nomination and D. C. Hill (Democrat), defeated Arthur D. Wiseman, a Townsendite.

Harold McGugin, former Congressman, won the Third District Republican nomination and will oppose Patterson, to whom he lost in 1934, and L. P. Beard, a Townsend advocate, in November.

A Townsendite, Thomas A. Ralston, won Democratic nomination for Seventh District Congressman.

Pendergast Scores.

St. Louis, Aug. 5 (AP).—Republican designation of Tom J. Pendergast as the issue in Missouri's fall campaign tonight followed yesterday's primary election, in which Pendergast's Kansas City Democratic organization scored heavily.

Maj. Lloyd C. Stark swept to the nomination for Governor and Ernest S. Gantt to renomination as judge of the State Supreme Court. Both carried Pendergast support.

Jesse W. Barrett, who ran away from two party opponents in the Republican gubernatorial race, tonight asserted:

"Missouri will beat the Pendergast slate in November by a sizeable majority."

The gubernatorial vote showed: Democrats, 696,323 in 4,097 precincts; Republicans, 289,582 in 3,591 precincts.

Representative Joseph B. Shannon, in the Fourth District; C. Jasper Bell, Fifth, and John J. Cochran, Thirteenth, all Democrats; and Dewey Short, Seventh, lone Republican in the State's delegation of 13 were unopposed for Congressional renomination.

C. Arthur Anderson, St. Louis County prosecutor, defeated James R. Claiborne, the only incumbent unsuccessful, in the Twelfth.

M. A. Romjue, First District; William L. Nelson, Second; Richard M. Duncan, Third; R. T. Wood, Sixth; Clyde Williams, Eighth; Clarence Cannon, Ninth; Orville Zimmerman, Tenth, and Thomas C. Hennings, jr., Eleventh, won renomination. The Democrats chose State Senator Gene Frost to oppose Short.

"A great privilege," exclaimed the Republican Presidential nominee as he cast his vote in the Kansas primary after driving from Topeka to his home town, Independence, Kans., a distance of 180 miles.

The Political Arena

By the Associated Press.

Stockbridge, Mass., Aug. 5.—Owen Johnson, widely known novelist, announced his candidacy tonight for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the First Massachusetts District.

A committee of several hundred Democrats, headed by Prof. Samuel Allen, of Williams College and Prof. Ellery Sedgwick, of Harvard, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, waited upon Johnson at his home tonight to urge him to run.

Should Johnson win the Democratic nomination, he will oppose his neighbor, Representative Allen T. Treadway, Republican incumbent.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Jack Dempsey stepped into the political ring today as head of the sports committee of the Democratic national committee in the campaign to reelect President Roosevelt.

"I feel highly honored," said the former heavyweight boxing champion, "at my selection to head this important group.

"In a few days I hope to announce the men and women, prominent in the world of sport, who will be associated with me.

"I intend to devote a great deal of time to my part in the campaign."

Greeley, Colo., Aug. 5 (AP).—Representative William Lemke wants to debate the monetary and banking issue with President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon "on the same platform" before the November election.

The Union Party Presidential nominee, speaking at a forum of Colorado State College of Education here said:

"I will give the two twice as much time as I will take and will pay for a national hook-up over the radio."

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., manager of the Republican campaign in the East, said today Col. Frank Knox, National Chairman John D. Hamilton and other Republican leaders would make campaign tours in Maine early in September.

He said the tentative dates for the Vice Presidential candidate's address [illegible] September 3 and 4, but that the cities had not been selected. Hamilton and other leaders will speak in the State between that time and September 14, when the State election will be held.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Miss Mary W. Dewson, head of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, announced today that Mrs. Curtis Bok, of Philadelphia, "who registered Republican and voted for President Hoover in 1932, will work for the re-election of President Roosevelt."

Mrs. Bok's husband, a son of the late Edward Bok, is a member of a Philadelphia publishing family.

St. Louis, Aug. 5 (AP).—For the second time in two years friends went to a hospital room tonight to congratulate C. Arthur Anderson on another successful political campaign.

Anderson won the Twelfth District Democratic Congressional nomination in yesterday's primary election over Incumbent James R. Claiborne. He was operated on last week for a knee injury suffered when his automobile was wrecked two years ago in the midst of his successful campaign for re-election as St. Louis County prosecutor.

The Union Party line-up will be discussed by the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, follower of the late Senator Huey Long in the share-the-wealth movement, at a special luncheon of the National Press Club tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock.

Mr. Smith will discuss the alliance which has brought Dr. F. E. Townsend, founder of the $200-a-month old-age pension movement; the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Representative William Lemke, North Dakota, Union Party candidate for President, and himself into one camp.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 5 (AP).—Tennessee's bitterly fought campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor neared an end tonight with the three candidates making final appeals for support in tomorrow's State-wide primary.

The candidates, Gordon Browning, of Huntingdon, a former Congressman; Burgin E. Dossett, of Jacksboro, former State commander of the American Legion, and C. W. Wright, of Oneida, lawyer and fraternal leader, all indorsed the TVA, old-age pensions and the National Administration, but disagreed on liquor control.

New Deal Gave Power to 'Few,' Hamilton Says

Blames Roosevelt Regime for Loss of Railroads by the People.

By the Associated Press.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 5.—Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton said tonight that under the Roosevelt Administration, by the President's own admission, "a democracy of 30,000,000 investors" in railroads had been dissipated and power concentrated in the hands of "economic royalists" and "princes of privilege."

Campaigning in behalf of the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, he made his assertion before a rally of Utah Republicans.

When President Roosevelt spoke in Salt Lake City in 1932, Hamilton said, he "pointed out that nearly $5,000,000,000 of railroad bonds are owned by banks and insurance companies."

Roosevelt admitted, the speaker added, that bonds were "owned by the millions of policyholders and savings bank depositors.

"I would emphasize at the end of 12 long years of Republican administration, even Mr. Roosevelt said our railroad industry was owned by 30,000,000 people.

"Let's look at the condition in 1936. I shall take the report made to the American people by President Roosevelt this June at Philadelphia. Some appalling disaster seems to have happened to this great democracy of 30,000,000 investors in a single industry. In 1932 they owned it; in 1936, after 3½ years of Roosevelt rule, they had lost that ownership.

"A new despotism of 'economic royalists' and 'princes of privilege' has arisen, a small group which has concentrated into its own hands—and I use the President's own words: 'An almost complete control over other people's money, other people's labor, other people's lives.'"

New Deal Acts Criticized.

By the Associated Press.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 5.—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, in an address prepared for delivery here today said "he publicly charged the Administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt with perverting relief and CCC activities for political purposes."

Hamilton said, in part, "the American people wonder whether the customary routine, under Mr. Farley's (James A. Farley, chairman of the national Democratic Party) system is to transfer all responsibility for the filling of positions, including those created to care for our unemployed, to Mr. Roosevelt's political machine."

He said funds voted to the Roosevelt Administration for relief were voted "in trust and for the sole purpose of relieving human suffering."

He charged Mr. Roosevelt did not fulfill the promise he made in 1932 to reduce the cost of government by 25 per cent.

"The cost of government instead of falling by 25 per cent has risen 92 per cent," Hamilton said. "Our tax burden * * * in this present year is nearly three times what it was in 1933 and * * * these rising taxes are still contributing only one dollar out of every two that Franklin Delano Roosevelt spends."

Assails Roosevelt Statement.

Denver, Aug. 5 (AP).—Chairman Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee, at a press conference today described President Roosevelt's assertion that "it is a great disservice to link up human misery with partisan politics," as a "purely academic statement."

"I have not said Mr. Roosevelt's drought inspection trip would be political," Hamilton said. "What I have said is that Roosevelt henchmen are saying the drought has given them the opportunity to put millions of dollars in that country and are saying that is the reason they will carry it in the election."

Coughlin Bets $25,000 at 3-2 On Rep. Lemke

Wagers Candidate Will Poll More Votes in R. I. Than Landon.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5. — The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin today said he had not communicated with Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, his church superior now in Vatican City, but anticipated no changes in his plans for the national political campaign.

Father Coughlin said he would address two eastern meetings of his National Union for Social Justice Sunday, one at Syracuse, N. Y., and the other at Scranton, Pa.

In a letter to Frederick L. Jenckes, of Providence, R. I., today, the priest confirmed a bet that Representative William Lemke, Union Party Presidential candidate, would poll more Rhode Island votes than would Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate.

Father Coughlin pointed out that his original proposition was to bet $25,000 against $16,666.66, on a 3-to-2 basis, on the result of the Rhode Island vote, and not on the national outcome. He said attendants at a mass meeting Sunday agreed to subscribe the $25,000, and added he accepted the wager with the understanding the sum would go to orphans of the State if he won.

In a statement to newsmen, Father Coughlin said his national union would give its full support to the union party ticket of Lemke and Thomas C. O'Brien, but declared that if its objective should fail "it is our opinion that the country would be better off, at least temporarily, under the leadership of Landon or Norman Thomas.

"Both of these candidates, however, are unsuitable to the national union," he said, "and neither of them could save America from chaos."

Will Report to Officials.

Rome, Aug. 5 (AP).—Bishop Michael J. Gallagher hopes to impress a "pretty picture" of Father Charles E. Coughlin's political activities on official minds within the Vatican before he leaves Rome for his Detroit home.

If opportunity presents itself, Bishop Gallagher said tonight, he may present the Detroit radio priest's case before the Congregation of the Council.

His purpose, he said, would be to allay any possible misconception of Father Coughlin's work by describing it accurately.

nomination for the governorship, Fitzgerald said: "Political observers in Michigan are not certain Murphy will be nominated. If he is defeated in the primary (September 15) it will mean that this Federal Administration is on the way out."

Dickinson, Halden and Wilson joined in predicting a Republican victory in Iowa.

Other Landon callers during the day were John R. McLean 2d and Ralph Quinn, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, and Samuel R. Guard, editor-publisher of Breeder's Gazette, Spencer, Ind.

The prediction that Gov Landon's speech at West Middlesex, Pa., August 22, would win votes for him in Ohio was made today by McLean.

Mrs. Reynolds Heads G. O. P. Drive in West

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, who formerly managed Indiana's finances as State treasurer, today took over, in the Republican Presidential campaign, the job of directing the drive for women's votes in the West.

Mrs. Reynolds briskly announced plans for a campaign that would reach "right down into the precincts" in the 29 States of her jurisdiction.

"We're going to put it on a competitive basis," she told a press conference, "and see if the women can't get out a bigger vote than the men.

visory committee of the Youth Administration.

"What about the stock market margin?" a reporter asked Eccles.

"The stock market," he said, "is not the important measure of the credit situation over the country so much so as it is in New York and possibly some of the centers."

He said the stock market was not discussed with the President, nor was the drought situation.

He added, however:

"The Reserve System and Reserve banks in that (drought) area are in a position and will be willing to take paper from the banks in that area should the occasion require.

"But I think the banks, for the most part, have sufficient funds of their own, and I don't anticipate much use of Federal Reserve facilities in the drought area because of the drought."

Abundant Funds.

With reference to the credit situation in its relation to recovery, the head of the Federal Reserve System asserted there were abundant funds available for investment in the long term capital market, which is favorable to mortgage lending and refunding, as well as the flotation of new issues.

The current condition of credit, Eccles said, indicates there is some new financing, refunding, new construction and home mortgages. All that, he said, indicates a demand for money.

The trouble in the past, he said, was that there was no demand for funds.

"Do you call it a prosperity sign?" he was asked.

"I do," Eccles responded.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Union Party claimed official recognition in Ohio tonight, filing with the Secretary of State a petition which its leaders said bore 345,133 signatures, seeking a place on the election ballot.

$25,000 Gems Recovered.

San Francisco, Aug. 5 (AP).—Loss and subsequent recovery of a $25,000 diamond and emerald bracelet belonging to Mrs. Gilbert Postley, of New York City, on the liner Santa Paula made Mrs. Celia Garcia, New York, $100 richer. The liner docked yesterday. Gilbert Garcia, 18, a bellboy, found the bracelet. Garcia refused a reward, but when Mrs. Postley insisted, he asked her to make the $100 check payable to his mother.

party of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson.

Meanwhile, at Detroit, the list of those Democratic opponents of the New Deal who are expected to discuss concerted action against Mr. Roosevelt's re-election campaign was kept secret. Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and Sterling E. Edmunds, attorney, of St. Louis, Mo., who have arranged the conference, were expected to reach Detroit today to make final plans. Edmunds has told the Associated Press that he was acceding to the wishes of those invited to the conference in withholding the list.

He said that active opposition to the President in the campaign "might or might not" be taken up. Of a suggestion that a "Constitutional Democratic Party" be formed he remarked that Reed would be a "grand campaigner" as the Presidential candidate of such a party.

The league continued its attack on the Roosevelt Administration in its statement last night.

"The New Deal Administration," it said, "came into power on the Democratic platform of 1932. Not only has it ignored most of the important promises of that platform, but it has followed the unbelievable course of sponsoring legislation directly contrary to the pledges upon which it was elected. It has even professed objectives, initiated policies and enacted legislation diametrically opposed to American constitutional institutions, with the result that the Supreme Court has been compelled to outlaw many of its basic acts."

Smearing Is Attempted.

Of the league's own course the statement said:

"It has pointed out the frequent instances where the New Deal has subversively departed from our traditional institutions. New Deal spokesmen, bitterly resentful of having their real objectives exposed to public view, have attempted to smear it. With the opinions of such as these, either publicly or privately expressed, the American Liberty League is not concerned. It has refused to engage in an exchange of epithets with those who have resorted to abuse because they could neither refute its statements nor answer its arguments."

The statement referred to a recent challenge to James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, to produce proof of "slanderous utterances" concerning the league and said it has not been suprised "that he is unable to answer that challenge."

"It will not try to deceive with glittering promises. It will not lend itself to any attempt to arouse illusory hopes that can ultimately bring only disappointment. But it will continue to emphasize the protection of the rights of the masses which the Constitution affords * * *"

Despite Smith's failure to attend the Detroit anti-Roosevelt conference he is expected to be kept informed of all action and discussion there. His own course in the campaign still is a matter of speculation. John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, has expressed the hope that Smith will actively campaign for the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee, but Smith has not outlined his course publicly.

Spanish Rebels Push Toward French Border

Fail to Dislodge Rivals in Effort to Capture Port for Supplies.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, Aug. 5.—Spanish rebels tonight pushed the civil-war front close to France's border in bloody battle for possession of San Sebastian and advanced a step nearer Madrid at tremendous cost in dead and wounded.

Desperately the Fascist troops hurled heavy artillery fire along the road into Tolosa and nearby San Sebastian. A co-ordinating column moved toward Gijon, farther to the West.

As night fell, the rebels appeared to have made little progress and new fighting broke out near the French border in the Province of Navarre.

The offensive marked an apparently unsuccessful attempt by Fascists to dislodge the strongly intrenched loyalists along the seacoast and provide a northern port through which the rebels could receive supplies.

35,000 Reported Dead.

Throughout the day the deadly whine of artillery shells betokened progress of the attack—another battle of destruction in the civil war which already has cost 35,000 lives and 100,000 wounded according to the Red Cross estimate.

High in the mountains outside Madrid, where yesterday 400 were killed in vicious fighting, rebels paid for a 2-mile advance with 300 dead and 1,000 wounded.

For 48 hours the fighting raged. At the end, the Fascist forces still were 36 miles from the capital. They faced tremendous new hazards when they turned toward Loyalists barricaded in protected peaks of the Guadarrama passes guarding the plateau city.

Unable to bury their dead, the troops poured oil on the bodies and turned the battlefield into a funeral pyre.

600 Fascists Arrested.

The Madrid government arrested more than 600 Fascists and Monarchists in a citywide police roundup and continued the purge of Fascist sympathizers within the government.

Only desire to avoid further bloodshed, the Loyalist regime asserted, stayed their hand in attack against Granada, Zaragoza, Cordoba and Seville. They "could be captured any day," a government statement contended.

(Gibraltar dispatches said two British seaplanes flying from Algiers were fired on by Spanish Loyalist warships. Apparently they were mistaken for rebel craft.

(Gen. Emilio Mola, northern commander for the Fascist revolution ordered the arrest of any member of Spain's former royal family who sets foot in rebel territory.

(American Ambassador Claude G. Bowers docked his "floating embassy," the United States Coast Guard Cutter Cayuga, at St. Jean De Luz, France, today, with four American refugees. He said all American citizens desiring to leave the north coastal cities had now been evacuated.)

Farley Appoints New Party Aid

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Democratic Chairman James A. Farley today announced the appointment of Louis A. Johnson, of Clarksburg, W. Va., past commander of the American Legion, as chairman of the veterans' advisory committee of the Democratic National Committee.

Johnson said he would call a meeting of the committee next week to map plans for campaign activities among the veterans.

The veterans' advisory committee includes the following members: Alfred J. Kennedy, New York, Spanish War Veterans; Joe McQueen, Kansas City, past national commander, Disabled American War Veterans; Phil Dodson, Los Angeles, past department commander, American Legion; Paul G. Wolman, Baltimore, past national commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Leo M. Harlow, Boston, past department commander, American Legion; Mayor Joseph Carson, Portland, Oreg.; Scott W. Lucas, Havana, Ill., past national judge advocate, American Legion; Judge Leon McCord, Montgomery, Ala., past commander in chief, Spanish War Veterans; Forrest G. Cooper, Indianola, Miss., past commander, American Legion; Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, past national commander, American Legion, and John R. Kinder, Lincoln, Nebr., past department commander, American Legion.

Ford Official Tells Of Slaying in Spain

London, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—George Jenkins, manager of the sequestrated Ford Motor Co. plant at Barcelona, Spain, arrived here today. He said that when the Spanish civil war broke out a United States consul clerk and the British chief inspector of his plant were killed when they attempted to reach him on the outskirts of Barcelona.

The deaths were caused by shots fired by workers' militia units. Jenkins had sent a call to the United States consulate for an automobile to move him and his family from the outskirts of Barcelona. The men seeking to reach him failed to stop at a militia barricade. They were killed when shots riddled their speeding automobile, which overturned.

their mountain artillery was smoking away.

Volunteers fighting for the rebels put mattresses on balconies and fired into the Reds massed on the mountain sides. The France-Madrid highway, the main street of this long village, was a veritable trench.

A detachment of rebels entered the town with a batch of 50 prisoners, many of them badly wounded. They were members of a unit of 300 Popular Front militia.

The battle ended as suddenly as it began.

Rebels Surrender.

Barcelona, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Fifteen hundred rebels of the Black Legion unit surrendered to loyal forces after a crushing defeat on the Aragon front, it was announced tonight.

The battle occurred when the rebels, numbering 1,800 and equipped with machine guns, attempted to recapture the village of Sastago, which supplies electric power to Zaragoza.

Loyalists allowed the rebels to enter the outskirts of the town and then carried out an encircling movement, attacking the flanks and rear guard of the insurgent column. The number of dead and wounded was not known. Rebel officers fled.

Madrid 36 Miles Away.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

With Gen. Mola's Army at Robledgordo, Spain, Aug. 5.—Spanish rebels tonight rapped with a mailed fist on the doorway to Madrid.

Two days of hand-to-hand fighting, so desperate and so constant that exhausted troops burned the bodies of fallen comrades for want of opportunity to bury them, have brought the insurgent advance to within 36 miles of Spain's capital city.

Three hundred Rightist warriors were killed and 1,009 wounded. The loyalist losses were not available.

Government man power, government guns and government airplanes offered great resistance to the onslaught of the insurrectionists—but eager rebels said they could see their goal.

British Ship Fired On.

Gibraltar, Aug. 5 (AP).—Two thousand Spanish rebel troops from Ceuta, Morocco, landed on the Spanish mainland tonight after a battle with a loyalist warship in the fog-banked Straits of Gibraltar.

The British destroyer Basilik arrived from Almeria about the time the battle started and was fired on twice during the journey, apparently by the Ceuta gunners who mistook it for the loyalist vessel. The Basilik was not hit.

Food Shortage Feared.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—First signs of a possible Spanish rebel food shortage were revealed today when the radio station in the insurgent stronghold at Seville warned the populace to purchase only enough food for each day's requirements.

The announcement stipulated rationing of potatoes. Each family was allowed only 2 pounds daily.

tion agreement, some of its own Leftist supporters still advocate aid for the Spanish Loyalist government.

Favors Intervention.

One deputy of Blum's Socialist party supported Communist deputies in favoring intervention in a discussion of the situation by the chamber foreign affairs committee.

On the other hand, Georges Bonnet, a prominent member of the Radical Socialist party, which is allied with the government, expressed alarm at the government's attitude in leaving the way open to aid Spain if other nations refuse to keep arms from the rebels.

The danger of war in the French view lay in the possibility of some foreign powers' taking offense at such incidents as the bombing of a ship.

Rebel planes dropped bombs over the British steamer Medon, but missed it, said a Casablanca dispatch.

Another report from Tangier, International Zone, Morocco, said the captain of a German destroyer took from the captain of a German freighter at Sevilla a detailed report of its bombing by Spanish government planes.

Evidence in Italy.

Rome, Aug. 5 (AP).—Evidence of Italian inclination to recognize the authority of Spain's rebel government was discerned here tonight by informed quarters.

Indications of Italian sympathy with the rebel cause also were seen in press editorials.

Informed circles tonight, however, predicted Italy's reply to the French neutrality proposal would be delivered tomorrow and would be favorable "in principle."

Negotiations Sped.

London, Aug. 5 (AP).—Viscount Halifax, Lord Privy Seal, tonight returned to the foreign office to speed diplomatic negotiations designed to keep the Spanish revolution from spreading into European conflict.

Great Britain, already having given her pledge to neutrality, tonight was represented as pleased with progress of the nonintervention program advanced by France.

Russia tonight agreed to co-operate in the neutrality movement, and Portugal, informed sources here believed, shortly will swing into line.

British Territory Shelled.

Gibraltar, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A shell fired by a Loyalist Spanish warship fell in the northern portion of Gibraltar today. British officers were playing polo at the time. Spectators were thrown into a panic. Polo ponies bolted but there were no casualties.

The shell fell in British territory while loyalist warships were bombarding four ships transporting insurgent troops from Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, to peninsular Spain.

The troop transports, carrying forces to be used in an assault on Madrid from the south, landed safely at Algeciras, rebel port across the Bay of Gibraltar.

Five rebel airplanes operating out of Ceuta, which Loyalist Spanish warships bombarded from the sea throughout last night, today bombed and damaged the warships Lepanto, Jaime, Primero, Libertad and Churruga.

Manolus Woods, colored, of 626 N street northwest, was sleeping yesterday on the running board of his car parked in Sixth-and-a-half street when somebody stole the shoes off his feet and a coat on which he had lain his head.

Woods also told police there was a $50 bonus bond in the coat.

Greek Catholic Head Wins Control Battle

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5 (AP).—John P. Sekerak, of McAdoo, Pa., president of the Greek Catholic Union, claimed a victory tonight in the dispute with retiring officers over control of the organization.

Sekerak said the old officers, headed by Michael Yuhasz, St., of Homestead, Pa., relinquished their posts and turned over their records at a meeting of the supreme assembly in suburban homestead today.

Grocer, 37, Is Slain In Fight Over Child

Lancaster, S. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—Dewey Small, 37, suburban grocer, was shot to death in the yard of his wife's parents today and his brother-in-law, David Deese, 22, was arrested after an inquest tonight and charged with the slaying.

Witnesses at the inquest testified Small was shot during a gun battle at the Deese home over custody of their baby. Mrs. Small testified she fired several pistol shots at her husband from a window and David Deese testified he fired at Small with a shotgun.

Dr. R. C. Brown testified Small died of gunshot wounds. The jury said the grocer died of gunshot wounds inflicted by young Deese.

"I was attempting to save my sister, her family and myself," Deese testified.

New Indictment Of Farnsworth Is Held Likely

Additional Evidence Against Ex-Naval Officer Is Presented to Jury.

Possibility that another indictment may be returned against former Lieut. Comdr. John S. Farnsworth was indicated yesterday when the District grand jury, at the instance of Col. Leslie C. Garnett, United States attorney, and his aid, Samuel F. Beach, introduced additional data to the jury.

The new evidence, it was reliably reported, links the former naval officer with giving confidential information to the Japanese government and, in the event a second count is included also would charge him with conspiring to furnish the confidential information.

Farnsworth already is under indictment on charges that he both furnished, and attempted to furnish, an officer of the Japanese Government with a confidential Naval publication entitled "The Service of Information and Security, 1922" which he is said to have obtained from the desk of Lieut. Comdr. Leslie G. Gehres, in the Navy Department. On that indictment he is being held in the District jail because of his failure to furnish bond of $5,000.

The second investigation, begun yesterday, involved the procuring of confidential information regarding the national defense from Lieut. (J. G.) William S. Pye, now stationed at San Pedro, Calif., and Lieut. Comdr. Thomas P. Wynkoop, stationed at Bremerton, Wash. Neither of the officers, it was officially explained, is involved in the alleged conspiracy except as official Naval officers who were to tell of Farnsworth's activities.

In the event the grand jury returns an additional indictment, Beach explained, it will not be forthcoming until next week.

U. S. Holdings In Spain Total $70,000,000

Telephone Firm Investments Are Largest Reported in War Area.

By the Associated Press.

Figures indicating that Americans had approximately $70,000,000 invested in war-torn Spain, where plants of the Ford and General Motors companies have been seized by government sympathizers, were made public yesterday by the Commerce Department.

Ernest G. Draper, Acting Secretary of Commerce, said the figures, compiled at the end of 1933, represented the latest available summary.

He said automobile assembling plants at Barcelona, where the seizures occurred, were the second most important of the investments. The amount put into them was not revealed, however.

The largest item in the 1933 total was listed as approximately $48,000,000 invested by the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. in the Spanish Telephone System.

Prior to publication of the investment figures, Secretary of State Hull had expressed belief the automobile plants at Barcelona were seized only for temporary operation.

A reassuring message bearing the signature "Bigham" was received by Hull yesterday. It said:

"As president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Spain, and on behalf of our members, I wish to express our deep appreciation to Consul Lynn W. Franklin and staff for their effective efforts to date to protect American interests during present disturbed conditions in Spain and particularly Barcelona district."

From Ambassador Claude G. Bowers, aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Cayuga, came word that the cutter had removed from Santander Anna De Alvarez and her 9-year-old niece, Gloria Marie Sileo, of 1437 Seventh street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

First definite word of the safety of approximately 400 foreigners in Grenada including a number of resident Americans and tourists, was received in a message from the American Consul at Malaga.

Victim 'Refutes' His Death in 1911

Hastings, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—Chares G. Sager, 62, who vanished from his home at Robinson, Ill., more than 30 years ago, came to Michigan today to inform an undertaker that he was not the man killed by a train at Richfield, Mich., in 1911.

Sager had been considered dead since his name was found by the undertaker, Wallace A. Markham, now of Colon, Mich., in the coat of the train victim. Recently he returned to Robinson, hoping to be reunited with his family.

Then, he related here today, he found that his wife, believing herself a widow, had remarried, divorced, and married again. His father had died and his farm, containing 11 oil wells, divided among various heirs. His three daughters had married.

He traced two of the daughters, Mrs. Clara Hellin and Mrs. Lillian Saylor, to Marion, Ind., where his wife also lives, and his other daughter, Miss Addie Cossairt, to Union City, Mich.

Sager said he had been in Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas, working most of the time as a laborer.

300 Illinois Jobless Leave State Capital

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 5 (AP).—More than 100 State policemen left for their regular posts tonight as threats of relief rioting faded with the departure at noon of 300 members of the Illinois Workers' Alliance in the trucks which brought them here for a demonstration which never took place.

Leaders of the jobless said that although they were satisfied with the State's tentative plans for relief, they would be back in greater numbers if the program were not adopted.

Meanwhile, the administration started the wheels rolling for adoption of a plan whereby the State will appropriate $3,000,000 a month for aid and the local government raise another $2,100,000 monthly.

Texans Cheer Garner Stand On Government

Vice President Says He Wants to Take U. S. 'Out of Business.'

Dallas, Aug. 5 (AP).—Vice President John Nance Garner told a cheering group of Texas home folk tonight he wanted to "get out of this business of the Government in business."

"Cactus Jack" mixed droll humor and politics in an informal speech before 2,000 persons at a banquet in his honor.

He briefly referred to Government in business in lauding Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as "the best servant we ever had at the head of any bureau."

"Jones came to me to help him get more power on a certain matter," Garner grinned. "I told him, 'No, I want to take some of your power away.' I want to get out of this business of the Government in business."

The Vice President said he had been criticized by James A. Farley, National Democratic Committee chairman, for declaring in favor of Gov. James V. Allred for renomination in the recent primary election.

"I'll tell you a little secret," Garner said. "Fifteen months ago * * * there was talk of Allred running against Senator Morris Sheppard, so I just told him, 'You run against Sheppard and I'll do my darndest to beat you.'"

The audience roared with laughter. Gov. Allred nodded and laughed.

"Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley indorsed Gov. Lehman of New York, so why shouldn't the Vice President indorse a man down here in Texas?"

Garner commended the Nation for emerging courageously from "a period of acute economic strife" and stressed the need of world-wide peace as the cardinal hope of "this and future generations" in a speech here tonight.

At the Texas Centennial Exposition, the Vice President said over a Nation-wide hookup:

"Peaceful relations among all nations are the cardinal hope of this and future generations and are the foundation of our present foreign policy—that of good neighbors.

"I have only recently returned from a visit to our sister republic where I had the honor of participating in ceremonies incident to the opening of the new highway from Laredo to Mexico City and of enjoying the hospitality of the Mexican people. The closer relationship which this highway can not help but promote between our people will create a better understanding of how we can work to mutual advantage."

Slum Program Draws Attack of Republican

Not one slum dweller has been housed in the "$132,0000,000 so-called slum clearance program of the New Deal," William Hard said last night in his radio broadcast under sponsorship of the Republican National Committee.

He said that the one such project completed, at Atlanta, Ga., cannot have slum dwellers as tenants because "the buildings and their luxurious accessories" have cost so much that rentals are beyond the reach of the lowest income class.

U. S. Tariff Modified On 3 Nazi Products

The Treasury Department announced yesterday that three classes of articles would be exempted from the countervailing duties imposed on June 4 on certain imports from Germany.

Cameras, calf and kid leather and surgical instruments, the Treasury said, would not be subject to the special charges.

The countervailing duties were imposed to protect American industry from the competition of certain German products backed by Government subsidies.

The Customs Commissioner reported Germany had agreed that after July 25, no form of subsidy would be used in connection with the export of the three types of goods named.

Slayer's Mother Dies, He Gets Death Sentence

Tipton, Ia., Aug. 5 (AP).—John M. Mercer, 27, confessed slayer, learned today of his mother's death and then heard a sentence of death at the end of a hangman's noose pronounced on him.

Mercer pleaded guilty of killing Robert G. Spreat, Tipton vigilante, and threw himself upon the mercy of District Judge F. O. Ellison, but he flinched as the judge gave him the "limit of the law," and said:

"I cannot otherwise satisfy my own conscience."

It was the first death penalty Judge Ellison ever inflicted during his long career on the bench.

Fat Girls Get The Go-By—Slim Girls Win Men

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers". If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

Foreigners Flee China War Threat

Wuchow, Kwangsi Province, China, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Amidst frantic activities of Kwangsi troops fortifying Wuchow against an anticipated attack by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's central government armies from Nanking, many foreign women and all foreign children fled this city today.

Garrison troops, 4,000 strong, dug trenches, constructed bomb-proof dugouts and placed antiaircraft guns on surrounding hills while foreigners and their property were under the guns of foreign battleships.

Standing by off Wuchow were the U. S. S. Mindanao, gunboat of the South China patrol, United States Asiatic Fleet, and two British gunboats, H. M. S. Moth and H. M. S. Seamew.

Among the foreign refugees who fled aboard the steamer Kongso-Wuchow to Hongkong and Canton was Miss H. J. Thompson, Attleboro, Mass., an Alliance Mission worker.

Five strikers shot Sunday night in a clash with timber workers remained in Orofino.

Parkers Accused Before U. S. Jury

Newark, N. J., Aug. 5 (AP).—A reliable source disclosed today that the Federal grand jury investigating the Paul H. Wendel case had heard testimony placing Ellis H. Parker, sr.; his son, Ellis, jr., and his secretary, Mrs. Anna Bading, in New York during the time Wendel was allegedly held prisoner there.

Wendel charged he was abducted and tortured into confessing falsely the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. Both Parkers are under indictment in the case in New York. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman will hold a hearing in Trenton tomorrow on requests from New York authorities for their extradition.

Testimony placing the Parkers and Mrs. Bading in both Manhattan and Brooklyn came, the source said, from telephone company records of collect calls between New York and Mount Holly, where the Parkers and Mrs. Bading live.

Brighton, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—Scores of CCC workers and State troopers led by 7-year-old Bobby Butler's pet Pointer, Brownie, beat the snake-infested underbrush about Lake Ore today in a search for the youngster, who has been missing since Monday afternoon from a private camp for boys.

The boy, a son of William E. Butler, of Detroit, was attired only in bathing trunks when last seen. Although he could not swim State police dragged the lake for several hours today.

Tonight the troopers went on the lake with a new type glass-bottomed boat and a powerful searchlight.

Wife Goes on Trial In Train Death Plot

Milton, Fla., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Mrs. Mary Vann, 30 years the junior of the 70-year-old husband she is accused of plotting to kill, went on trial in a sweltering courtroom today on a charge of conspiring to wreck a train piloted by her husband.

She sat with her husband, Livvie Vann, engineer for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, as a jury was selected to hear the sensational charges.

The State charges Mrs. Vann sought to wreck her husband's train and kill him in the crash. The plot, it is charged, contemplated use of Vann's $30,000 insurance policy to finance a love affair with Earl Travis, the matron's alleged sweetheart.

Allen Langston, 70-year-old colored doctor, and Allen Findley, 17, also colored, pleaded guilty to attempting to wreck Vann's train and now await sentence. They charged Mrs. Vann offered them $500 if they "did a good job."

Girl to Divide Time Between Two Mothers

Georgian Makes Decision as Parents Shake Hands and 'Make Up.'

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Aug. 5.—Pretty 17-year-old Louise Madelipe Pittman tonight said she would divide her time betwen the two mothers who claim her as the two shook hands tonight and said, "Let's be friends."

It was their first meeting since the girl decided her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John O. Garner, of Macon, instead of those who reared her, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pittman, of Atlanta. The dispute between the mothers resulted from a contention that their babies were switched in a hospital mix-up.

The girl returned with Mrs. Garner from Macon, where she visited the Garners after seeing them for the first time seven days ago.

As the two mothers shook hands and chatted, Louis Madeline said, "I'm going to divide my time between the two homes."

She explained she will spend a week here at her old home with the Pittmans before going back to Macon to begin her new life with the Garners. There she expects to continue in high school for three years and take up training for nursing.

The Garners and the Pittmans, to whom daughters were born at an Atlanta hospital on May 22, 1919, asked a court to establish parentage of the child.

Judge George L. Bell—who died six years after handing down the decision in 1920—ruled Louise Madeline should remain with the Pittmans "until of age to make a voluntary choice of her own deciding."

In Atlanta, court attaches studied today the legal status of the girl. Under Georgia law she is a minor until she is 18.

"I told them (the Garners) when Louise Madeline is 18 she will be able to make up her own mind," Mrs. Pittman said.

"She'll come back," said Pittman, a 60-year-old meat cutter, who charged the Garners "swept her off her feet."

The Pittmans did not indicate whether they contemplated legal action.

Business for July Is Up 15 Per Cent

By the Associated Press.

Ernest G. Draper, Acting Secretary of Commerce, said yesterday that preliminary estimates showed July business activity was "15 per cent better than for July, 1935."

He also released a report containing a comparison of farm income, industrial production, factory employment, and other business factors for March, 1933, with April, 1936.

Pointing out that the April figures for this year were taken before the drought set in, Draper said that cash income from farm marketings not including benefit payments was up 84 per cent compared with March, 1933. Industrial production was up 69 per cent, factory employment 64 per cent, factory pay rolls 110 per cent, construction contracts 242 per cent and net corporation profits, 1,297 per cent.

Unemployment was reported down approximately 5,200,000 workers, or 35 per cent, for April this year, compared with March, 1933.

SEC Resumes Investigation In Trusts Case

Hearings Reopened After Court Gets Plea for Curtailment.

By the Associated Press.

The Securities Commission resumed public hearings yesterday in its inquiry into investment trusts after a request that the study be sharply restricted had been taken under advisement in Federal District Court.

With Marshall Forrest, of Chicago and Ambrose Benkert, of New York, on the stand, the commission studied formation in 1929 of Reliance International Corporation and Reliance Management Corporation, two New York investment trusts which later were absorbed by Equity Corporation.

Forrest and Benkert were described as active in establishing the two trusts.

A stockholder of Equity, Frederick T. Fisher, of New Canaan, Conn., was the plaintiff in the court action seeking to restrain the commission from requiring the attendance of Fisher or Equity officials at hearings and from examining Equity records.

Fisher formerly was a director of Chain and General Equities, Inc., of Boston, another trust taken over by Equity.

Presenting his case before Judge Jennings Bailey, in District Court, Edward Lombard, Fisher's attorney, argued that in directing the investment inquiry Congress had authorized a "study" rather than an "investigation."

He asserted any investigation would be of "an inquisitorial nature" and added this was contrary to Congressional intent. Unless some restriction was laid down by the court, Lombard contended, the commission would have broad authority to inquiry into "private affairs."

Arguing that the Congressional authorization was adequate to enable the commission to subpena witnesses and records, David Schenker, counsel for the Federal body, filed a commission affidavit asserting that Fisher "is not prosecuting this suit in good faith."

Westell Sprecht, 9, Buried at Savage

Funeral services were held yesterday for 9-year-old Westell Sprecht, a Post carrier boy, who was killed by an auto Monday while delivering papers near his home at Savage, Md.

The services were held in the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Savage. The Rev. Royal Rice, of Laurel, Md., pastor of the church, officiated. Interment was in the local cemetery.

Westell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ordell Sprecht, was on his bicycle when struck by the auto which police said was driven by Edward Knisley, of Savage. At an inquest, held Monday night by Acting Coroner J. I. Trobaugh, Knisley was absolved of blame.

Severna Park, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—William Yanke, 88-year-old farmer, died a few hours after having been attacked by a pet ram in a pasture at the home of his son-in-law, Herman J. Kinders.

Yanke, who operated a farm here for more than 50 years, until he retired recently, was knocked down three times by the ram, which had no horns. He suffered several broken ribs and was badly bruised.

He died before Dr. M. F. Klawans could reach him. Magistrate Harrison M. Sandrock gave a verdict of accidental death.

Children's Reading Habits

of the public library's children's department.

The old classics are as much in demand as ever.

"We never seem to have enough copies of 'Tom Sawyer,' 'Huckleberry Finn' and Grimm and Andersen fairy tales," Miss Latimer said.

"Treasure Island," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Robinson Crusoe" also have held their own down through the years. So has "Little Women."

"But some of the other Alcott books are not rated as high today as they once were," Miss Gaffney said.

Both women pointed out that any book is a new book to a child, until he has read it. Adults may want something right off the press, but the youngsters don't pay any attention to the date of publication. There may be some who want to follow the up-to-date adventures of gangsters or Federal agents, but if they do they know better than to ask for such books at the public library.

"We don't have any material of that kind," said both Miss Latimer and iMss Gaffney.

Miss Gaffney pointed out that the reading tastes of children who use the public libraries frequently are higher than youngsters whose parents can afford to buy all the books they want. At the library the child is guided by a librarian who studies him as an individual and tries to see that each book is a little more advanced than the last one. Parents, on the other hand, are inclined to buy the things they read as children. And too often, according to Miss Gaffney, that means such "weak" tales as "Black Beauty."

Widow, 83, Marries Elusive Bachelor, 80

Edmonton, Alta, Aug. 5 (AP).—Maria Porter, 83-year-old widow, slipped away from her six sons and a daughter and was married today to 80-year-old John Zeigler. None of her family knew in advance of the wedding.

"I've steered clear of marriage for 80 years, so I figured I might as well take a chance," Zeigler said.

Mrs. Porter said she would look younger still if she had not put her false teeth in the stove with a bundle of papers a few days ago.

After the ceremony they walked away hand-in-hand.

Bank Grants 10c Loan, Bars Toy Gun Collateral

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 5 (AP).—With toy pistol in hand, Tony Foropoulos marched into the First National Bank here today and nonchalantly inquired for the "loan department." Mrs. Clara Hanks, secretary of the vice president, learned Tony was without funds and wanted to see a moving picture.

He proposed to put up his toy pistol as collateral and borrow a dime until Saturday. His allowance will be due then. Mrs. Hanks solemnly approved the loan and made out a note. Tony signed it. But Mrs. Hanks insisted that Tony take his collateral along with him.

University of Texas students at Austin welcomed Maverick's stand in their fight against faculty supervision of The Texan, campus newspaper. A member of the journalism faculty has been appointed to pass on the paper's news and editorials.

Approval Is Given Glass' Coin Sketch

The National Committee of Fine Arts yesterday approved a profile of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, sketched by Charles Keck for use on 50-cent pieces commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of Lynchburg, Va., the veteran lawmaker's home city.

Informed of the committee's action yesterday in a letter from its chairman, Charles Moore, of Detroit, Glass said:

"It was a nice letter, but I still think the profile of living men should not be used on coins."

The anniversary is to be celebrated this fall. The Senator recently protested against the use of his profile, but he was informed the law on this subject did not preclude the honoring of living men on commemorative coins.

He urged a world conference to make a "real" effort to solve present problems.

Flogging Case Was 'Framed,' Suspect Avers

Black Legion Defendant Repudiates Testimony, Accuses Policemen.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5.—A charge of "frame-up" was hurled today at the first Black Legion trial by Frederick A. Gulley, a defendant who repudiated his previous testimony of a flogging.

Gulley, testifying at his trial with five others on charges of kidnaping and flogging Robert Penland, a steel worker and reluctant member of the terrorists' society, asserted two policemen of suburban Ecorse got him to tell a false story of a flogging to Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea's investigators.

His denial of a flogging was added to those of the other defendants, Wilbur Robinson, "brigadier general" in the hooded order; Thomas F. Cox, Earl Angstadt, Charles King and Harold Lawrence.

Initiated in 1934.

Gulley testified he was initiated into the Black Legion late in 1934 and, being afraid to withdraw, asked William W. Voisine, president of Ecorse, for advice and was urged to stay in the legion "to get information."

"Last May 1 Lieut. David Genow, of the Ecorse police, came to me and said he would get me on the police force," Gulley said. "Later Genow and Sergt. Robert McWhirter took me out in a car and asked me if I knew about the Black Legion taking a man out and flogging him.

"I told them I had been one of those who took a man out to a meeting, but that there was no flogging. They insisted there was a flogging and told me I was now an undercover man for Ecorse police and that I was to get information about the case.

Sent Out for Beer.

"I talked to Cox and he remembered that the man we took out to the meeting was Penland. We went to the Ecorse Police Station and Genow sent out for some beer. Both McWhirter and Genow insisted Penland had been flogged at the meeting. They got us pretty drunk and told us they were after the higher-ups.

"That's a hell of a way to break up the Black Legion, by framing somebody,' I said. At the prosecutor's office, McWhirter was there when I was asked questions and I looked at him before I answered. When he nodded, I said 'yes.'"

Gulley testified that Harry Colburn, McCrea's chief investigator, told him we would be "locked up for perjury" if he failed to stick to his story.

22,000 in Kentucky Begin War Games

Fort Knox, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—War game maneuvers of 22,000 soldiers began today when opposing "Red" and "Blue" forces encamped at opposite ends of the 75-square-mile sham battle area near here, awaiting the declaration of theoretic war at midnight.

Rain fell on bivouaked troops late today, after a warm, sunny morning for the march of the blue forces into position in the general vicinity of West Point, Ky., north of here.

Eight hours after 20,000 National Guardsmen and Regular Army soldiers of the blue force began taking the field, 2,000 men and 450 vehicles of the red force rolled southward of Fort Knox during a rainstorm and encamped for the night in the general vicinity of Bloody Bucket and Elizabethtown.

Odor of Lowly Onion Has Science Baffled

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Science confessed itself beaten today by the smell of the onion.

The only way to stop "onion breath," two doctors reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, is to quit eating them.

Mouth wash was no help, they said, because the onion eater breathes deeply from the lungs.

It took a lot of scientific sniffing to decide the question, the two physicians, Dr. M. A. Blankenhorn and Dr. C. E. Richards, of Cincinnati, declared.

They had persons eat onions and garlic, and then went around later to get a whiff.

Thorpe Denies Prior Marriage; Actress' Charge Called False

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 5.—Mary Astor's charge that Dr. Franklyn Thorpe already was wed to another woman when they were married in 1931 was termed an "obvious falsehood" by her former husband today.

The film actress, seeking an annulment of the divorce Dr. Thorpe won without contest last year, and petitioning for custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Marylyn, charged that Dr. Thorpe and Mrs. Lillian Miles have never been divorced.

"It is utterly untrue and will in due course be proved that I ever at any time prior to marriage to Mrs. Lucille Thorpe (Mary Astor) contracted any matrimonial alliance or marriage of any kind with Mrs. Lillian Miles," said Dr. Thorpe in a formal statement.

Mrs. Miles previously has denied she ever was married to the handsome physician.

Miss Astor's lawyers have announced their intention of going to Florida after the custody hearing to collect evidence which Attorney Roland Rich Wooley said would support Miss Astor's charge of a previous marriage.

The custody hearing is in recess until Monday. Both Dr. Thorpe and Miss Astor have denied themselves to interviewers pending its conclusion.

Two prominent theatrical names have been drawn into the dispute. Attorneys for the physician said they would subpena John Barrymore, ill in a Culver City sanitarium, and papers have been served on George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright.

Miss Astor testified that Dr. Thorpe knew of her association with Kaufman and "condoned it." Her attorneys said Barymore knows nothing material to the case.

Wife Sees No Harm.

London, Aug. 5 (AP).—The wife of the "George" in film actress Mary Astor's dairy today could see no harm in his having had a "flirtation" with the tiny star.

Gray-haired, vivid-eyed Mrs. George S. Kaufman, wife of the playwright who was subpenaed as a witness in the Astor-Thorpe child custody trial in Los Angeles, dipped languidly into a tureen of soup as she discussed her husband's entry into the case.

"This is the first food I have tasted in 48 hours," she commented in her West End hotel suite. "I really don't want to talk about this. George may have had a flirtation with Miss Astor—but I can't see any harm in that."

Mrs. Kaufman said she knew Miss Astor and "all about her situation before the case went to court.

"I hoped," she said, "it would never come, this * * * I've heard from George, naturally. We're married and, of course, he is very concerned about what is happening to me here."

Mrs. Kaufman termed Miss Astor a "movie actress who unfortunately kept a dairy."

She issued a formal statement saying "I am more than anxious to have this unpleasantness forgotten and over quickly as possible. Hollywood sensationalism has no place in my life."

British Air Officer Ousted by Baldwin

London, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has dismissed Sir Christopher Bullock, permanent secretary of the air ministry, it was announced officially today.

Bullock was dismissed from service July 28 as the result of "certain discussions" which he held with Imperial Airways with a view to leaving the civil service and joining the Imperial Airways directorate.

The board reported that Bullock, who was in charge of government negotiations with Imperial Airways, handled them scrupulously, but at the same time, on May 14, 1934, sounded out Sir Eric Geddes, chairman of Imperial Airways, as to whether the latter would accept a high honor from the government in recognition for public service to Empire aviation. Immediately afterward Bullock raised the question of his leaving the civil service and becoming chairman of Imperial Airways. Geddes disclosed the situation to the cabinet.

Capital Girl, 15, Is Found Safe; Lost 2 Months

Located in Asheville, N. C., After Disappearing June 4.

Gloria Elaine Carter, 15, who has been missing from her home at 831 Eighteenth street northwest since June 4, was found by police yesterday in Asheville, N. C., according to information wired to Inspector Bernard W. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Carter, the girl's parents, talked to her on the telephone and then left immediately for Asheville, it was learned. They had no indication of their daughter's whereabouts until yesterday.

Inspector Thompson said the girl finally was located as the result of information furnished the Asheville police by the newly-formed Public Relations Bureau here. It was learned that the Carter girl has been seen sitting on a wall in front of the Battery Park Hotel in Asheville.

Last month, after all efforts to locate Gloria had proved futile, her parents posted a $100 reward for information regarding her whereabouts.

It was learned after her disappearance that she had planned for some time to leave home in order not to have to go to school or to study music any longer. For that reason her parents made the following statement which police printed in capital leters on their missing person lookout:

"Important; Gloria will not have to go back to school or music. There is nothing possible that her parents are not ready to do for her and she may count upon them under any and all circumstances."

Since she had neither money nor clothes with her at the time she left home, it is believed she found work immediately. The daughter of a music teacher, she is an accomplished pianist, violinist and tap dancer and a fair typist and could have found work doing any of these.

She was described by relatives as a fearless girl who had traveled a great deal and was well able to take care of herself. Although only 15, she was very self-possessed and appeared to be three years older, they said.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Laredo Times said today Gov. Anacleto Guerrero of Nuevo Leon has ordered three Monterey, Mex., officials removed from office for inciting a riot July 29. Mayor Heriberto Montemayor, Dr. Angel Martinez, city hospital head, and Dr. Mateo Saenz, city school physician, were those ousted.

Three were killed and eight wounded in the disorders.

The newspaper said Gov. Guerro ordered headquarters of the Accion Civica Nationalista closed and posted military guards. A report was current that the Governor told Mayor Montemayor to disband the Civicas and Los Dorados, both anti-communistic organizations.

St. Paul Ousts Ex-Police Chief In Kidnap Case

Brown Will Not Be Prosecuted, U. S. Attorney Says After Discharge.

St. Paul, Aug. 5 (AP).—Thomas A. Brown, a former police chief, was discharged from the police department today in an order signed by Public Safety Commissioner Gus Barfuss, which charged him with abetting Karpis-Barker gang plots that sprouted two of the Nation's major kidnapings.

Told he had been dismissed, Brown stated: "I have nothing further to say." Last night he issued a blanket denial of the accusations.

Barfuss' notification accused Brown of conveying confidential information of police activities to Harry Sawyer, now serving a life sentence in Alcatraz Federal Prison as the "finger man" in the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer kidnaping.

Kidnap Detail Member.

Brown, at the time of the abduction, was a member of the police kidnap detail.

The notification further charged him with "wilfully and unlawfully conspiring" with Alvin Karpis and his gang in the $100,000 William Hamm, jr., abduction.

Recalling the testimony of Government witnesses in the Peifer trial, John J. Peifer committed suicide in jail after receiving a 30-year sentence last week—the order continued:

Charges Listed.

"Statements made by witnesses in the case have been fully investigated and as a result you are hereby discharged for inefficiency, breach of duty, misconduct, misfeasance and malfeasance in the performance of your duties."

George Sullivan, United States district attorney, said the Federal government did not plan to prosecute Brown for either the Hamm or Bremer abduction.

"The Hamm case is outlawed by the statute of limitations and we don't plan prosecution of Brown in the Bremer case," said Sullivan.

Mexico City, Aug. 5 (AP).—A thousand Federal District business establishments were formally notified today their approximately 65,000 employes would not report to work August 15.

That was organized labor's answer to the contention of employers that the federal labor law, by its "circumstances beyond control" clause, exempted them from paying wages during the nine days last month's electric power strike paralyzed their business.

Seal's Choices For Five Posts Expected Soon

Recommendations May Go to Commissioners by Tomorrow.

Recommendations for appointments to fill five vacancies in the Corporation Counsel's office are expected to be submitted to the District Commissioners tomorrow or next Tuesday by Elwood Seal, who yesterday took the oath as corporation counsel.

Two assistant corporation counsels, attorney for the District Unemployment Compensation Board, an assistant claims inspector and a stenographer will be picked.

The post of counsel for the Unemployment Compensation Board is the most important, as it pays $4,600 a year. Seal has been acting as legal adviser of the board since its creation.

At stake in the shuffle was the job of Leo Fee, former assistant clerk of the House District Committee, who has been acting as legislative aid since last spring.

Because of Fee's former association with Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, Representative Thomas L. Blanton succeeded in eliminating an appropriation for continuation of the job.

Since July 1, he has been paid from funds available because of the vacancy in the office of corporation counsel. While there are no funds for the specific job, Seal yesterday said he would try to make other arrangements for retaining him.

Vernon E. West, who has been acting corporation counsel since the resignation of E. Barrett Prettyman, will remain as principal assistant, Seal said.

Chester H. Gray probably will take over Seal's former task of handling the major claims against the District and the role of chairman of the Fire Trial Board.

Gunman Escapes In Police Cruiser

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—A gunman escaped in a police cruiser today after critically wounding a police captain in a downtown street gun battle in which the gunman's companion was slain.

The two thugs opened fire on Capt. Dee Williams and Patrolman Darrell C. Wicke when the officers sought to question them about the ownership of an automobile. Capt. Williams fell, shot in the chest, abdomen and leg, but Patrolman Wicke returned the fire, killing one of the men.

Southern Michigan law enforcement officers threw up a blockade along the Michigan-Indiana line tonight after finding the police car abandoned on a parking lot here. State police believed the fugitive was attempting to hitch hike to Indiana.

The dead man carried automobile and hunting licenses bearing the name of Theodore Bergstedt, 29, of South Bend, Ind., a former Indiana State Prison inmate.

Traders Name Daggy.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5 (AP).—J. Gentry Daggy, of Philadelphia, was the only nominee tonight for the presidency of the National Security Traders' Association, in convention here. The election will be held tomorrow, when next year's meeting place will be selected.

Smithsonian Gets Custer Relics

Harris & Ewing.

Shown above is the linen towel used as flag of truce at the surrender of the Army of northern Virginia, at Appomattox Courthouse, in April, 1865, and the small pine table upon which the conditions of surrender were written by Gen. U. S. Grant. They have been deposited at the Smithsonian Institution.

Flag of Truce at Appomattox On Exhibit in Smithsonian

Pine Table on Which Grant Wrote Terms of Surrender Also Shown as Part of Gen. Custer Collection.

The linen towel used as a flag of truce when the Army of Northern Virginia surrendered at Appomattox Courthouse in April, 1865, and the pine table upon which the conditions of surrender written by Gen. U. S. Grant, have been added to the exhibits of the Smithsonian Institution, it was announced yesterday.

Gen. Philip H. Sheridan presented the table of Mrs. George A. Custer, wife of Gen. Custer, the day after the surrender, and vouched for its authenticity in an affidavit.

Lieut. Col. E. W. Whitaker, First Connecticut Cavalry, made out a similar affidavit for the linen towel, declaring it to be the "flag of truce used by Capt. Summers, of Gen. Longstreet's staff, bearing message to Gen. Custer asking cessation of hostilities."

Col. Whitaker's note, dated April 10, 1865, goes on to state that "this truce was sent out under the direction of Gen. Lee himself and is the first and only one used asking immediate cessation of the hostilities that a conference might be held with Gen. Grant."

Both table and towel have come to the Smithsonian as part of a collection of personal effects and historical relics of Gen. Custer. Some will remain there only until a Custer Memorial Museum is built on the site of the little Bighorn battle field, Montana.

Others will remain in permanent custody of the institution and will be exhibited in the National Museum.

The Custer collection includes the general's sword and several uniform coats, as well as a large oil painting of the officer.

Custer, famous for his "last stand" in the Indian Wars, contributed greatly to the victory of the Union troops, resulting in the surrender at Appomattox, Sheridan's letter to Mrs. Custer declares.

Ohio Slayer Dies Assailing Governor

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 5 (AP).—Walking to the electric chair with a bitter tirade against refusal of executive clemency, John Pleyer, 31-year-old Chicago gunman, died tonight for his part in a $30 Cleveland holdup slaying.

Pleyer was executed for the slaying of Albert Wesosky, butcher boy, during a Cleveland store robbery.

His pal, Donald Eberle, 31, went to his death in the same chair on June 23.

While guards made last-minute adjustments in the chair, Pleyer turned to witnesses and said brokenly:

"Gentlemen, I am here to make a speech. The State of Ohio has a clemency board. I have heard it recommended clemency for me. I can't see why one man turned me down against four. Is that justice, I ask you? They might as well not have a clemency board. I hope God may never forgive him."

Convict Killed Fighting to Flee Georgia Prison

Falls From Truck While Grappling With Guard, Who Is Injured.

By the Associated Press.

Soperton, Ga., Aug. 5.—A shackled convict, wrestling with a guard on the hood of a moving truck in a desperate break for freedom, was killed when they fell under its wheels today. Both the guard's legs were broken.

Four other prisoners aboard the truck fled into a swamp. Two were recaptured immediately.

Coroner H. A. Rover said testimony at the inquest was that the convict, listed as Randolph Brown, 22, serving a two-to-three-year term for larceny, dived over the windshield to grapple with Guard Aubrey Livingston, 25, who was riding in his accustomed place on the hood.

In the struggle, the two rolled from the vehicle. The wheels passed over Brown's chest.

The truck was wrecked as the other four made their break. Authorities said the two recaptured were Wallace Hughes, 27, serving a life term for murder, and Roy Capps, serving three years for forgery.

The missing men were listed as Robert J. Faulk, 24, one to three years for burglary, and J. C. Bazemore, 20, serving three years for assault to murder.

Canada and Minnesota Battle Boundary Blaze

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 5 (AP).—United States and Canadian fire fighters labored side by side across the international boundary today to lay a protective barrier in the path of flames sweeping south to the Superior National Forest on Minnesota soil.

R. U. Harmon, forest supervisor, ordered 200 men across the border to bolster a force of 125 Canadians after rangers directing a weary crew of 200 obtained control of a blaze that had hurdled the boundary into Minnesota, between Gunflint and North Lake Portage.

8 Air Aces Poised at New York For Early Flights to Europe

Pangborn and Grevenberg Will Seek to Establish First Regular Mail Route to Paris; Others Have Varied Reasons for Hops.

By the United Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Eight persons at Iyod Bennett Fand Roosevelt airports tonight prepared to risk their lives, probably within the next three weeks, on four independent flights across the treacherous North Atlantic to London, Lisbon, Stockholm and Paris.

Last exhaustive overhaulings of sleek long-distance ships were completed as four parties announced they would take off before September 1 for four different reasons in an effort to make aviation history.

Clyde Pangborn, veteran round-the-world flier, conqueror of the Pacific and London to Australia race pilot, and Marion Grevenberg, war ace, will fly their "Meteror Flying Wing" to Paris in the first attempt to establish a regular trans-atlantic airmail route.

Dick Merrrill, ace birdman of Eastern Airlines who has been flying 19 years and piloted the Ellsworth plane to South America, and radio singer Harry Richman plan to win a $100,000 English prize for the first round-trip to London and back completed in 48 hours. They will fly Richman's expensive Vultee ship, which cruises at 250 miles per hour.

Joseph Costa, 28-year-old Corning, N. Y., pilot, and his father, John Costa, who does not fly, will do the Portugal flight via Newfoundland in order to see the elder Costa's native country from the air. They will use a white Lockheed Vega monoplane called the Crystal Ship.

Kurt Bjorkvall and the Baroness Eva V. Blixen-Finecke, Swedish pilots, are the fourth pair. They will point their specially equipped Bellanca monoplane for their home town of Stockholm within the next few days and attempt to reach it without a stop. It will be a trip for "fame" alone.

Firemen Will Hold Silver Spring Rally

Holding its quarterly meeting in the Chevy Chase firehouse, the Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night voted to stage its annual convention in Silver Spring in October.

On the committee to make arrangements for the gathering were George Hamilton and Thomas Adams, of Silver Spring; Irving W. Johnson, of Takoma Park, and Bernard Cassell, of Chevy Chase.

A fountain pen was presented to Leo Bender, of Silver Spring, chairman of the legislative committee, which drafted the bill legalizing carnivals for the benefit of the firemen.

Speakers of the evening were State Senator Stedman Prescott, of Rockville; Karl A. Young, of Mount Rainier, and Eugene J. C. Raney, of Kensington.

Mental Patient Held in Slaying For Grand Jury

Coroner's Jury Finds G. W. Stevens Responsible for Death in Hospital.

George W. Stephens, 22-year-old mental patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, was held for the grand jury yesterday when a coroner's jury held him responsible for the death of Col. Carroll F. Armistead, 64, also an inmate of the institution.

Col. Armistead, veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars, died in the hospital Monday a few hours after he was struck and knocked down by Stephens as he was waiting for an elevator from the third floor to the hydrotherapy ward.

The colonel died of a fractured skull suffered when he struck his head on the cement floor, Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said after an autopsy.

Orion J. Lawrence, an attendant who was helping direct the group of 11 patients, testified Armistead placed his hand on Stephens' shoulder. Stephens, a former sailor, hit Armistead in the face with his fist.

Dr. Addison M. Duval, senior medical officer in charge of the men's receiving ward, told the jury Stephens is suffering a form of dementia praecox and has been a patient in the hospital since 1935.

He said Stephens' father is now in a Texas prison after two convictions of murder. The man's mother is a mental patient in a Texas Hospital, Dr. Duval stated.

Labor's Open Split.

The action of the American Federation of Labor's executive council in voting to suspend ten insurgent unions unless they sever their connection with the Committee for Industrial Organization by September 5 is tantamount to reading out of the federation approximately one-third of its membership.

In view of the uncompromising character of the ultimatum, hope of reconciling the warring factions and averting an open split seems to have vanished. Whatever the legal or technical arguments advanced to justify this stern disciplinary action, the council has shown little regard for the long-time interests of organized labor in placing conformity to majority rule above the value of a united front at this critical juncture in the development of the trade union movement.

A majority rule not broad enough to cover a powerful minority that can make an effective appeal to unorganized workers is a deterrent to growth. Such a majority, however representative of the federation's present membership, is not representative of the laboring groups that might become affiliated if given a chance to do so. The council should at least have postponed decisive action to permit the offending unions to present their case to the federation convention next November for a rehearing.

As matters now stand, with the large industrial unions denied the right to vote at the convention, their fate will be in the hands of hostile groups who will presumably demand revocation of their charters. At any rate, that is the outcome which now appears most likely, barring unforeseen developments.

It will be a most unhappy ending to a conflict that, given statesmanlike guidance, might have resulted in an amicable compromise of opposing factions.

Dictatorship In Greece.

With the establishment by Gen. John Metaxas, the Greek premier, of a "temporary" dictatorship at Athens, George II's honeymoon period as monarch appears definitely to be over.

In sanctioning the suspension of parliamentary government and the establishment of martial law King George may have been convinced that increasing labor disorders made such action absolutely necessary. But this does not alter the fact that Greece is no longer that "crowned democracy" he hoped it would be under his rule. It is rather—as in the days of Gen. Pangalos or, more recently, in the days when Gen. Kondylis was playing the role of "strong man"—a nation in which the real power rests with the armed forces.

It must be said that the monarch's experiment was a noble one while it lasted. He had returned to Greece not as the result of any overwhelming popular demand but largely through the cabals of a clique of royalists. It was only after the restoration that George II became popular. For from the moment he stepped foot on Greek soil he made it clear that he would seek to rule above party and faction as a truly constitutional monarch. Even so bitter an opponent as the late Eleutherios Venizelos was, before his death, won over to the monarchy.

It was the wise statesmanship of George II which created the hope that, after years of turmoil, Greece was about to settle down to peaceful political life. "Barring accidents," wrote William Miller, for many years Athens correspondent of American newspapers, in Foreign Affairs, "the course of Greek politics seems likely to run smoothly."

But this has not proved to be the case. Last January saw the first free election in Greece in many years. It resulted in a stalemate between the leading blocs. The Venizelists captured 143 seats, the anti-Venizelists 143. Thus it was that the Communists with their 15 seats held the balance of power. It is interesting to note, however, particularly in view of the fact that it was the alleged Communist threat which has been used as the pretext for the establishment of a dictatorship, that these 15 seats constitute but 5 per cent of the total.

There can be no doubt, however, that labor disorders have been increasing in Greece. That nation has been very hard hit by the depression and by the rise in the cost of living subsequent to the devaluation of the drachma. But the government's efforts to deal with the strike situation only made matters worse for they were the product of a barracks-room mind. When government mediation failed, a decree was issued outlawing all strikes. It was against this order that the labor elements protested by declaring a 24-hour general strike. And this move led to the decree, accepted by the monarch, instituting a dictatorship.

In the past 12 years Greece has had no fewer than seven revolutions or attempted revolutions. It is doubtful if stability can be achieved through the medium of a coup d'etat, even one that has the monarch's approval. It is clear, instead, that Greek politics are again in a turbulent state.

Hopkinsizing The PWA.

Under new regulations issued by the President all labor on PWA projects must be recruited from relief rolls, whereas previously 60 per cent of the employes were hired from other sources. Moreover, in making allotments from PWA funds the localities must give assurances that work on the projects will be commenced by October 1, reach a peak by the end of the year and be completed by October, 1937.

Hedged about by such restrictions, Secretary Ickes is having great difficulty in finding suitable undertakings upon which to expend the $300,000,000 placed at his disposal by Congress. In communities where an adequate supply of skilled labor cannot be drawn from relief rolls, projects will have to be dropped regardless of their usefulness. The limited time allowed for their completion also severely restricts the field of choice.

In other words, the PWA is being arbitrarily forced to conform to policies laid down by Administrator Hopkins which make the social value of projects distinctly secondary to the creation of jobs. If useful work can be found for men on relief, well and good. But where work suited to their capacity and skill does not need to be done, boondoggling is condoned, indeed approved, under this Hopkins policy of creating a maximum number of jobs as an alternative to doles.

The PWA, on the other hand, has insisted that projects shall be useful and, if possible, self-liquidating. As a matter of fact, any carefully planned public works program must be judged by the value of the projects in relation to their cost, not by the number of jobs provided on those projects.

From its inception, however, the PWA has been handicapped by being hailed as a job-creating agency, although it is well known that public works offer relatively little direct employment in proportion to the size of the outlay. Thus, it is estimated, on the basis of inconclusive data, that for each man directly employed for a year, the PWA spent about $3,000. There is no question that Mr. Hopkins makes a much more impressive showing with an estimated annual outlay of about $780 of Federal funds for each WPA worker, plus an average local contribution of $180. Of course, these comparisons are not fair to the PWA, since they make no allowance for the value to the community of carefully planned public works and the large amount of indirect employment afforded by construction activities requiring heavy purchases of material and supplies.

Secretary Ickes himself has contributed to the public confusion over the nature and objectives of the PWA. Sometimes he has talked as if the PWA were a long-time planning agency designed to develop a comprehensive program of public works. At other times he has exaggerated the importance of the PWA as an emergency agency for creating jobs and priming the business pump. While long-time planning is quite consistent with speeding up public works construction in depression years, a socially desirable, economically planned program is certainly not consonant with mere "pump priming."

As an agency for creating jobs, the PWA is left far behind by the WPA. Justification for its continued existence, therefore, rests upon the greater value of PWA projects. If these special contributions are sacrificed to the requirements of the Hopkins program, there will no longer be any excuse for perpetuating the PWA as a separate agency. Unless President Roosevelt consents to modify the new regulations, the PWA will, for all practical purposes, be taken over by the WPA. In that case Secretary Ickes might as well abandon his own plans and let the WPA instruct him as to the disposition of the funds grudgingly granted him after a prolonged struggle.

Studies In Scarlet.

Because their theories of construction are in sharp contrast, two recent crime-stories raise a pretty problem. Is the detective novel about to return to its original variety of form? Or is it to remain in the rather crude mold into which mass-production methods have tended to force it? If you reflect upon the large numbers of people who still turn to this type of fiction for entertainment and relief, you will admit that such questions are far from trivial.

Dorothy Sayers, a veteran teller of mystery tales, set about writing "Gaudy Night" much as any other sort of novelist sets about writing any other sort of novel. She spared no pains to make vivid its scene, to give its characters character. But when that former head of Scotland Yard, Sir Basil Thompson, asks "Who Killed Stella Pomeroy?" he, like any other policeman, concerns himself almost solely with answering his inquiry. He has small concern with artistic background and still less interest in the minds of the protagonists he creates.

Miss Sayers' method is in the older tradition, the tradition of Wilkie Collins' excellent "Moonstone" and Robert Louis Stevenson's "Wrecker"—book widely different from each other in most respects, yet alike in the fact that they would stand up even were their mysteries eliminated. The method of Sir Basil is that which came into vogue when the tired businessman desired to drink his liquor-fiction neat—a taste that grew all the stronger when the depression tightened his brain-strain. No matter about literature: he wanted a crossword puzzle in crime.

Now, albeit slowly, times are easing, taut nerves relaxing. Is the world going to agree again with the declaration of R. L. S. that a detective story should have as high an esthetic content as any other species of the literary genus? There is little doubt as to the critics' response.

But the publishing business is, after all, a business; its ultimate book-test is the sales-test. The future of the detective novel, like the future of its more highly esteemed brothers and sisters, rests not so much in the predictable hands of the book reviewer as in the unpredictable tastes of the buyers of books.

Strange Housing Subsidies.

The first of the Administration's so-called low-cost housing experiments are passing from blue-print stage into actual use. PWA has a project ready for occupancy. The Resettlement Administration is putting finishing touches on the first units of its Greenbelt community on the outskirts of Washington. A limited number of families will soon be enjoying new, modern quarters partially at the expense of taxpayers.

Selection of the tenants for these Government-owned projects will be watched with a great deal of interest. Already the PWA has decided that the families to be housed in Techwood Homes, in Atlanta, must have incomes not lower than $700 per year or higher than $1,800. It will also endeavor to house only families now living in an undesirable environment.

As pointed out by Felix Bruner in his recent series of articles in The Post, dwellings in the Greenbelt community will probably be reserved for families with incomes ranging from $1,200 to $2,000 per year. These are relatively expensive homes of the type that is customarily occupied by families with incomes considerably above the national average. Yet the occupants are to be granted the benefits of a Federal subsidy.

It is clearly apparent, therefore, that neither project will be devoted exclusively to housing low income groups, although that was the announced objective of both programs. After a comprehensive study of the American housing problem, the Committee for Economic Recovery concluded that subsidies should be available only to families with incomes of $1,000 per year or lower, with downward adjustment of that figure in communities where building costs are moderate. Presumably only a fraction of the Techwood Homes and none of the Greenbelt dwellings will be rented to families in this category.

On the basis of estimated incomes for 1933 more than 70 per cent of the families in America could have met the income requirements of Techwood, and an even greater percentage would have been eligible for homes in the Greenbelt. That may be an extreme illustration. But even in 1929, 42 out of every 100 families had incomes of less than $1,500. Instead of providing decent quarters for the very low income groups, who are most in need of assistance, the Administration is offering subsidies in a field where only private enterprise should operate.

Officials of the RA attempt to justify this abandonment of real low-cost housing by classifying their undertakings as "demonstration projects." The facts that attractive homes in delightful settings can be built by modern methods, and that a model community can be developed at a cost of $7,400,000 need no demonstration. What is needed is proof that moderate-priced homes can be built and sold to workingmen at prices within their means, without the aid of a siphon into the Federal Treasury. From that viewpoint Dr. Tugwell's Greenbelt experiment is worthless.

Until the community problem of rehousing families unable to provide for themselves is clearly separated from the private business of constructing homes for the great majority of self-supporting families very little progress is likely to be made in either direction.

One of the most serious hazards in golfing is the pocketbook hazard.

Literary Loneliness.

From "Books On Board."

Despite the fact that our merchant ships are spread from Glasgow to Sydney, from Galveston to Vladivostok, they are easier to serve than many of the isolated lighthouses and Coast Guard stations on our own coasts. For the valiant men in this work, loneliness is real and ever present. There is no "breather" of a few days a month in port to look forward to. In some remote stations a man "signs on" for three years.

It is a point of great pride with the American Merchant Marine Library Association to maintain adequate service to these posts. Frequently the keepers of these lighthouses have families, and children find their education as well as their recreation in the specially packed green boxes. Cutters often battle their way through terrific storms to deliver the eagerly awaited books. Last winter the tender serving the lightship Nantucket off the coast of Massachusetts, hove to for two days before delivery could be made. During the last holiday season, Christmas boxes were delivered to 81 Eastern lighthouses by airplane.

Opposing Mr. Blanton.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

"The captains and the kings depart," said Rudyard Kipling. So also do the reactionaries, fanatics and bigots.

Mr. Blanton has been defeated for renomination for Congress in the preliminary contest. In the run-off he will be beaten more decisively, I suspect. The aggressive Congressman may be—and I assume that he is—entirely sincere, but he has been a source of much vexation and bother to the people of the District of Columbia, as well as of the entire country. His exaggerated economy meant stripping the District of sufficient funds for necessary expenses and the denial of aid to those who needed it urgently. His rediculous and fantastic crusade against supposed plotters against the American Government constituted what in legal terminology is often termed as "a public nuisance."

The Democrats of Congressman Blanton's district are to be congratulated. It is likely that, for some time, they were deceived by his bombastic, blustering assertions about his own great patriotism and the diabolical desires of his opponents. I don't think they believe that stuff now! Evidently they have punctured the Blanton balloon and found how hollow it is.

Every intelligent citizen of the United States ought to be thankful. Let Tom Blanton go back to Abilene and realize that, while we Washingtonians have nothing against him personally, we do not relish the mistaken brand of statesmanship he has sought to impose upon us.

Animal Nomenclature.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Maybe I am all wrong. I am always willing to be corrected. But I don't like your word "hybrid" in connection with the three bears at the Washington Zoo (Post, May 6). They are not hybrids.

And I don't like doggie in connection with the setter pups (Post, May 21). "Doggie" is O. K. if I miss the humor of the impression, but "dogie" (pronounced doe-gie) is the correct spelling in the famous song, "The Last Roundup," and really means stunted calf, not a dog.

Further, I would appreciate the information as to whether or not the white sloth (Post, May 21) is really and albino. There are some interesting facts on albinos, both animal and homo sapiens.

Sorry to have bothered you and am glad to see The Post "going animal." Mother Nature isn't such a bad sort after all! S. D. WICKS.

The Supernatural.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The press of July 30 carried the story of Peggy Murphy, of Philadelphia, the picture of whose deceased girl chum, Marie Rourke, has mysteriously appeared on the bedroom mirror of Polly's. Marie, before her death a year ago, was an apt portrait painter. The strange picture is a perfect likeness with the name "Marie" inscribed under it. After two weeks it is slowly fading. A number of interested people declare its origin to be supernatural. Father James J. Connolly, of Philadelphia, says their suppositions are unfounded.

Phenomena equally startling are far more rare. The uncommon thing is to find a person who has not had his own unexplainable experience. It is conspicuous that the skeptic in this case is a religious leader who, in common with all Christian leaders, holds the doctrine of immortality as basic. Ministers are particularly skeptical along these lines. Is it because back in history religious leaders were first to practice necromancy to beguile the people? Those who profess and preach a faith in the Hereafter should logically be slowest in challenging seeming proof of it. Ministers complain of the modern attitude toward the church. This attitude might change if the church led out or if it even kept up with the times. Truth itself is progressive.

Prof. Thomas Jay Hudson, in his much quoted "Law of Psychic Phenomena" stated over 30 years ago that those who doubt the existence of the phenomena itself "simply have not seen the evidence." Recently Dr. J. B. Rhine, of Duke University, lectured at the Comos Club before a select group of distinguished scientists and educators, telling them that telepathy and clairvoyance have been definitely proved by exhaustive scientific tests recently conducted at Duke University. Now that science has proved extra-sensory perception, who dares to say where science will stop?

Old Soldier's Memory.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I see by the papers that our illustrious Secretary of State, upon being interviewed as to the position of our country upon the possibility of "filing a protest" with Spain upon its seizure of American capital and manufacturing plants, did not deny such a possibility, but said, by way of counter, "that such protest would be deferred because the immediate pressing demand was the protection of human life."

That's good! We will save a few lives now by taking a few refugees off in battleships (many of them expatriates for many years with never a good word for America except in just such an emergency). Later we will return with millions of the flower of our young manhood and billions of the dollars of our taxpayers to protect the capital of our expatriates and the manufacturing plants of our "wise" captains of finance who, several years ago, disgruntled at the conditions obtaining in the finest and best country in the world, with a great flourish stated to all and sundry that they would take their capital and invest it abroad. They took their factories abroad for cheaper materials, cheaper labor and less overhead and thus deprived this Government of its just taxes on earnings, export, import, etc. Likewise they deprived hundreds of thousands of American workingmen of a chance to earn a livelihood. Who knows, for instance, just how far such policy on the part of these moguls has contributed to the present unfortunate unemployment condition?

These birds of prey have elected to make their beds thus and, having so elected, should be required to lie on them. God forbid that the present Democratic Administration should adopt as its campaign slogan: "He kept us out of war" only to repeat the performance of the former Democratic Administration and put us in the very thick of things within 32 days after re-election! We old soldiers have long memories.

Rents And The Greenbelt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In his usual intellectual style Felix Bruner writes of Greenbelt. It could not be expected that he or any other man would or could cover all aspects of the development.

The occasion, however, appears to be appropriate to ask a question that has been long in my mind: For several years Congress has been making feeble gestures at the rent situation in Washington. Each time it is the same old story—no shortage of houses for rich or poor, rents reasonable and landlords pictured as good Samaritans looking for another (blind) beggar on the road to Jericho to whom they may minister. And yet in the face of these wonderful findings, the Federal Government finds it necessary to spend $7,000,000 out of funds appropriated for relief purposes to provide low rental property for Washington residents.

For the sake of a right and reasonable answer we must keep in mind that Congress did not directly authorize the building of Greenbelt. The President did through the Resettlement Administration and every member of Congress had full knowledge of the undertaking. If Congress found no fault in this man landlord and no shortage in his offerings, why was a remedy permitted to be applied when a Congressional diagnosis showed no sickness of the patient? If Congress is right, why was taxpayers' money permitted to be spent?

The fact that the President was given free rein with relief money is no excuse for Congress to fail in the exercise of its authority, for the granting of authority to the President to use relief funds as he saw fit did not release Congress of responsibility or waive its right to intercede where its judgment had become a matter of record. Congressional silence in this instance is not in accord with Congressional findings. C. B. R.

A Reply To Secretary Ickes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I listened last night to the Nation-wide broadcast broadside of Secretary Harold L. Ickes, in which he claims to be the friend of the "dear down-trodden peepul" and pictured Gov. Landon, of Kansas, as the friend and tool of "Economic Royalists," like Henry Ford and all the other big business men of today, who started from scratch as poor tinkering mechanics or something of the kind. At the start of this century Prince Harold did not so start, but seems to have been born like some other illusory New Deal politicians with a gold spoon in his mouth.

It seems that Prince Harold has thrown "the first stone" in what Chairman Farley said would be "a dirty campaign," and with the stone a lot of personal mud. Since your columns contain his personal attack, may I as one of your daily readers suggest that we take a look at Prince Harold's own write-up of himself? I refer, for instance to that interesting voluminous volume of New Dealers, known as the Congressional Directory for 1936, in which "The Prince," among other things, says of himself, that he was a Republican, that he attended various and sundry National Republican Conventions, also managed Hughes' campaign in 1916, did Y. M. C. A. work during the World War, was born at Winnetka, practiced law for years successfully in Chicago (with economic royalists as clients), now lives at Hayes Manor on Manor road, Chevy Chase, and rode into the New Deal Cabinet as chairman of the Peoples' Traction League.

My understanding, from Gov. Landon's frank and free-from-character-assassination-and-from-personal-vituperation acceptance speech, was that he admitted that, in spite of his better judgment, owing to the emergency, he tried co-operatively to do what teamwork he could with all New Dealers and even "Hot Oil Ickes," just as long as he could, and until all their Federal foolishness got so bad, so wasteful and so recklessly experimental and their real purposes so partisanly political that his common sense and conscience made him critical.

To me Gov. Landon's attitude seems a patriotic and practical statesman's attitude. It also seems to me ungrateful and the part of an ingrate for Prince Harold, from his manor on Manor Road to turn on the Kansas Governor for having tried to co-operate with him on the "hot oil" proposition that proved too unconstitutional to be put over. And what a contrast Gov. Landon, with his loyalty to his party and its principles and to our Constitution and to our American traditions makes to Secretary Ickes and his preference for the President's class-prejudice acceptance speech and the Prince's own admissions in his write-up of himself in the current Congressional Directory!

The Post Impressionist

This Was Victoria!

Post Office, Thursday.

THE morning was a gray one, in November, the scene a bit of rugged moorland close to the cliffs of the North Riding of Yorkshire, between the Scarborough that Sheridan wrote about and Robin Hood's Bay of the ballads. Your columnist—he wasn't then dreaming of being your columnist—had been sitting late, the night before, reading a newly published study (by a fellow named Lytton Strachey) of that determined and demure lady who was England's Queen from 1837 to 1901 and, for a quarter-century, India's Empress.

Across the nearest hillock came the baying of hounds, then the hounds themselves—ears flapping, tails streaming—and then all the horsemen, and especially the horsewomen, of the Staintendale Hunt. At the head of the riders was a familiar figure: that of the well-named Ida Sitwell, daughter of the old Earl of Londesborough, over at Raincliffe Wood. She always took the lead early.

Nevertheless, that morning she had a close competitor, a gangling, hair-flying lass, the neck of whose mount was forced to Lady Ida's near stirrup—not graceful then; the small personification of the madness of the chase. You would have said that this young hoyden cared for nothing else in the world. You would have declared that this child had vowed her life to Diana. You would have sworn that the girl would never read a book, much less write one.

She was Edith Sitwell, the sister of Osbert, who has puzzled even the American interpreters of contemporary English verse—the sister, too, of Sacheverell, whom those interpreters hesitate to mention, because they don't know how to pronounce his name. Now Edith has written her fifteenth book; Houghton-Mifflin published it on Monday: "Victoria of England," acclaimed abroad the best biography of that monarch since Strachey's—to the Post-Impressionist's way of thinking, in many respects much better, much more searching, than the often unconvincingly clever Strachey's.

To say that no biography of Victoria can escape judgment by the standard of that earlier volume is to pay a quite proper tribute to the elder author's high talent. If you want Palmerston's policies made easy, at as high a sacrifice of verity as Will Durant makes who he makes Spinoza easy, Strachey is the book for you. It is the book for you, if you want the same facile misinterpretation of two such different persons as the cumbersome Gladstone and the nimble Dizzy. If you want a biography that deserves reading chiefly because it is brilliantly rash, turn back to Strachey.

For most other reasons, however, it will be well worth your while to turn forward to Edith Sitwell.

It will be well to turn forward to her if you want to see Victoria the woman instead of merely Victoria the queen. It will be better so to turn if you have a..y desire to learn Victorian England—not along its veneer (though that is here deftly displayed), but its depths—not alone its fashions, but its passions—beyond the West End, Whitechapel and, up there, Manchester and Leeds and the horrors of the industrial revolution.

When dealing with personalities, Miss Sitwell is quite as intensely personal as even the present-day reader could ask her to be. She knows all Victoria's shortcomings—many more than Strachey hinted—and none of them is spared. Miss Sitwell also is daring; if she wasn't, she wouldn't be a Sitwell. There is as much wit as Strachey could master, and a far finer irony:

"The Queen of England, even in youth, had no beauty as the world knows it. She was a little homely being without loveliness of coloring or features, but she had a speaking voice like that of a bird in spring, an enchanting and gay laugh, and an amazing grace . . .

"On the other hand, how great, how transcendent, was the beauty of Albert! Every day the Queen noticed fresh causes for admiration—that 'lovely mouth,' the 'delicate moustachios and slight, but very slight, whiskers.'"

We are no longer startled by the old rumor that Victoria's favorite poet was Longfellow, her favorite novelist Marie Corelli!

But Miss Sitwell applies a similar knowledge and an equal sincerity to her delineation of the Queen's essential greatness. And those same qualities are still more vivid and valuable when the author comes to paint into her background all the sociological panorama of which Strachey had no realization.

It is a long way from here, in time, to that November morning on the Yorkshire moors and the gamine digging her heels in her horse's flanks, to beat her mother in the race after the Staintendale Hounds—but Miss Sitwell has now bridged a longer time. One of the most modern among moderns has breathed the old life into the old bones of that era at which moderns best love to jeer. The least Victorian of writers has written one of the most understanding histories of Victoria and her epoch.

Mantle of Long

If the mantle of the late Huey Long seemed a trifle frayed about the edges when the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith pulled it around him like a fascinator and stood forth before the Cleveland convention of the Old Folks' Party, the explanation might be found in Louisiana. The fight for the mantle of Senator Long has been the most spirited battle for a mantle since the late William Jennings Bryan wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and lay him down to pleasant dreams in Dayton, Tenn. In the scuffle Mr. Bryan's mantle was reduced to lint, hardly recognizable to the generation which had known him as a national leader, a politican, liberal and statesman.

In the case of Huey Long the fight was on before the obsequies were over, and the Rev. Mr. Smith, by reason of his advantageous position as eulogist and political chaplain of the dictorial movement, enjoyed first grab.

If Huey had lived and prospered and if the Rev. Mr. Smith had kept his place he might have come on to be Minister of the Department of Religion in the totalitarian government of the Kingfish. But Huey, being dead, could no longer maintain discipline and the Rev. Mr. Smith could speak freely, quoting what the dead leader was said to have said to him.

• • • •

A bit unseemly, if you insist, this haste to snatch the mantle of a beloved chief while eyes were still red from weeping, but Huey was surrounded by ambitious men.

The Rev. Mr. Smith apparently has made off with the biggest individual fragment of the mantle of Huey Long. He does not enjoy very high political standing in Louisiana, being a Northerner who does not speak the language of the country, so the Rev. Mr. Smith got out and hustled in other fields, while the native politicians of the order remained on the home grounds, content to discredit him there.

This they have been attempting to do of late, and if a transcript of two radio addresses on the subject is authentic they are using the master's own idiom on the one they call the Upstart.

Earle Christenberry, who was Huey's secretary and much deeper in his confidence than Smith, delivered an oration to the faithful in which he denounced the preacher as merely a paid promoter of the movement at $650 a week, which he claimed to have paid himself with his own money at times when Huey Long was broke. He also accused Smith of approaching him, before Huey was buried, with a proposal that they take over the Share-the-Wealth business, with Smith on the outside making speeches and Christenberry on the inside running the office.

• • • •

"Realizing what was in the air," he said, "I protected in the Patent Office both Share-Our Wealth and Share-the-Wealth Societies merely to assume continuance of the movement as Huey Long intended. The newspapers last January carried my announcement that I was turning over to Mrs. Long the patents and copyrights to the Share-Our-Wealth movement. Wasn't that the proper thing to do? Didn't she inherit all that belonged to the late Senator?

This aspect of a political movement or party—that of private property subject to conveyance by will or presumably by sale for cash on the line—is something new in the rough-and-tumble of partisan movements.

True, parties have been sold out before, as both Democrats and Republicans will allege with vigor and some justification, but never in the sense that the copyright and the official seals were actually turned over.

If Mr. Christenberry speaks true, then it would seem that Mrs. Long, as sole proprietor of the movement, together with its title and an undefined quantity of votes, holds the power to repudiate Mr. Smith and make him take down the old firm's sign.

It is unfortunate that the press does not enjoy the freedom of expression that Louisiana politicians use in discussing issues and personalities.

• • • •

Under the limitations it is impossible to quote effectively from the Honorable Maurice Gatlin, attorney-at-law and confidant of Huey. Mr. Gatlin speaks the rugged language of the master, who mentioned one night the louse in Daniel Boone's eyebrow which Dan'l mistook for a 'possum up a tree and fired on repeatedly without effect.

A vigorous speech, salted with the homely metaphors of the puzzled unfortunates in the back country who constitute the stock, fixtures and good will of a privately owned political party, protected by copyright and patent.

Probably when the fight is over and the rivals have finished telling the truth about one another, which they know so well, Huey Long's mantle, too, will be reduced to lint. It was his own mantle, anyway, and his proudest possession and they should have let him wear it to the grave.

Navy Program Biggest Since World War Days

Eruption of Political 'Danger Spots' Has Impelled U. S. to Begin One of Largest Building Operations, Long Held in Abeyance.

By Joseph H. Baird.

Copyright, 1936, by United Press.

The eruption of political "danger spots" around the globe has impelled the United States Navy to begin the largest building program undertaken since World War days—a program long held in abeyance by false hopes of disarmament.

Ninety-five ships of war, totaling 287,195 tons, now either are or soon will be on the ways. In the air, the Navy is preparing to have more than 1,900 airplanes by 1942—perhaps sooner. Two new battleships almost certainly will be started next year. And, freed of treaty restrictions save as to type, it is entirely likely that the naval building program in general may be expanded further in the next Congress.

Meanwhile, the Navy is asking for a modest increase in personnel. Congressional committees seriously are considering building two new dirigibles, despite the fate of the giant Macon and Akron. Far north in the Aleutian Islands and south in the Caribbean area, Navy planes and ships are reconnoitering to discover sites for submarine and seaplane bases.

In short, America is becoming conscious again of the importance of a sea power in a chaotic world.

Earlier Eras Recalled.

The present period in naval history is reminiscent of two earlier eras when the eyes of the public turned toward the sea. One was at the end of the last century when, following Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila Bay, the "White Fleet" became a symbol of growing empire. The second was in 1916. Then, alarmed by Europe's challenge to the American doctrine of "freedom of the seas" (a challenge extended by the Allies as well as the Central powers), Congress authorized a program of 143 ships.

When war broke out in Europe in 1914, the United States found itself in the position of the world's third ranking naval power. The leading nations, in tonnage, had:

Great Britain	2,157,850
Germany	951,713
United States	765,133
France	688,840
Japan	519,640
Italy	285,480
Russia	270,861
Austro-Hungary	221,526

The war vastly changed the fortunes of these nations at sea. When peace came, America and Britain were virtually equal as naval powers. Had the full American building program been continued, this country soon would have been superior. Japan, too, emerged stronger. France and Italy maintained approximately their same positions as fourth and fifth ranking powers. But Germany, Russia and Austro-Hungary emerged virtually impotent.

Naval Race Averted.

Just after the war a naval race among the three leading sea powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—appeared imminent. Statesmen in Washington and London, believing this rivalry was a menace to the period of perpetual peace that some of them then envisaged, called a conference here to limit building. After long negotiations, the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy agreed their battleships and aircraft carriers should be limited on a ratio of 5-5-3-1.75-1.75, respectively. Nine years later, in London, the first three powers also limited for five years cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Peace at sea appeared secure; naval rivalry, save in a limited sphere between France and Italy, seemed ended.

Five years later all had changed. Japan and Italy refused to sign any treaty extending the London agreement. The United States, Great Britain and France—largely as the result of the policy of the other two—could do nothing more than to agree, and that with copious reservations, to keep their ships to a stated size. Except for heavy cruisers, all nations now are free to build as many vessels as their purses and policies dictate.

U. S. Fell Far Behind.

During this 15-year "noble experiment" in amity at sea, the United States fell far behind its allotted strength. In the decade after the Washington conference, it constructed little new tonnage—eight heavy cruisers, ten light cruisers and three destroyers. Two battleships, two aircraft carriers and forty-one submarines also were completed, but virtually all this tonnage was started or authorized during World War days.

Three years ago the United States Navy had reached a point where experts considered it definitely weaker than that of Great Britain and some even contended that it was inferior to that of Japan, most of whose tonnage was new.

Then began a series of events which made Congress "navy conscious." Japan, ignoring America's entreaties to respect the nine-power pact, which it had signed in connection with the naval treaty, guaranteeing China's sovereignty, marched into Manchuria. Even more dangerous from the American viewpoint, it seized virtual control of the international port of Shanghai. American ships stood off the "bund." It appeared for days that some provocative incident might incite war. Japan, meanwhile, began to increase its naval appropriations, started an economic penetration of the Philippines and announced what amounted to a "Monroe Doctrine" for the Far East.

Japanese Withdrew.

Later, the Japanese withdrew from the London Naval Conference and announced a policy of parity with other nations on the sea. Numerical parity with Japan, from the viewpoint of the Navy Department, means American inferiority in the event of a Far Eastern war because the U. S. Navy must operate from a base of supplies 7,000 miles away. The 5-3 ratio was considered to be one of parity in Oriental waters.

Still later, the navy general board saw Great Britain weaken in its policy of opposition to Mussolini's Ethiopian adventure because its fleet was not sufficient to support the measures of the foreign office.

These political considerations, combined with the advent to the Presidency of a former Assistant Secretary of the Navy who was deeply interested in the fleet, explain America's present building program. It is one designed to bring the Navy to the full strength allotted it under the Washington and London treaties by 1941.

The building programs of the three leading powers today are:

	U.S.	Brit.	Japan
Battleships	0	2	0
Aircraft carriers	3	2	2
Cruisers (heavy)	2	0	0
Cruisers (light)	9	16	4
Destroyers	63	35	20
Submarines	18	11	8
Totals	95	66	34

At present the standing of the three navies, in number of ships, is:

	U.S.	Brit.	Japan
Battleships	15	15	9
Aircraft carriers	4	6	4
Cruisers (heavy)	17	19	14
Cruisers (light)	10	36	22
Destroyers	192	177	102
Submarines	86	54	62
Totals	324	307	213

Comparisons Drawn.

Although at present the U. S. Navy has more ships in commission than any other naval officers point out that this does not lead to the conclusion that it is the strongest. This is true, they say, because of the American strength only 94 ships totaling 749,145 tons are "under age," whereas Great Britain has 157 vessels of 897,258 tons and Japan 150 ships of 373,589 in this classification. An "under age" ship is one which has not passed its period of maximum usefulness.

Recent years have brought a change not only in American naval strength but also in naval policy. Until post-World War days, the Navy's eyes were turned primarily toward the Atlantic. Now they are directed toward the Pacific. This never has been officially admitted, but it is amply attested by the fact that the "battle fleet," the main force of the United States fleet, is kept in the Pacific, while the "scouting force," a lighter unit, is stationed in the Atlantic.

Pacific naval problems are vaster and more complex than those of the Atlantic due to its broader scope and the consequent lengthening of lines of communication.

Gangster's Body Found In Trunk in Vacant Lot

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Trussed in a self-strangulation knot and stabbed 48 times with an icepick, the body of William Hessler, 31, a police character, was found in a trunk which had been tossed into a Brooklyn lot today.

Police, recalling that the body of John Bazzano, Pittsburgh night club owner, had been found four years ago in similar circumstances, attributed the crime to gangland vengeance.

Hessler had been arrested twice, once in June, 1933, on a charge of attempt extortion, and again in January, 1935, accused of kidnaping. He was discharged on both occasions.

Hearing On Appeal.

("Lawyers and golfers are agog over a recent decision of a Pennsylvania court in a case where a golfer's ball hit a caddie standing 6 feet ahead of the tee and 30 to the right. The court held the golfer guilty of negligence and emphasized the fact he had never taken lessons to perfect his game."—News item.)

Q—Just how did you come to hit a caddie not in your line of flight?

A—How was I to know what my line of flight would be? I'm just a businessman golfer.

Q—Did the caddie make any outcry?

A—No.

Q—When did you first know there had been an accident?

A—When I went to look for the lost ball and found I also had a lost caddie.

• • • •

Q—After he recovered his senses did he say anything?

A—Yes. He asked, "Why didn't you tell me you had been reading a book on correct golfing and I would have stood 6 feet behind you and 50 feet to the left?"

Q—And did you make any reply?

A—I said, "Cut the sarcasm. That was one of the best drives I had this year."

• • • •

Q—What is your average drive?

A—I usually get about 300 Scotch yards.

Q—What is a Scotch yard?

A—About two feet.

• • • •

Q—How is your short game?

A—I just told you about my short game.

Q—No, we were discussing your drive.

A—My drive is my short game!

• • • •

Q—Now, then, when you realized that your drive had gone off at right angles and in the wrong direction what was your first thought?

A—My first thought was whether my opponent would say, "Okay, Gideon; shoot another without penalty."

Q—Did he?

A—He forgot the "without penalty" part of it.

• • • •

Q—The lower court has held you were negligent in driving the ball off at right angles.

A—The court is in error. I was never more careful about my stance, swing and form. That's what made it go cockeyed.

Q—The lower body also held that your wildnesss was due to your failure to take lessons.

A—I had about 300 reasons for not taking a golf lesson.

Q—What were they?

A—The other 299 members of my club!

Q—They all took lessons?

A—Yes, sir; and when they got on any green in eleven they thought they were six under par.

• • • •

Q—One more question: What, in your opinion, would be the best way to guard against injuries to caddies? Would you have them stand further than 30 feet to the right or left of a tee?

A—There is only one place where a caddie is practically safe on a golf course today.

Q—And where is that?

A—Directly in front of the man who is driving and on a straight line between the golfer and the green!

Pulitzer Poems

By William Lyon Phelps.

Robert P. Tristram Coffin.

I do not know who were the judges who recommended the award of the Pulitzer prize in poetry this year, but I should like to congratulate them and the public and the lovers of poetry for their selection. The award for the best volume of original American verse for 1935-1936 was given to Robert P. Tristram Coffin for his book, "Strange Holiness," published by the Macmillan Co., New York.

• • • •

Robert Peter Tristram Coffin was born in Maine in 1892, took his B. A. with highest honors from Bowdoin, where Longfellow was graduated, was Rhodes scholar at Oxford, is professor of English at Wells College, introduced there many good methods in teaching and learning, and has found time to write much original verse.

"Strange Holiness" is a slender volume of about a hundred pages. I have read it through, and I do not know when I have read a new book of verse that contains a higher percentage of gold. Every poem is good, every poem is worth reading, and there are many poems exquisite in expression and ineffably beautiful in thought.

• • • •

This is a book of healing, it is the revelation of simple and familiar sights and sounds in nature, it is the interpretation of life on an American farm. I must urge my readers to buy a copy of this book and read it attentively. It is genuine poetry, it is the Real Thing, and its influence, like that of all true art, will be both refreshing and stimulating. I shall never forget what the great Irishman, A. E., told me. He said "True poetry is always the poetry of transfiguration." These poems illustrate that. The poet takes an object or an idea, and transfigures it with his imagination into something beautiful and universal.

Here is the middle stanza from the beautiful poem, "Country Church."

For the church he went to when
He was eight and nine and ten,
And good friends with the trees and sun,
Was a small white country one.
The caraways' lace parasols
Brushed the clapboards of its walls.
The grass flowed round it east and west,
And one blind had a robin's nest.
Before the sermon was half over,
It turned fragrance of red clover.

United Rubber Workers.

Howard Is Cited.

The International Typographical Union, whose president, Charles P. Howard, is secretary of the C. I. O., was not suspended. Instead, the union was called upon to explain why its president was engaging in dual organization activities. The union has never officially sanctioned his activities. Similar action was taken in connection with the hat and millinery division of the Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers.

By its action in suspending the United Mine Workers of America, the federation council in effect suspended its own president. Under the constitution of the federation, an official must be a member of a union in good standing. After September 5, the United Mine Workers, of which Green is a member, will no longer be a part of the federation. Green indicated he may obtain a card in another union, "possibly the Newspaper Guild."

The council's announcement was emphatic in stating that the order had no connection with any controversy over the question of craft and industrial unions.

Assails Dual Union.

"No organization," the statement said, "will ever be suspended from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor because its members believe in or advocate the acceptance of either the industrial or craft form of organization, nor are any of the organizations which hold membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization asked to withdraw their indorsement or espousal of industrial unionism.

"They are not asked to give up industrial unionism. Instead, they are asked to give up a dual union. They may choose whether they will remain with the American Federation of Labor or cast their lot with the dual organization. The decision of the executive council means they cannot belong to both organizations at the same time."

The council expressed its consciousness of "the grave situation existing within the family of organized labor because of the breach which has been created through the formation of the Committee for Industrial Organization."

"Those who split and divide labor through the creation of a dual movement must accept responsibility for their action," it said.

"When ambitious men form a dual, rival organization for the purpose of forcing the acceptance of minority rule within the American Federation of Labor, the executive council decides they cannot do so within and as a part of the American Federation of Labor."

The division in the ranks of labor is far-reaching in its implications. So long as it continues it will be impossible for labor to present the united front that has made it increasingly powerful for the last half century. The division apparently means that there are to continue two rival labor organizations, each bidding for the membership of workers.

There also is a political implication. Besides heading the C. I. O., now active in organizing the steel and other mass production industries, Lewis is actively campaigning for the re-election of President Roosevelt. The federation itself has taken no stand in the campaign, but William Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters Union and active opponent of Lewis within the federation, has been appointed head of a labor committee of the Republican Party.

Organized After Rally.

The C. I. O. sprang up following the convention of the federation last November. Lewis expressed dissatisfaction with what he termed the failure of the federation to organize the big industries. He was joined by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and by Dubinsky, both powerful figures in the labor movement.

Dubinsky, who has been in Europe, was present yesterday for the first time since the council began consideration of the suspension. He called his vote against suspension "an expression of my personal conviction and in conformity with sentiments of the organization which I represent, that this punitive action on the part of the executive council is a blow to unity in the ranks of American organized labor, which is bound to cause an irreparable amount of damage and inflict untold harm on masses of wage earners everywhere."

Dubinsky said he had made an earnest effort to have action postponed. He suggested that the question be put before the convention in Tampa.

Whether the suspended unions will attempt to take seats in the convention is yet to be decided. Lewis would not discuss the question. The procedure would be for the suspended unions to apply for credentials. A credentials committee of three, appointed by Green, would pass upon the request and report to the convention. Lewis would not disclose whether his organization, instead of attempting to obtain recognition in the federation meeting, would hold a convention of its own.

They May Have to Take a Walk

Drought Worst in 100 Years

Post. Kincer said the Weather Bureau has authentic records dating back a century, and nothing like the present dry spell ever has been recorded. Prior to the 1934 and 1930 droughts, the nearest comparable period ranged from 1886 to 1894—a cycle relieved only by intermittent good growing seasons.

Kincer said the West obviously is in the grip of another dry cycle, but whether it will end with this drought is beyond scientific ability to forecast. Statements in some quarters that wide western stretches may be "going back to desert" if the cycle continues, never have received any encouragement at the Agricultural Department.

Fourth Dry Month.

Wallace repeated yesterday that "it is a mistake to arrive at any hard and fast conclusions on such a trend."

July made the fourth consecutive month with but little rain in the interior valleys and the Great Plains.

"The first four months of the present growing season," Kincer said, "have been the driest of record in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and the second driest in Ohio, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Kansas and Montana. The previous driest April to July—in North Dakota, in 1934—had 60 per cent more rain than these fourth months in 1936.

"In 1934 a large area in the upper Mississippi Valley did not suffer greatly from lack of rain and by the middle of August, or a little later, the drought was materially relieved."

Informed of the Weather Bureau analysis, Secretary Wallace said he did not dispute the accuracy of their statement, but expressed the belief that a favorable balance between feed and livestock may place the farmers in a better position to withstand the drought than in 1934.

Delaying Appraisal.

Wallace said the committee is delaying its appraisal of the full extent of the drought until the crop reporting board makes its monthly estimates August 10. He said the situation is improved by better hay and oat crops, lower livestock numbers, with much of the barren corn stalks available for feed.

A week ago, the Administration's farm chief said that the next ten days of rain or dry weather would determine the fate of the corn crop. With three days of that period remaining, Wallace said yesterday he was encouraged to believe that last minute rains in some sections would do "some good."

Wallace again declined to speculate on the possibility of large importations of corn from Argentina and wheat from Canada to relieve this country's shortage, other than to point out that 34,000,000 bushels of wheat were imported last year, and this year's crop is shorter.

The Government in 1934 lifted all tariff barriers on hay, to provide feed for starving livestock, but Wallace recalled that this was done under special authority of Congress, and he doubted whether the power still existed.

The President, nevertheless, has authority to cut tariffs 50 per cent. Wallace said the possibility has not been discussed.

Cattle purchases by the Government, pushed actively Monday and Tuesday, have been checked temporarily due to slower offerings, and may not be resumed until next Monday, he said.

Denies Fact a Factor.

Wallace slapped at remarks by John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, blaming lower cattle prices on the Canadian reciprocal tariff treaty. Hamilton in a speech at Denver said he did not have to tell cattle men that beef prices started dropping after cattle came over the border in double former numbers, as a result of the treaty.

"If Hamilton said that, a displayed the intelligence farmers would expect of a corporation attorney," Wallace said.

Wallace was asked if he thought Western farmers would feed "dollar corn" to hogs. So long as hogs remain at a price ten times the price of corn, Wallace said the trade thought it was feasible.

Although official estimates of corn damage must wait on the August 10 report, it is reported that the United States corn output may be more than 900,000,000 bushels short of normal production. The world corn crop shows about the same loss.

At Hyde Park, President Roosevelt was keeping in touch with the drought situation through conferences with his aids. He is expected to decide tomorrow on the time of his departure for a tour of the drought section.

Philco Says R. C. A. Stole Its Secrets

New York, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A charge that women employes were taken to night clubs and offered expensive liquor in an attempt to get them to reveal trade secrets was contained in a suit filed today by the Philco Radio Corporation, of Philadelphia, against the Radio Corporation of America.

Philco asked in its Supreme Court suit that R. C. A. be enjoined from alleged illegal and unfair trade practices, that damages be paid and that information, allegedly already obtained, be returned.

The suit charged that Charles A. Hahne, vice president of the RCA Manufacturing Co., and Lawrence Kestler, jr., an associate, entered the Philco plant and became acquainted with girl employes.

The suit alleged the men provided the girls from time to time with expensive and lavish entertainment at hotels, restaurants and night clubs in Philadelphia and vicinity.

Coast Guard Abandons Hunt for Ship, 3 Aboard

St. Petersburg, Fla., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Coast Guard abandoned today its search for the 38-foot schooner Ketchum, overdue here six days, after concluding the small ship sank in a tropical storm with its captain and crew of three.

Seven Coast Guard cutters and a plane from the local base have searched fruitlessly for the Ketchum since Friday.

Aboard the ship were Capt. T. Halvorsen, skipper; John Steppatt, K. G. Johnson and Gus Gergstrand.

'Velocity Dollars' Started in Alberta

Edmonton, Alberta, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The Province of Alberta today began its experiment with "velocity dollars" by distributing them as wages to persons on public works projects.

It was the attempt of a government—elected on a promise to bring "social credit" to Alberta—to keep its pledge. The "velocity dollars" are a modified form of scrip used by many American communities during the depression. Friends and foes of the Aberhart government predict it will stand or fall with the success or failure of the scheme.

Labor Will Rise To 1940 Power, Author Predicts

Louis Adamic Calls Lewis 'Most Potent Man' in Union Movement.

Within the next four years labor will become a real political power in the United States, prophesied Louis Adamic, whose book, "Dynamite," vividly reviews the whole range of workers' organization activities, in an interview yesterday.

The hand on the throttle in this new dominating force in politics will be that of John L. Lewis, Adamic said. He characterized the president of the United Mine Workers as "the most potent man labor has now, or perhaps ever has had."

He said that the labor movement today is in the first stages of its development, and quite overshadows in national significance this year's Presidential campaign.

The young author was studying figures and newspaper clippings on naturalization and immigration at the Department of Labor when he paused for an interview yesterday. He was working up material for a forthcoming magazine article on the alien situation.

Labor as a topic is broad and complex, the man who has written a book, a novel and numerous articles on the subject, said. However, certain things are clear.

Difference in Movements.

One thing is the difference between the mass labor movement, and those of one and two generations ago. The present leadership is realistic, while that of the past was romantic.

The mass labor movement that Lewis is no wleading had its beginnings in the United States in the Knights of Labor organization of 60 years ago, Adamic pointed out.

"But the Knights were dreamers. Terrence Powderly, their leader, made fine orations on the great contributions of labor to society. However, he never got beyond the speeches.

"Later on the International Workers of the World tried to organize the unskilled laborer—and where the Knights of Labor were purely political, the I. W. W. organization was purely industrial.

"Now Lewis is leading both forces—political as well as industrial, and while I am convinced his ideals are those o fthe earlier mass leaders, he is going to get farther because of his realistic approach. He is not adverse to using the instrumentalities at hand."

Adamic pointed to great social changes, which make Lewis' type of broad, industrial union now workable, while two generations ago it was necessarily only a "dream."

"Times Are Changed.

"Our vast amount of unemployment makes my observation obvious," he said. "In the old days there were many opportunities for the working man to raise his social standing to that of a middle class citizen. He could save a little money and buy a grocery store, for example. He was more interested in that, than in improving his condition as a steel or mine worker.

"Today that kind of opportunity is almost gone. The working man is more inclined to support the movement that may bring him more of the benefits of society."

The author described trade unionists as the "labor aristocrats." Their craft unions, now that the unionization of the mass of workers is the problem, are no longer useful.

John L. Lewis, whose Committee on Industrial Organization move to organize steel workers on the industrial union basis threatens to split the American Federation of Labor, knows this, Adamic said.

"I think he wants to be thrown out of the A. F. of L. He wants to be free, because he feels he can get along better outside the organization.

"Lewis is dynamic, and well integrated as a person. He will be an enormous power by 1940."

Karpis Grins at Crowd; On Train for Alcatraz

Ogden, Utah, Aug. 5 (AP).—Alvin Karpis acted "like a man on a picnic" as a railway prison car taking him to Alcatraz Island Prison switched through Ogden yards today.

With him were 19 other Federal prisoners headed from Leavenworth to Alcatraz. Karpis flattened his nost against a window, then arose, grinning at curious railroad men.

The kidnaper revealed he was handcuffed. He smiled broadly. A guard strolled up.

"He's there, all right," the guard said. "Acts like he's going on a picnic."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Correspondent Writes Open Letter to "Twenty-Three," Giving Her Benefit of His Opinions.

DEAR TWENTY-THREE: The most important consideration in your dilemma is the effect on your child's future of branding him with an ugly word by revealing the truth. You were courageous enough to build up a protective fiction for him. Are you brave enough to continue it? To tell the truth is a relief—a luxury—for the telling shifts part of the burden. One becomes less vulnerable. It is the modern way, sensible and selfish, if only the world were modern enough for such truth.

* * * *

The day may come when there will be no such thing as "illegitimate" children, but only "illegitimate" parents. But that day has not yet dawned for American children. Little Soviets are luckier. Do you want your child to be without legal rights? If your fiance or the child's father would legally adopt your boy, then and then only might you marry with a clear conscience.

* * * *

Don't worry over questions you might have to answer at a marriage license bureau. Go and get a blank and take it home and study it. The chances of disinterested persons checking up on what you choose to file away in the archives is indeed remote. What you have to ponder is how many persons you know and love would be hurt by your self-indulgence in truth. Whatever fact or fiction is filed away becomes the permanent record. People are variable and unpredictable. Legal records are not changed unless contested suits are won.

* * * *

You may never have encountered the cruelty and malice inherent in many "good and blameless" persons. But blood relations and friends can be unbelievably vindictive toward an erring of the tribe. And when one of these self-righteous ones spitefully pours out the searing truth, namely, that "one's father was not his father," the damage done is out of all proportion to the fact. The informer usually restrains his sadism until the child has reached an age of understanding the indictment: an age when his emotions are delicate instruments of torture; an age before experience and knowledge of the world makes possible any balanced sense of values. Useless then to tell him of the illustrious company he joins: Leonardo da Vinci, Erasmus, Boccaccio, the last royal governor of New Jersey (son of Benjamin Franklin); the first Secretary of the United States Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, and other giants in every field of endeavor. The youngster is irreparably hurt.

* * * *

If there is any way to protect your boy, do so. The child's father must be a responsible person. Why not consult with him, either directly or indirectly, as to the best way of protecting his son for life? Legalize his status before you marry. You can avoid publicity when you marry by going to some small town in another State where the only public notice would appear under vital statistics. Whatever you do, think first of your son. Plan for him. Remember he can't choose or plan for himself. Don't confide in others, except your fiance. And may the fates be kind to you and bring you an extra share of happiness. CALPURNIUS.

The Questions Asked.

DEAR CALPURNIUS: "Twenty-Three's" question, as I understood it, was how much truth, if any, she should tell the man who had asked her to marry him and whom she wishes to marry. And also, what are her chances for taking the hurdle of marriage and landing safely on the other side with the story of her past untold and unsuspected.

Now, if she had completely severed all communications and negotiations with the child's father from the hour of her child's birth, and had taken an entirely fictitious name (instead of one belonging to the old sweetheart) for herself and the child in embarking on the role of widow (and, I may add, widow by death and not by divorce) she might have been in a better position to safeguard her secret for life.

As matters stand, however, telling the truth to her would-be husband is not, in my opinion, so much of a luxury as a stark necessity. Unless she tells the truth, she must go on piling lie on lie until her inventiveness either exhausts or betrays itself.

* * * *

Your recommendation that she be guided by the advice of the child's father in this dilemma seems sound enough. But I doubt that she could avert newspaper publicity relative to her marriage simply by having the ceremony performed in some small town in another State. After all, if she is a social favorite in the town in which she lives, the fact that she has returned to town with a husband will not escape the notice either of her friends or the newspaper reporters. As for your suggestion that the child's status be legalized before she marries, prefaced by your statement that his status can be legalized only by his being adopted by either his natural father or his stepfather-to-be, isn't it a little complicated and unworkable?

Why should a man adopt the son of a woman he proposed to marriage, before marriage; or rather, how could he explain such an extraordinary move to the satisfaction of the curious? And since the child's actual father has kept himself so remote from the situation, to all outward appearances, what possible explanation could be given for his adopting the boy now? Or how would the mother explain her consent to such a move?

No doubt the situation can be worked out in a manner to save the face of all, but only if this troubled young mother is accorded the sympathetic protection and co-operation of an unusually gallant husband. And such a man would need to know the truth in order to deal intelligently with the problem. However, as I pointed out before, she should be very sure of her man before she makes him her confidante; and if she feels any great reluctance about telling him, it will probably be better for her not to do so, and also, not to marry him.

Tells Ways to Win in Business

MISS DESMA RENNER,
who has an extensive background of experience as an employe and who has trained thousands of women for office work, tells how to obtain a job and earn a promotion.

Study Future Boss to Land Job, Teacher Advises Applicants

What to Say and How to Dress Set Forth by Miss Desma Renner, Vocational School Faculty Member.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE WOMAN who wants a job and the one who yearns for a raise could learn a lot from Miss Desma Renner, faculty member of the Hadley Vocational School of St. Louis, who has trained thousands of persons.

In Washington to spend several weeks, Miss Renner is now teaching at Strayer College, where yesterday after a class she revealed some of her ideas on getting ahead in the business world.

"The first thing, of course, is to land the job," she said. "But that is not so difficult for the person who knows how to dress, what to say and what not to say."

Since first impressions are never more important than when they apply to employers, Miss Renner offered these points of advice to the woman making an application for work.

1. Wear a dark, tailored dress with hat, gloves and shoes that harmonize.

2. Be well-groomed. Pay particular attention to finger nails, hair and make-up. Wear lipstick (but not too much), rouge (but not too much) and mascara or eye-shadow. "Most employers are prejudiced against jewelry and red nails; so leave off your ear-rings, bracelets and beads, and have colorless polish on your nails," she said.

Four Types of Bosses.

3. Study your employer to determine what type of person he is before you talk too much. "I have found in my experience that most bosses can be divided into four classes," said Miss Renner. "The first is the conservative-conscience person, who takes in the applicant at a glance, wastes no words, knows exactly what he is going to ask and what answers he expects. With him, there is only one way to success—speak up. Waste no words in reply and offer no comments that aren't requested.

"The second type is garrulous. Does almost all the talking. Tells you about the whole set-up in his office, and expects you to listen intently. With him, the best way is to say "yes" when you have the chance, and to appear very much interested in what he tells you.

"The third is the 'oack-slapper,' who greets you with the 'long-lost-brother-returning' attitude, and listens sympathetically while you divulge the story of your life. You have to watch yourself with him, in order not to tell too much. Confine your 'confessions' to what concerns him as a prospective employer and keep your private life to yourself.

"The fourth, and last type of executive, is the one who hesitates for want of words. Seems to not know exactly what to ask. You will be tempted to supply his words, and answer his questions before he asks them. That's the worst thing you can do. Your role is to sit quietly, and let him fumble through somehow until all the usual questions are asked. Employers of this type are invariably annoyed when any applicant takes the lead in the conversation."

Answer Definitely.

4. Answer all questions definitely. Tell exactly how much preparation you have had, whether you have had any experience, and why you believe you can handle the job. But don't rush away without trying to "leave the gate open," so that you can come back. In concluding an interview, an applicant might say, "I shall hope to hear you have decided upon me, as I am sure I can do that work and that I would enjoy working here," or "When will your decision be made?" or, if told to return for an answer or to see someone else in the organization, she should try to make a definite engagement by saying, 'Shall I come in about this time tomorrow?'"

Once the job is obtained, Miss Renner believes there are only two ways to succeed—"either by being a genius or possessing the will to work harder than other employes or by using the mind instead of the muscle."

Her years of experience in office work has convinced Miss Renner that "women in the same office with men had as well accept the fact that nine times out of ten they will be victims of discrimination. But grumbling about the situation, resenting the unfairness of it, won't help. The only thing for any woman to do is to try to be more efficient than the men with whom she works. Then—and only then—may she hope to reap anything like the rewards they get."

Discussing other points that make for success in business Miss Renner mentioned punctuality, initiative, co-operation with one's associates and the ability to keep quiet. Silence is never so golden, she believes, as when it manifests itself during office hours and afterward—so far as the office and office business is concerned.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

No one of us would willingly invite a surgical operation. We are compelled to submit to them sometimes as a matter of necessity, and the world owes countless lives to the achievements of modern surgery.

Once in a while we discover a vulnerable spot in the achitecture of the human body, and in some persons the abdominal wall is not as firm as it should be. The weakness—if it exists—is usually found at the entrance of the inguinal canals. Should the doorways not fit tightly, lifting or severe coughing may force a loop of bowel downward along one of these channels which lie beneath the fold where the thigh joins the abdomen. If such a condition develops it is called an inguinal hernia.

Old Surgical Problem.

For a long time we have known how to repair this defect surgically, and while it is a fairly efficient method it is not always permanent. In addition, great care is required on the part of the surgeon not to injure the delicate structures that pass through the canal while blocking off the contents of the abdomen.

For more than 100 years attempts have been made to remedy this anatomical fault through the injection of a chemical that would produce just enough inflammation and scar tissue to close the opening. Some of the drugs formerly employed were so destructive that abscesses, peritonitis (inflammation of the peritoneum, the lining of the bowel cavity), and even fatalities occurred. Eventually this method fell into disrepute.

Within the last few years, however, interest in the plan has revived largely because of favorable results in the treatment of varicose veins by injecting some harmless but scar forming solution. Considerable experimental work has finally evolved nonpoisonous substances that will irritate sufficiently but not too much.

Local Anesthetic.

The operation involves first the use of a local anesthetic, which is followed by the injection of approximately one teaspoonful of the solution. After 10 to 15 minutes the patient is generally able to leave the physician's office and return to his work. In most cases injections are given three times each week. On the average 12 are necessary, although some patients may require a longer series. At the conclusion of the treatment every patient should wear a truss, adjusted and fitted carefully by the physician, for at least six weeks. This must be worn day and night, next to the skin.

Garden Fete Manners Like Those Indoors

Many Persons Seemingly Forget Etiquette Same as in Drawing Room.

By Margaret Wallace.

MUCH of Washington's social life centers about the garden this time of year. Clothes, the entertainment of guests, the difference between informality and too much formality in the garden, are all matters to be considered by the hostess or guest.

It is of primary importance that the guest remember that the hostess receiving or entertaining in her garden has simply transferred her drawing room out of doors and the rules of politeness that apply to guests visiting in a house also apply to those visiting in a garden.

Many persons throw cigarette butts and matches about in a garden when they would never think of depositing them anywhere else than in an ash tray in the house.

Uninvited guests in a garden cause even more of an embarrassing situation than uninvited guests in the house.

Guests who would not think of taking flowers out of the vases in the house will gaily pick flowers in the garden. Unless invited to do so, guests in the garden should never touch the flowers or shrubbery. Guests in the garden should not try their ideas of gardening uninvited either. One Washington hostess tells a rueful tale of a woman guest who wanted to improve her garden and "weeded" out all the tender little plants grown from seed especially imported for the hostess.

Query—I invited two of my woman friends to tea in my garden recently. One of them brought a dog and the other brought a child. I have a small garden with no play space. The dog broke two of my most precious zinnia plants. The child took the toy bullfrog from my rock garden and took it home with him. The frog was the gift of a friend and while it is inexpensive I prize it highly. I did not invite either the dog or the child because of the limited space in my small garden. Do you think I can ask my friends not to bring their dog and child the next time they come? Do you think I can ask for the return of the frog?

Answer—Children and dogs who come uninvited are listed under uninvited guests. The next time you invite your friends you can say that the space is so small that you will not be able to invite the child or the dog. You may ask for the frog back.

Query—I wish to give a buffet luncheon on my terrace. My son and daughter wish to give dramatic readings in the garden afterwards. Do you think my guests will be bored? My son and daughter really read very well. Should I have chairs for the guests to sit in to listen or should they be allowed to stand? Some of them may not want to stay. Will it be proper to make it optional with the guests as to whether they stay or not?

Answer—After luncheon you should mention that in a little while your son and daughter are to give dramatic readings. You can tell the guests that chairs have been provided if they care to stay. It will be quite good form for the guests to make an excuse if they do not wish to stay. You should only invite them to luncheon. Guests are expected to leave almost immediately after a luncheon unless the fact that there will be bridge or other entertainment, such as that to be given by your son and daughter, is stated on the invitation. By not mentioning the additional entertainment on your invitation, you allow the guests to make an excuse if they care to.

Query—I have been invited to a luncheon in the garden of a friend. Will sport clothes be proper this time of year or should I wear something dressier?

Answer—As all entertainments at this time of year, especially out of door ones in the day time, are informal, it will be quite proper to wear sport clothes of the type generally known as observer sport clothes. Of course you would not wear a tennis dress or other such active sport costume.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Woman More Fascinating If She Is Exquisitely Perfumed.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

By Mignon.

THERE is no use denying the fact that if a woman is beautiful she is at least a little bit more fascinating if she is exquisitely fragrant. You couldn't get very excited about roses if they had no fragrance. Looking for perfumes that suit you is an interesting something-to-do. The names they give to perfumes these days are enough to excite anybody's imagination. "After all," they say, "it is only the name of a perfume and we can go as far as we like," and they go far.

One that I have discovered recently has not only an intimate name but a come-hither that is not to be questioned. It is distinctly the perfume of a lady. It has much more power and subtlety than these smack-me-down affairs that completely overwhelm you when you sit next to a woman who is doused with one of them and who makes you wish you were about ten miles away from her.

This is the kind of a perfume which, applied to the skin, lasts most satisfactorily. The warmth of the body releases the fragrance and every little while it sneaks up to intrigue you. You can buy it by the dram so that if you want to try it you do not have to take my word about how good it is. For a small amount of money you can get a little and see what it will do for you. My answer is that it will do plenty.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column telephone The Washington Post, National 4200, Branch 323.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"WITH two little boys in the family, you can imagine what our bathroom looks like most of the time. When we moved into this house, the bathroom was very raggle taggle, then with our family adding their havoc, it soon became past overlooking, especially after the little oil heater was left to smoke in there overnight."

She was a worried little brown-eyed woman—rather appealing in appearance because of a dependent manner she had about her. We watched expressions in her face as she continued:

"So I got my husband to help me and we scrubbed the walls and ceilings, then painted them a very nice shade of apple green—a dull-surfaced paint. The woodwork we painted a shiny black and do you know the effect is really good?

"We really didn't think we ought to afford new linoleum for the floor, but we needed it so that we did get it . . . black and white, and it's successful, too. My towels are all coral or else white with deep pink borders—so are the bath mats. I like them against the fresh light green, and the touch of black finishes things off just so. I'm making coral colored curtains, and I may even get a coral shower curtain, though to tell the truth we use the shower so little that it doesn't seem to be absolutely essential.

Evening Wear Luxury Denoted by Brocades

Paris (AP).—Magnificent gold and silver brocades in the latest showings of fall fashions indicate an unusual luxury note for next winter's evening dresses.

Ornamentation in the new Molyneux collection included headdresses of paradise plumes and bird wings. Some styles featured flowers and flower-trims for the hair and heavy, tassel-ended bodice girdles for the evening.

Parents Urged To Curb Anger When Nervous

Children Often Are Scolded Unfairly, Writer Observes.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

MRS. JONES was having one of her bad days. Her head ached and she felt nervous and worn out. The sound of a door slamming or a child shouting made her want to scream, and it seemed to her that everyone and everything was making a concerted effort to plague her and make her feel miserable.

At noon a crisis came. Susan wanted to go to the movies and chose the moment when she was taking a particularly large mouthful to make her request. "No!" her mother snapped. "No girl with such table manners can go anywhere." Then, to the child's further astonishment, mother jumped up from the table, went into her room and slammed the door.

Later Mrs. Jones heard Susan, who was 10, discussing the episode with her younger brother.

"Isn't it funny that we are always naughtiest on the days when mother has a headache?"

Mrs. Jones turned over a new leaf from that moment. If she was too wretched to be self-controlled, she kept out of the way of the children, so as not to vent her feelings on them. So far, they had not realized that their mother and not they were to blame. But the time would come when they would see the truth and then they would cease to respect her judgment.

In the average family, too much of the discipline depends on the momentary feelings of the parent who is administering it. "Dad was good and mad. He's got a lot on his mind just now, so he's pretty quick on the trigger." "Yes, I spoke to father at the wrong moment when he was feeling mean, so of course I got a bawling out."

The children see and play on their parents' weaknesses. The parents are lucky if they take these weaknesses philosophically, and do not despise those who yield to them.

Jellied Beer Cubes Garnish Cold Cuts

There are many interesting and delicious recipes, some old and others new, that depend upon beer for their distinctive flavor. One of the newest recipes to be introduced is jellied beer which is cut in cubes and used to garnish the center of a platter of cold cuts.

To prepare jellied beer cubes proceed as follows: Soften 2 tablespoons of gelatin in ½ cup cold water, then add ¾ cup hot beer. When gelatin is dissolved, add ¾ cup cold beer and ½ teaspoon salt. Pour into shallow square pan and place in refrigerator to set. Serve as suggested above.

Throngs See Horse Show At Glenwood

Capital Residents Are Among Spectators at Sands Estate.

Pageant Features Event; Mrs. Tabb's Wagon Wins First Place.

By Grace Brooks.

A covered wagon, floats and conveyances such as dashed through the streets of Wshington in the gay nineties comprised the pageant which was a feature of the horse show held yesterday on the Glenwood estate of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Sands, near Purcellville, Va. Residents of Washington who are at their summer places near there took boxes and entertained parties of friends at the event, which was for the benefit of the Purcellville Library Fund.

A storm which threatened during the afternoon only interfered with one feature of the program, the auctioning of an old wagon.

Miss Nina Carter Tabb's covered wagon, drawn by a team of oxen and accompanied by a party of "pioneers," was awarded first place in the slow-going division of the pageant. Riding in the wagon were Mrs. Sands and Mrs. H. W. Frost, reading their Bibles. Others in the party were the Misses Janet Harrison and Fanny Nelson Lyon, who took the parts of two young girls; Mrs. John Butler, who walked behind the wagon, singing, and Mrs. Charles Sabin, who led a cow; Mr. Prosser Tabb, Mr. Sabin, Mr. D. H. Tyler and Mr. Sands, who brought up the rear, with their guns, and a colored man, riding a mule with a sack of meal.

Children in Band.

The Middleburg Rhythm Band, composed of 20 children, dressed in white, with Miss Anna Larrick as their leader, was on the float to which second place was awarded in the slow-going division.

Third place went to a group from Purcellville, riding in an ancient Victoria, in which President Grant is said to have ridden on a visit to Loudoun County.

First place in the fast-going division was won by Taylor Hardin, who drove a coach and four mules. Riding with him was Mrs. Hermann Boker. Second place went to Mrs. Raymond Guest's runabout with two mules, driven by Mr. Guest. Mr. W. T. Hulbert's runabout, which he drove, took third place.

Mrs. Whitney Present.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney was an interested spectator and saw her hunters in the ring for the first time this season. She was accompanied by Mrs. H. W. Frost, who also saw her son's horse, Dude Danny, win several blues. Miss Jane Wilbur, of Warrenton, rode the winning horse.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Robey, of Purcellville, the latter originator of the event, entertained at a picnic luncheon on the grounds. Their guests were the judges of the event, Mrs. Julian Keith, of Warrenton; Mr. Courtland H. Smith, of The Plains; Mr. Lodge Bowles, of Boyce; Mrs. J. A. Speers, Mrs. F. H. James, Mr. Jack Russell, Mr. Richard Larrick, Mr. Richard Peach, Mr. Irvin Beavers and Misses Ida May Ball and Leslie James.

Gen. and Mrs. B. H. Fuller, of Hamilton and Washington, the former retired commandant of the Marine Corps, entertained in their box Miss Mary Nichols, of Hamilton.

Others entertaining guests in their boxes were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Everett Delegate and Mrs. H. C. Thompson, the Misses Constance and Nancy Lyon, Mrs. Lillian Wright and Mrs. W. F. Walsh.

Mrs. Conquest Attends.

Mrs. Edwin Conquest and her two young sons, of Richmond, were at the show. Mrs. Conquest is visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Fairfax. They returned to Oakham, Mrs. Fairfax's home, for luncheon, where Dr. and Mrs. Charles Tennant, of Charlottesville, en route to their home from a vacation in Maine, also were entertained.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Sands, on whose course the show was held; Judge J. R. H. Alexander and his two sons, Sam and John Alexander; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hulbert, Miss Catherine Hulbert and Billy Hulbert, jr.; Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Miss Deborah Rood, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Claire Briggs, Mrs. Armory Perkins and Mr. Fred Sanderson, Mr. DeLong Bowman and Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw.

The antique sale attracted the crowds at the noon hour. The call bell used by Abraham Lincoln in the White House brought $25. Mrs. Briggs purchased two valuable paintings. A large silver wedding cake was purchased at the sale and presented to Mr. D. C. Sands.

Envoys Stay Close to D.C. On Vacations

Unsettled Conditions Abroad Spoil Trips for Envoys.

Lieut. Tucci, Attache of Italian Embassy, Soon to Leave.

By Dudley Harmon.

In this summer of fast-moving political events in the countries across the Atlantic, it is a rare ambassador, indeed, who can settle down to a long vacation far from Washington. Coincidental with the establishment in Greece of a dictatorship, comes the news that the Minister of that country, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos, has returned to the Capital from Hot Springs, Va., where he has been sojourning at the Homestead. After a brief stay here, he plans to return there tomorrow.

Although noted for many things, Washington never has been famous for the summer resorts in its vicinity. The water off Newport is far more invigorating than that of Chesapeake Bay, and the mountains of Massachusetts are cooler than the Blue Ridge range, yet for reasons of emergency, diplomatic representatives in this country prefer to vacation within quick call of the Capital. That is one reason the Brazilian Ambassador, Mr. Oswaldo Aranha, and the Chilean Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Trucco, are summering at nearby Bleumont.

In spite of the fact that affairs in this country have been as usual, calm throughout the summer, the Belgian Ambassador, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, with Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, has remained in Washington most of the season. The end of the month, however, he plans to go North for a few days with possibly a brief trip into Canada.

And now, comes news that another of the diplomatic corps, the members of which are continually on the move, is about to bid Washington farewell. Lieut. Carlos Tucci, who has been connected with the Italian Embassy on a naval mission, is sailing shortly on the Conte de Savoia on his return to Italy.

Although Lieut. Tucci has been in this country but five months, he has a real enthusiasm for things American, especially our drug-stores. He considers these remarkable places and is particularly fond of their ice cream sodas. During his stay here Lieut. Tucci maintained an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The changes now taking place in the Italian Embassy are a source of no little sorrow to the many Washington friends of those who are leaving. The popular Ambassador, Signor Augusto Rosso, will sail some time this month for Italy before taking up his new duties as Ambassador to Moscow. The genial First Secretary, Signor Bartolomeo Migone, will leave in October to return to Rome, where he has been assigned to duty with the foreign office. It is possible he will come back to Washington for a month in the early winter, but when he goes the second time, it will be to stay.

Polo Players Set for Games

Army, Fort Hoyle Teams at White Sulphur for Matches.

Traveling by motor, train and plane, members of the War Department and Fort Hoyle polo teams and their wives will meet tomorrow at the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where the matches between the two teams will be played tomorrow, Sunday and Tuesday.

Eugene Harrison, Maj. Bruce Ferren, who leads the Fort Hoyle team, and Mrs. Ferren, Lieut. and Mrs. Bruce Scott, Lieut. Thomas Crystal, Capt. Herbert Baker and Lieut. Sevenson.

Lieut. Col. Stephen Winfree, of El Paso, Tex., who will referee the games, will be accompanied by Mrs. Winfree.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Clarke, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Van Orsdel and Messrs. Ralph A. Van Orsdel and Hillary Hoskinson, of Chevy Chase, Md., are among recent arrivals at the Greenbrier, in White Sulphur Springs. They will remain at the resort for the polo matches.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Wilson and their daughter, Miss Martha Wilson, of Washington, are also at the resort.

Dinner Is Postponed.

The Women's City Club will have its regular dinner next Thursday evening instead of tonight, followed by an illustrated lecture on "Our Forests and Their Conservation," by Mr. H. N. Wheeler, of the United States Forest Service. The lecture will be at 8 o'clock.

SYNOPSIS.

Eden Faraday, young secretary, opens the door of a taxi and finds a man murdered. She is taken to the police station, where she meets Jack Garnett, newspaper cameraman, and Owen Field, assistant district attorney, who arranges her release. Eden had been mistaken for Gracie Lincoln, a gunman's widow. The man murdered was a notorious gangster, Grippi. Eden's mother, Bridget Faraday, sells gowns and is in love with suave Sidney Creighton. Eden and her spoiled sister, Robin, and brother, Coburn, depend on their peppery grandmother. Because of rumor that Eden can identify the murderers Owen Field has her guarded. Her mother and Sidney escort Eden to a business appointment. When they leave her she is snatched by two evil men, but Field and the men rescue her. Field takes her to his mother's home where she is kept secluded. Jack Garnett climbs roofs to talk to her from her window. Raquel Rusak, an older woman, is trying to force Coburn Faraday to marry her.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Object Matrimony.

The car was rattly and cold; Raquel had on dancing shoes and a frock that was a mere bandeau above the waist; she was cold, it was late, and her mother would raise the devil about it.

"Can I help it," Coburn demanded unhappily, "if the darn bus won't pull? What do you expect for two dollars?"

"It's no use to expect much from you, is it, darling?" Raquel's dangerous sweetness had a knife edge. "You've got that guileless look. You're an ambulating temptation to every gyp in Chicago."

"I had a battle to get the money, as it was." A placating eagerness he displayed toward Raquel would have amazed his own family.

"And that," said Raquel, confident and meaningly, "is another thing that won't go on much longer!"

Coburn squirmed and found himself prickling with a loyal indignation. Odd, how when he was with Raquel he felt this irritation toward her and a fantastic sort of appreciation for his ladylike mother and sisters. He found himself continually defending them against Raquel in his mind, hating the fact that she was permitted to think of them at all, yet when he was at home he was as constantly defending Raquel in his mind from Gran's smugness, Robin's implied jeers and the superior ways of Eden and his mother.

Not that any of them had found out about Raquel. That was his ever present dread. He had been crafty and careful. Even Robin, who was a nosey little devil, did not suspect.

He had not sought out Raquel—that made it easier. She had picked him off a dance floor, attached herself to him with a flaming possessiveness. She made all the plans, gave him orders, downed his every protest, hooted at his fears, and by her every passionate obstinacy had gotten a hold on him that he hated, yet could not break. Getting away from her would be like running from a hornet. She had no scruples, no sensitiveness, no finesse. He did not want to marry her and he did not know how to escape doing it. He was very unhappy as he drove through the rain, knowing very well what he would find at the end of the 20-mile trip.

"What do you want to go out to this crummy place for anyway? A lot of cheap drunks and thugs eating spaghetti with other men's wives and getting crocked enough to bear it!"

"You don't like going with me?" Raquel inquired, sweetly.

"Of course I like going with you," he said hastily, "but you certainly pick foul places to have fun in."

"Do you think I go to places like Monty's for fun, stupid I have to keep mother in a good humor. She's having a party out there tonight—and what can she do with her crowd—her ankles swell so at night she can hardly stand up I couldn't live on what I can make—I haven't any wealthy mother in the dress business."

"I haven't any wealthy mother either," Coburn replied vaguely disturbed. "My mother manages to get along and that's all."

"So I've heard. I've heard that she gets along—and that this Creighton gives her a lot of encouragement."

"You leave my mother out of it, will you?"

"Well, don't be so nasty then. And look where you're driving. I can't wade out of ditches in these shoes."

"Who is this palooka you have to entertain "

"You wouldn't call him that to his face. He's Irv Kalaban."

"So he's the one, is he?"

"I'm sure I don't know what you mean!" indignantly.

"You know all right. You got the manicure for him and the perfume."

"Jealous, darling? Big baby's jealous!"

"I'm not jealous of any fat turk."

"Irv is a pretty nice fellow. He makes a lot of money—and if he wants a good time and young girls to dance with, why shouldn't he spend his money?"

"O, no reason—no reason at all. Except that it makes me sick!"

"When we're married," Raquel crossed her feet and laid her tiny hands on her knees, "I won't have to do things like this. But right now you might realize that it's a tough world for some people—for girls who haven't got sentimental grandmothers and sisters in ermine coats."

"My sisters don't wear ermine. And Ede works. She works hard. I don't want to hear about my sisters——"

"In the same breath with me? O, go on and say it. I'm not sensitive. I'm used to it. Well, here we are. Drive close so I won't spoil my shoes."

The place was the usual suburban roadhouse. The band was raucous. Coburn scorned it. He went out and sat in the car in the cold, and considered making a run for it back to town, leaving Raquel to her own devices.

He had been introduced to her mother, a still woman. Her hair was sleeked down to show small, acquisitive ears pierced with diamonds, and the folds in her neck betrayed the battle that went on against a tendency to flesh. Watching her, Coburn sensed the quiet of tragedy behind her mother's eye.

Kalaban, a gross man, was already a little drunk, and the others of the party were equally distasteful to the high-strung, proud boy. He had danced once or twice with Raquel, then gone out to the car to sit there glowing and meditating flight.

Only one thing stayed him—the certainty that sooner or late Raquel would appear at his mother's apartment and stage a scene that would humiliate him, shock Gran, displease his mother, and furnish Robin material for one long, shrill triumph.

Eden was different. Eden would be hurt—and some finer impulse, that would have surprised his family, made him wish not to hurt Ede. She was square. She would, he felt, help him out of this jam if she knew about it. But she was in this Grappi affair herself. Coburn turned the key of the rented car, stabbed at the starter, then thought better of it. A woman with a lot of waved yellow hair, who had been in the Kalaban party, came out and opened the door on the other side.

"Going for a ride, nice boy?"

"No, thank you." Coburn got out as she climbed in.

"I don't like riding either. All I want is some place to sleep. If you'd send me out a couple of pillows, it would be grand."

"I'll send you out a nice dose of cyanide. That will be better still!"

He stood in the door, watching the dancers, pondering. He could slip the car keys into Raquel's purse, catch a train back to town. He debated that gave it up. Anyway he turned things looked hopeless. He went back to the dance floor, found a chair behind the orchestra, tipped it back against the wall. When he was with Raquel, in the atmosphere she chose, he did not want to drink. It was only another defiance, but he did not know that. He felt superior to be sober when others he despised were maudlin, and feeling superior helped a little.

Raquel came over on Kalaban's arm, pouting becomingly. She was pretty, Coburn conceded. Away from this cheap background, softened a little, she had a certain beauty.

She said, over Kalaban's shoulder. "Isn't he a mean boy? He won't dance with me. All right for you, mean boy!"

"Any fella that won't dance with you is crazy," Kalaban boomed.

"I'm crazy, all right," Coburn agreed, meaningly.

A man crossed the floor just then, gave Raquel a flicked smile with dry, straight lips, opened a door at the rear and went out. Coburn, watching him, had noted that other dancers were watching this newcomer, too, that women whispered a little and men shut their lips and withdrew their eyes.

"Ha— he comes here, does he?" Kalaban snorted. Raquel said warningly, "Shut up!"

Cambridge Skeletons Studied by Experts

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cambridge, Md., Aug. 5.—Dr. T. C. Stewart, of the National Museum, Smithsonian Institute, Washington, has been visiting Cambridge making a study of the remains of 12 skeletons found on the farm of Robert Vincent, near Mount Holly.

With Vincent and Dr. Guy Steele, chief of staff of the Cambridge-Maryland Hospital, he excavated what he believes was an Indian burial pit. Dr. Stewart says the skeletons were unquestionably those of Indians, who probably were buried more than 300 years ago, according to the tribal custom of the Indians of this Peninsula, in individual graves and later exhumed by tribal priests and thrown into a pit.

Labor Board Ends Dismissal Hearing

A decision in the National Labor Relations Board hearing involving charges against the local Y. M. C. A. was expected in two weeks when the case closed yesterday afternoon.

Dismissal, May 26, of a utility man, Leroy W. Jenkins, allegedly for union activities, prompted charges brought by the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, Local 63.

Jenkins was fired for carelessness and inefficiency, according to Elmer Doolan, plant engineer.

That the Y. M. C. A. had claimed Jenkins was "disloyal," subsequent to filing its answer to the N. L. R. B. complaint, and that Jenkins had been employed there for more than a year and a half was pointed out by Jacob Blum, regional N. L. R. B. attorney.

AAA employes have become so excited about the security of their jobs and so upset by all the rumors of dismissals and speedy liquidation of the triple A that they have asked for and received an official statement on the matter.

Recently we made our own investigation and the official answer is similar in every respect to what we discovered was to happen to the AAA employes. Lodge 116, American Federation of Government Employes, recently sent a letter to H. R. Tolley, administrator, soil conservation and domestic allotment act, asking for answers to five specific questions and for any possible additional information on what was going to happen to them, and when.

Tolley's reply was that dismissals would begin around October 1. His letter was read at a lodge meeting Tuesday night in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building, a meeting place which was necessitated by the huge crowd. Several hundred men and women were anxious to hear without delay what official sources said of their fate. Many non-lodge members attended.

The questions asked and Tolley's answers follow:

Q. Will there be dismissals or furloughs?—A. There will be dismissals from AAA, but that does not mean that as many as possible will not be taken care of elsewhere. They will be fitted into other Government agencies or absorbed by the new farm program.

Q. When will such dismissals or furloughs begin?—A. Around October 1.

Q. How many employes will be affected?—A. It is impossible to say at the present, but it is expected that a large majority will go.

Q. On what basis will dismissals be made?—A. On the basis of seniority and efficiency.

Q. Will the present AAA employes be given preferential treatment in any positions created under the new Agricultural Conservation program?—A. Yes, and no new employes will be taken on until all the old ones have been taken care of.

In addition Tolley asked the executive committee of the lodge to keep in close touch with him so that he could relay to them any new developments in the liquidation process of the triple A.

The lodge also voted to cast its ballot at the annual convention next month in Detroit for the acceptance of the resignation of its national president, Claude Babcock. He now is on leave from that office pending decision by the national body as to whether his resignation should be accepted. The question arose over a pamphlet scoring the Administration for "spoils" in the civil service system which Babcock wrote and which was put out by the Republican National Committee. The federation is a nonpartisan organization, and it was felt by some that this move brought it into the political arena.

Delegates to the national convention were elected and those to represent the lodge include Albert Lubore, Joseph Landow, Roland Adkins, John Muzzy and the lodge president, John E. Dwyer.

The Census Bureau is going to collect a few statistics on how people enjoy a moonlight cruise down the Potomac when their special expedition leaves here on the nineteenth for an evening of fun.

The proceeds of the event will be used to finance recreational and athletic activities in the bureau. One of those activities will be a bowling team for men and women to be formed during the winter. E. B. White is the chairman of the outing, while Mary Abell is in charge of the entertainment committee, Charles Ridgway, jr., of tickets, and C. M. Zepp of publicity.

S. M. Barrett, of the Bureau of Reclamation, tells us a sad story. It seems that in the midst of the heat, Edward A. Dacey, chief of the drafting section of the bureau, and his staff were moved from the nice air-cooled offices in the new Postoffice Building to new quarters which do not have air-conditioning.

And the name of the new building, Barrett says, is the Lemon building. And he further points out that if his information is accurate, the various bureaus of Interior now are scattered over town in 13 separate buildings.

Miss Dorothy Arbaugh has been recently added to the staff of expert cataloguers at the Archives. She is the new assistant to John R. Russell, chief of the division of cataloguing.

This is her first job in Washington, although she has had a number of years of experience in library work and came here from the Indiana State Teachers College library, Terre Haute, Ind.

A week from Saturday there is to be a week-end cruise down the bay for any Government employe who wants to come—or any friend he or she wants to bring along. It is a cruise-visit to Yorktown, Old Point Comfort, Williamsburg, Hampton Roads and other historic places. Salt-water swims and sightseeing all are included in this all-expense vacation, which is the idea of the Young Democrats of the District. The boat leaves on Saturday afternoon and returns in time for office hours on Monday morning.

The last of the special classes sponsored by the Democratic Women's National Council to discuss what the various Government agencies are doing under the present Administration will be held tonight in the All States Hotel. As is the custom, the director of the course, Mrs. Louise Lazell, has invited a speaker. This week George Gillingham, the Tennessee Valley Authority representative in Washington, will discuss the plans and projects of TVA and then will answer any questions asked from the audience—and it makes no difference whether they are Republican or Democratic questioners.

Man, Woman And Girl Hurt In Accidents

Mrs. Frances Eagle, 48, Knocked Down by Car in 14th Street.

Permits of Two Drivers Revoked, 30 Others Are Suspended.

Youth Reported Dead Is on Way to Recovery

Lawrence Weiss, 18, of 725 Twentieth street northwest, was reported improving in Georgetown Hospital last night of injuries suffered when he was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile on Conduit road, in nearby Maryland, Saturday evening.

Due to an error in a report at police headquarters, Weiss was listed as dead in yesterday morning's Post. The Post regrets the error.

Physicians said the youth has excellent chances for recovery.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in traffic accidents here yesterday.

Mrs. Frances Eagle, 48, of 1440 Rhode Island avenue northwest, suffered concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull when she was knocked down at Fourteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

She was taken to Emergency Hospital by Edward C. Tankersley, 48, of 4611 Georgia avenue northwest, driver of the car that struck her. Doctors said her condition is serious. Tankersley was not held.

John Bias, colored, 24, of 723 Sixth street northwest, was cut and bruised when an automobile struck a tree behind which he had jumped for protection.

Ran Behind Tree.

Bias was treated at Freedmen's Hospital, where he told police he had started to cross at Fourth and Q streets northwest, when he noticed a car bearing down on him. He said he ran back to the curb and the car veered toward him. He ran behind a tree and the car hit the tree. The force of impact threw Bias to the ground.

The driver of the car fled. Police sent a lookout for him.

Christie Mangolas, 9, of 919 New York avenue northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for minor cuts after she was knocked down at Ninth and K streets northwest. She was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Private E. G. Comingore, motorcycle policeman attached to the Sixth Precinct, suffered several torn ligaments in his back late last night when he was knocked from his vehicle by an automobile as he turned from Piney Branch road to Georgia avenue.

He was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, then released. Mr. Melvin R. Nicholson, 27, of Arlington, Va., driver of the automobile, was charged with reckless driving.

Driving permits of two motorists were revoked and 30 other drivers lost their licenses for temporary periods yesterday.

Two Arraigned As Dope Sellers At Courthouse

One Pleads Guilty, Other Not Guilty; Police Score Drug Prevalence.

Two men, alleged to have used the District courthouse lawn for their business of selling narcotics, were held for the grand jury yesterday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on charges of sale and possession of narcotics.

The men, Raymond Hitte and Christian L. Carter, who police say have no addresses, were held under $10,000 and $2,000 bonds, respectively. Hitte pleaded not guilty while Carter admitted selling heroin and having it in his possession.

Both were arrested near Fifth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest Tuesday by Detective Sergt. Charles E. Mansfield of the local police and Treasury Department agents.

According to agents who have had the pair under surveillance for several days, under the direction of District Supervisor B. M. Martin, the men have been selling the drug to transients and "floaters" in Judicial Square for several months.

Agents and police deplored conditions around the District Court buildings. While standing in front of Police Headquarters one agent was able to pick out three confirmed addicts lounging in the park.

He said such a condition is due to the leniency of the courts. He stated that during the last few months Washington has become a Mecca for addicts and those who sell narcotics. Those who handle drugs, he said, know they will not be sentenced for long periods when convicted and the chances are they will be placed on probation. A short period in jail is only a rest for the violator, the agent said. In some way they are able to get narcotics while incarcerated, and they get so "hopped up" the time in jail is just like a "dream sleep" to them, he added.

Milk Producers Will Meet Monday

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday scheduled a conference with representatives of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Associations and independent producers for 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in his efforts to prevent a threatened increase in price of retail milk in Washington.

Dr. Ruhland conferred with spokesmen for the eight retail distributors on Tuesday and was told there is no milk shortage in this territory and no reason for a rise in prices before October 1.

It was the producers who stated that an increase in the milk price may be necessary because of drought conditions.

Children Name Park Shrubbery Like Veterans

Nature Secrets Open Book to Barbara Jobe, 6, and Colleagues.

With Dr. Paul W. Bowman leading the way, a group of children yesterday afternoon trooped along a secluded bridle path in Rock Creek Park, studying nature. The three-quarters of a mile trip was one of the weekly Nature Study trails sponsored by the office of National Capital Parks.

All the youngsters were city-bred, but even 6-year-old Barbara Jobe could relate the life story of the silk worm and could identify the leaves which had been touched by locusts. She and the other children traveled along the trail like veteran naturalists. It took a reporter, brought up in a small town, to get into a mess of poison ivy and a news photographer to stumble into a nest of Yellow Jackets.

The one with the most answers to Dr. Bowman's questions was 11-year-old Dorothy Soper, of 745 Sixth street. Time and time again she came forward to explain why it's a good idea to stay away from the common nettle (it burns); how the hay-scented fern got its name (it smells like hay), and how myrtle clings (it has strong tendrils.)

Dorothy confided to the bewildered reporter that she picked up her nature lore while visiting in New York.

John Connolly, 12, of 1635 Irving street northwest, was the only boy in the group, but he said he didn't mind. He and his sister, Mary Frances, have gone on several of the nature study trails.

"I learn something new every time," said John.

Flower Seller Again Escapes

Mrs. Fannie Kaslaskia, who has a passion for selling flowers where it is illegal, again escaped punishment yesterday when Judge Robert E. Mattingly took her personal bond.

Mrs. Kalaskia sells flowers near the Veteran's Bureau so she can feed and provide shelter for her four children. She was arrested Memorial Day for selling flowers in this area, which is restricted by law. A $3 fine was suspended.

Yesterday she was back on the same charge. Judge Mattingly said:

"I do not consider it a crime to sell flowers to make a living, but it must be done in legal space."

C. P. Coe Will Speak At Cosmopolitan Club

Conway P. Coe, United States commissioner of patents, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the Cosmopolitan Club's weekly luncheon at the Carlton Hotel today at 12:30 p. m.

He will take as his topic interesting features in the work of the Patent Office, which is celebrating its centennial. C. Emory Galliher, president of the club, will have charge of the meeting.

Ickes to Forbid Washing Autos In Park Creek

Nature Lover Protested in Letter to Post Against Practice Here.

A "letter to the editor" published in The Post July 25 has had repercussions in the Interior Department and may result in a ban on auto washing in Rock Creek fords, it was learned yesterday.

Last month, Russell T. Edwards, of the American Nature Association, complained to The Post against the conversion of Rock Creek Park into "an outdoor garage for the automobile washing industry."

"With a background of still reflecting waters with ducks and geese paddling idly about," protested Edwards, "you will find women in Mother Hubbards or nightgowns, I wouldn't know which, washing automobiles aided by, I presume, their husbands, stripped to the shirt and less."

The plaint came to the attention of Secretary of Interior Ickes, whose numerous bureaus include the National Park Service, which has jurisdiction over Rock Creek Park, and he drafted a letter to Edwards.

"I heartily concur with you," wrote Ickes, "as to the undesirability of this practice. Unfortunately, however, there is no law or regulation in force at the time which prohibits it, and the United States Park Police are powerless to act, except in instances where the persons washing cars are interfering with an even flow of traffic."

However, continued the departmental head, steps have been initiated by the National Capital Parks office to amend regulations so that car washing will be forbidden.

"It is expected," he wrote Edwards, "that the new regulations will be made effective in the very near future."

Bailey Signs Order Restraining NLRB

A preliminary injunction preserving the "present status" of the labor dispute between the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the National Labor Relations Board was signed in District Court yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey in pursuance of an oral decree rendered Tuesday.

The company, according to Attorney Edmund M. Toland, was granted an injunction that restrains the board from holding a hearing to determine whether or not the company is "engaging in, or has engaged in, any unfair labor practices."

The injunction also denied the labor board the right, temporarily, to interfere with the company's relations with its employes pending a final hearing in the fall term of court. Bond of $5,000 was posted yesterday by the Goodyear company.

On the Spot!

Firemen Only 2 Doors Away, Save Flaming Auto.

Herbert Smith, of 813 Hamlin street northeast, stepped on the starter of his car yesterday in the 3100 block Fourteenth street northwest, and the car started to smoke.

He started to look for a place to call firemen, but before he could find one the firemen were there, extinguishers and all.

The fire was quickly extinguished when a battery cable was pulled loose from a ground post on which it had become short circuited.

When it was all over Smith noticed he was parked only two doors from No. 11 Fire Engine Co.

Helpful Youth Becomes Bearer Of Holdup Note That Falls Flat

Because Blondel Redmond, 21, of 58 Seaton place northwest, was willing to do some strangers a good turn he nearly became an unwitting party to a holdup last night.

Redmond was standing on the corner of First and H streets northwest when a cab drove up with two men in the back seat. One of them called to Redmond.

"Hey, son," he said, "do me a favor, will you? Give this note to the clerk in the ice cream store."

Redmond, an obliging fellow, complied. He took the note into High's ice cream store at 112 H street northwest, gave it to a girl clerk, Virginia Ross, 20.

Miss Ross went to the cash register, took out all the money and handed it to Redmond. When he protested, she showed him the note. It read, "Give this man all the money in the cash register. Stay away from the phone. Sing X."

Disregarding the warning, Redmond and Miss Ross called the police. Meanwhile, the cab vanished, but not before passersby had recorded its tag number.

Reformatory Cottage Plan Is Returned

Commissioners Contend Girls Training School Design Impractical.

Opinion Favors Housing in Dormitory Style With One Unit.

Plans for the construction of small cottages to house white inmates of the National Training School for Girls yesterday were sent back to the municipal architect's office for further study following a conference between the District Commissioners and members of the board of public welfare.

The design, which had been drafted in accordance with the plans of Dr. C. W. Smith, superintendent of the school, was called impractical by members of the welfare board.

While no definite action was taken, the consensus was that housing quarters more on the order of a dormitory should be built rather than small cottages which would provide private bed rooms for 12 girls.

Another basis of criticism of the plan, it was said, was that the dining hall for the school would be widely separated from the kitchen and in a different building.

The Commissioners have about $66,000 to start a modernization program at the school as a result of several Congressional inquiries made earlier in the year.

The present school quarters were called "barbarous" and "medieval" by Senators Copeland (Democrat), of New York, and King (Democrat), of Utah, and Representative Norton, chairman of the House District Committee.

Under the design submitted to Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, two cottages were to be built to replace the dormitory that was the chief target of criticism. Other buildings were to be remodeled.

Camp Fete to Hear Lecture on Snakes

Snakes as the friend of man, rather than his enemy, will be the subject of a lecture by Donald Edward McHenry, park naturalist, at a campfire party in Rock Creek Park tomorrow night. Living reptiles, borrowed from the zoo, will illustrate his talk.

The program will start at 8 p. m. at Pierce Mill picnic grove.

Sunday, the parks office will sponsor a "bird walk" through Glover-Archbold Park and a "flower walk" along Cabin John Run. The former will begin at 6:30 a. m., starting at Forty-fourth street and Reservoir road. The other event is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., starting on Conduit road at the end of the Cabin John car line.

Boys Club Will Start Final 2 Weeks of Camp

The camp of the Boys Club of Washington, located in the Chopawamsic area, near Dumfries, Va., will begin its final two-week period on August 17, and a last call was issued yesterday to those who wish to enjoy vacations there during this period.

Summer school there will end next Tuesday. To date, it was announced, 270 boys have gained experience in camping there.

Children Play Under Hydrant To Win Prizes

Playground Aid Presents Awards for Costumes at 8th and Madison.

Children who play every afternoon beneath the spray of a hydrant at Eighth and Madison streets northwest yesterday put on a show for the man who turns on the water—Peter Dranginis.

Dranginis, a shower guard for the Playground Department, showed his appreciation by passing out prizes. Nine-year-old Peggy Jean Patrick, of 840 Madison street, received a box of salt water taffy for the best costume among girls. Dressed in the bathing suit her mother wore a good many years ago, she looked like something out of a snapshot album.

Three boys, made up to represent a family group, won the other prize, a book which they plan to take turns reading. Harold Smith, 12, of 5629 Eighth street northwest, was the papa, while his 9-year-old brother, Leonard, heavily padded and draped in one of his mother's dresses, was the mamma. Their child, "Goo Goo," was 8-year-old Billy Esch, who rode in a go-cart with a ginger ale bottle as his constant companion.

The hydrant at Eighth and Madison streets is one of 80 turned on for 30 minutes daily by the Playground Department for the benefit of children during the hot weather.

Woman, Captor Of Bandit, Gets Judge's Praise

Lottie Russell Tells About Chase of 2 Holdup Men; Second Arrested.

A young woman was commended in Police Court yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon for going to the aid of a man attacked by holdup men, and chasing the bandits, capturing one and pointing the other out to passersby.

The woman, Miss Lottie S. Russell, 25, told the court she was sitting in front of her home, 1445 N street northwest, when she noticed two youths, who were held under $5,000 for the grand jury, jump on Frederick Gallagher, 43, of 1451 N street northwest, and throw him to the ground.

Miss Russell said she saw the odds were against Gallagher and she went to his aid. When she stepped in the youths fled after getting the man's wallet.

When the young hoodlums fled, Miss Russell went after them, she told Judge McMahon. She overtook one at Thomas circle and grabbed his coat. The fugitive broke away and ran in a different direction, the woman stated.

Miss Russell continued she pointed out one of the youths to Tommie Allen, 17, of 2112 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and Harry Kelley, 16, of 1448 N street northwest, who gave chase while she went after the other.

On Vermont avenue Miss Russell caught and held one of the boys until Policeman G. W. Millis, of the Second Precinct, arrived. A pocketbook containing $3.85 was found under an automobile where it was allegedly thrown.

Meanwhile, the other youth was captured by Allen and Kelley after they hit him several times with stones.

Planes Disrupt Music; Air Regulation Cited

Air commerce regulations forbidding low flying over public assemblies will be invoked against airplanes passing over the Watergate while symphony concerts are going on, the Bureau of Air Commerce warned yesterday. The bureau's warning was issued because of the disturbance caused by a low-flying plane at the Monday night concert.

When the concert series opened the bureau sent a letter to the Washington Airport and to officials of each of the airlines asking them to warn their pilots to stay clear of the concert area.

Raleigh Hotel's Staff Will Be Fingerprinted

Every member of the staff of the Raleigh Hotel soon will be fingerprinted, Col. C. C. Schiffeler, manager, announced yesterday.

"This is believed to be the first time a large District business concern has taken such a step. The operation is being supervised by a member of the Metropolitan Police Department.

There is no thought of using the files for the purposes of criminal identification, Col. Schiffeler said, who was first to be fingerprinted.

"The project is being undertaken as a means of protective evidence by our staff and as a positive means of identification."

Sylvan Levin, Capital Pianist, To Conduct Symphony Tonight

Played Jazz Numbers in D. C. Hotels and Theaters 10 Years Ago.

A young Washington musician, who a decade ago was known for the hot choruses he conjured from local hotel and theater piano keyboards, was back yesterday to use those hands of his for a much more responsible purpose.

Dark-haired Sylvan Levin, who has been studying serious music in Baltimore and Philadelphia since those other years, stretched out those hand, and although he is small of stature, he had 80 professional musicians ready to respond to the slightest quiver of an open palm.

Levin, whose parents live at 1217 Shepherd street northwest, came back home yesterday to be a guest conductor of the Summer Concerts Orchestra. He was invited to conduct last night's concert, but rain forced its postponement until tonight.

"Those men are with me," he said, "you see I didn't know when I came here this morning. I know practically all these fellows—and they know me—as a jazz pianist.

"I didn't know what they'd do when I stepped on the conductor's stand. But I found out—they played. After the first 15 minutes they learned what I wanted—and what I did with my hands when I wanted it—and they played beautifully.

"Say, do you know you have a remarkable orchestra? So responsive, and sensitive. It shows the men are young, either in years or in spirit."

Levin left Washington, after he had saved some money from his theater and hotel playing, to study at Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore. Then he got a scholarship to Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. He is a graduate of both institutions.

What he knows about conducting he says he learned from Leopold Stokowski, the noted Philadelphia conductor. Stokowski found out that the young Washingtonian was interested in modern music—the serious kind, not the popular variety—and let him help in the production of some modern ballet and opera performances. Levin had charge of the stage production of Alban Berg's "Wozzek" when the opera was given its American debut a few seasons ago.

Levin said yesterday he wants to be a conductor, but first of all an "all around musician."

"Conducting is a more personal matter than it used to be," said the young orchestra leader, who like Stokowski, directs his musicians without a "stick." "What the composer felt when he wrote the score is now considered more important than a strict translation of that score."

60 Planes May Fly To Hawaii in Fall

A squadron of new United States Navy patrol planes may fly in formation to Hawaii this fall, the Acting Secretary of the Navy, Admiral William H. Standley, revealed at his press conference yesterday.

Admiral Standley said that approximately 60 new planes, now under construction, will be ferried under their own power to the Navy bases at Honolulu. The ships will replace obsolete planes now in use there.

Touching on the civil war in Spain, the Acting Secretary of the Navy said he would order the cruiser Quincy back home next month so that its shakedown and final acceptance by the Navy may be completed. The Quincy has rescued many stranded American citizens from Spanish ports, and Admiral Standley said another cruiser would be dispatched to the Mediterranean to replace the Quincy if the war is prolonged. The battleship Oklahoma will continue its operations indefinitely in northern Spanish waters, Standley said.

Dodge Hotel Acquired By Abbott Company

The Dodge Hotel of Washington has been taken over by the Abbott chain of hotels, according to an announcement yesterday by Karl P. Abbott, president.

Abbott has named A. Kenneth Painton as manager of the Dodge. For the past year, Painton has managed the Hotel Vendome in Boston.

McShain Co. To Surrender U. S. Contract

Will Give Up $4,657,300 Buildings Award, Attorney Says.

Government's Failure to Deliver Necessary Land Is Blamed.

Prentice E. Edrington, attorney for John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia, announced yesterday that the McShain company intends to withdrew from a $4,657,300 contract for the construction of an additional building for the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, and a new building for the Bureau of Economics.

Edrington said that on June 5, when the contract was signed, the Government did not own the entire property designed for the construction project. The buildings were planned for the area between Twelfth and Fourteenth and C and D streets southwest.

However, according to Edrington, the contract provided that the Government must deliver all the land to the contractor within 60 days from the date of signing. The 60-day period, he said, expired yesterday and 16 parcels of land had not yet been turned over to the contractor.

He said that as a result the Government had defaulted in its contract and that he was writing the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department of McShain's intention to withdraw. Three large steam shovels and 25 trucks were standing idle, he claimed, unable to proceed until the land is made available.

Edward R. Witman, special assistant to Admiral C. J. Peoples, director of the Procurement Division, admitted last night that the Government had not yet been able to acquire all the necessary property.

"That's happened before," he said, "but we usually manage to work these things out with the contractor."

Witman explained that in most cases the Government has the entire site on hand before it awards a contract. In this particular instance, he said, the Government wanted to push construction and so awarded the contract with the 60-day provision.

He said that the Government had been acquiring the land both by direct purchase and by condemnation proceedings. In some cases difficulties have arisen regarding the title to certain pieces of property.

According to Witman and other Treasury officials one man has been causing difficulty. This man, said to be a half-breed Indian, is alleged to have threatened purchasing agents with a gun.

Ace Film Plays Take Over Next Week's Screens

Imposing Productions to Add Luster to August Entertainment.

"Mary of Scotland," with Katharine Hepburn in the title role and Frederic March co-starred in the role of Bothwell, will open its engagement at RKO-Keith's Theater with two screenings tonight, at 8 and 10:11 o'clock. These inaugural presentations will be in accordance with the usual house policy—no seats reserved and no advance in admission charges. Beginning tomorrow morning, showings will be continuous daily, beginning at 10:26 a. m. "Mary of Scotland" is a complete and painstaking film adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's blank-verse drama of the same name, which was given its premiere in Washington three years ago at the National Theater. It is a forceful, gripping narration of historical events in one of the most turbulent periods of English history. Supporting the co-stars are Florence Eldridge as Elizabeth Tudor, arch enemy of Mary Stuart; Donald Crisp, Douglas Walton, John Carradine, Robert Barrat, Moroni Olsen and scores more of equal note.

The Warner Brothers' surprisingly comprehensive picturization of Marc Connelly's Pulitzer prize play of "The Green Pastures," will be the major attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Rex Ingram in the pivotal role of "De Lawd," created on the stage by the late Richard B. Harrison. To his everlasting credit let it be said that the younger player seen in the role on the screen is in every respect a worthy successor to the honors garnered by the kindly, elderly Negro who created the part. Not only has every important incident of the stage play been transferred to the silver sheet reverentially and effectively, but one or two scenes even have been added to the original script to enhance the pictorial value of a drama that has been one of the sensations of this generation in the theater. The stage bill at the Earle will be headlined by the "Twentieth Century Revue," enlisting the services of a long roster of players.

W. C. Fields, too long absent from the screens of the land, will be seen at Loew's Fox Theater beginning tomorrow, as Eustace McGargle, lover, villain and comedian, in "Poppy," a new film version of the stage hit in which he appeared years ago. The principal feminine roles are played by Rochelle Hudson and that gushingly competent comedienne, Catherine Doucet. On the stage, the stars of the new week's bill at the Fox will be the Duncan Sisters, Vivian and Rosetta, famous for their creation of "Topsy and Eva." Other acts will be presented by Carl Freed and his Harmonica Harlequins, the Three Cossacks and Guy Robertson, singing star of "The Great Waltz."

Shirley Temple, in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," as is customary with this biggest of the little stars, will continue for a second week at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning tomorrow. In this latest of her vehicles, the tiny Miss Temple is supported by Jack Haley, Alice Faye, Michael Whalen, Gloria Stuart and Claude Gillingwater. The short-reel supplementaries also will be held over.

"Secret Agent," adapted from W. Somerset Maugham's story of "Ashenden," with Peter Lorre, Madeleine Carroll, Robert Young, Percy Marmont and other notables in the principal roles, will continue throughout the remainder of the current week as chief feature of the bill at the Metropolitan Theater. It will be followed by Bette Davis and George Brent in "Satan Met a Lady."

That sensational screen success, "San Francisco," which already has enjoyed a phenomenal three-week run at the Palace, will be presented as chief feature of the screen bill at Loew's Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy are cast in the principal roles.

"The Gay Divorcee," the first of the screen plays to bring stellar eminence to Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, will be revived as foremost feature of the film bill announced for the week beginning next Sunday at the Little Theater.

One of the stage's thrillers will be revived for a fortnight's engagement at the Roadside Theater next Monday night, when the bill will be "Sherlock Holmes," written and revived times without number by William Gillette.

Glen Echo, with its 50-odd attractions, is providing summer fun at its zenith as the season turns into its last lap. The big Crystal Pool represents the 1936 stream-lined version of the "old swimmin' hole" 'and the Spanish Garden Ballroom the last word in up to date facilities for dancing comfortably to the tunes of Dave MacWilliams' swing band, led by Phil O'Brien. The rides, midway, motor boats, picnic groves and other devices offer a complete range of amusements.

The Marian Chace dance group, the Estelle Wentworth opera group and the United States Army Band will divide honors on the summer festival program to be presented in the National Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds next Tuesday

About the Showshops

IT HAD never occurred to me that Tuesday's discussion among the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the drayma desks following the preview of "To Mary—With Love," had threatened to assume the proportions of a full-fledged street brawl, over there at the corner of New Jersey avenue and K street, until I read something to that effect in the stimulating writings of Miss Hynes, Mr. Craig and Mr. Phillips, appearing in yesterday's public prints. To be sure, some lively words more or less flew about, but none of the gentlemen present was seen to sock Miss Hynes and, so far as I know, Miss Hynes socked none of the gentlemen. So what kind of a brawl is that, I ask you?

BELL.

The brief argument that followed the screening, as a matter of fact, probably won't be able to hold a candle to some of the battles that will come off beside certain supposedly tranquil firesides when the picture finally is accorded public presentation at the Palace. The whole thing, of course, will hinge on the moot question of when a wife should divorce her husband and when she should stick to him—if ever.

There seem to be two schools of thought in the matter. Tuesday's evidence amongst the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the press seemed to be that the married members of the tribe all thought Miss Loy had pulled a boner in not hitching a can to Mr. Baxter and shoving off with Mr. Hunter, the family's helpful boy friend, while those among us who never have made the same mistake once were of the practically unanimous opinion that the marriage vows mean what they say in that "for better or for worse; in sickness or in health" business and that, if nothing else, "To Mary—With Love," as its fadeout line says, provides "a portrait of marriage" as it should be.

The author of the play has selected the toughest ten years in the history of mankind to serve as the laboratory in which the love and compatibility of Jock Wallace and his wife, Mary, are to undergo the so-called acid test. They go the route from poverty to penthouses, from penthouses to penury, together; they are cheated of the boon of parenthood under most tragic circumstances; they have their misunderstandings, peccadilloes and domestic rumpuses—or should that be rumpi?—and after those heart-breaking ten years from 1925 to 1935 are about to call it a day because they "have nothing in common."

If all of the vicissitudes, trials and tribulations—with a few of the luxuries of fleeting opulence thrown in—of ten hard years of give-and-take do not provide the basis of a rationalized grasp of what marriage and its obligations are all about, then what does?

It is a little beyond my comprehension how two people like Jock Wallace and Mary, after all they had been through together, ever could have got along without each other. They couldn't. And they didn't try. And as I say, if the theories advanced by the boy friend in his final appraisal of their case doesn't constitute "a portrait of marriage," then marriage, in the true sense, just cannot be photographed.

No longer ago than yesterday one of the more prevalent metropolitan columnists remarked that after viewing "To Mary—With Love" every husband in the audience would hurry out to a telephone to tell his wife he loved her.

He's right—and who should know better than a case-hardened bachelor of 87!

This column is indebted to the thoughtfulness of Miss Beth Hooper, of The Post's discriminating book department for a volume that is impressive out of all proportion to its brief dimensions. It is published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., at Garden City, Long Island, and bears the simple title: "Percy Hammond, 1873-1936." The contents consist of the tributes to the dean of American drama critics and one of America's most colorful writing men, who died on April 25, 1936. Those contributing to the booklet are Franklin P. Adams, John Anderson, Brooks Atkinson, Whitney Bolton, John Mason Brown, Robert Garland, Richard Lockbridge, Burns Mantle, George Jean Nathan, Geoffrey Parsons, Grantland Rice, Gilbert Seldes and Walter Winchell, the cream of New York's critical fraternity.

If Percy Hammond knows of this compendium of affection for him on the part of his former colleagues, a gracious warmth must be kindled in his modest heart.

At last it comes out. After a week of intensive study of the long list of possibilities, Manager Gene Ford, of Loew's Fox, has made up his mind about the cast for the forthcoming "Going Native Revue."

Topping the list is Gordon Hittenmark, WRC's popular "Question Mark" and "Timekeeper," who will contribute a specialty and serve as master of ceremonies. Johnny Barnes, winner of Phil Lampkin's talent quest and now under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be another featured player. The Sophisticates, consisting of the well-known Three Maids and a Mike and the Uptowners Quartet—Grace Shannon, Virginia Hanna, Hazel Money, Paul Fox, Ben Thompson, W. F. Sheean and Randolph Fones—are expected to be one of the "smash" items in the new show. From the U. of Maryland have been recruited the Four Bartenders—Jerome Sacks, Robert Litschert, Joel Hutton and Samuel Leisher. Another foursome will be the Four Preachers, who will be heard in Negro spirituals. Many "singles" also have been signed.

Can't-Wait-Until-Christmas Note.

Like the kid who goes peeking into closets a week or so before Christmas, Ray Bell—no relation—of the Loew publicity department, already is sending out surreptitious notes to the drama desks on the Washington letterhead of "Loew's Capitol Theater." Oh, Mr. Barron!

Co-Star in Film Opening Tonight

When the RKO-Radio picturization of Maxwell Anderson's drama of "Mary of Scotland," originally produced on the stage by the Theater Guild, is presented for the first time in Washington on the screen at RKO-Keith's tonight, Katharine Hepburn will be seen in a fine assumption of the title role, created by Helen Hayes, and Fredric March will enact the role of Bothwell, first played by Philip Merivale. Miss Hepburn and Mr. March are pictured effectively in the vivid portrait study reproduced herewith. They are supported by a large and brilliant cast.

Hollywood, Aug. 5.

George Raft winning a Mae West doll by tossing baseballs at Venice . . . Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone sitting in the last row, holding hands at the preview at "Hollywood Boulevard" . . . On the set of "Camille," Cameraman Bill Daniels has a little horn next to his camera which he toots when he wants Garbo to leave her portable dressing room and play a scene for the camera . . .

MYRNA LOY.

Hal Mohr, the cameraman on "Ladies in Love," uses special lighting for Constance Bennett, Janet Gaynor, Simone Simon and Loretta Young when photographing them. His big problem is when two or more of the stars appear in same scene . . . Joan Blondell says that he never reads the scenario of the picture she is making. She merely learns her lines . . . Then, Blondell claims, she is surprised at the preview and exclaims, "Oh, that's why I did that."

★ ★ ★ ★

RUTH CHATTERTON completed her role in "Dodsworth" Saturday, and when she finished her last scene, the entire crew gave her a present. Then Director William Wyler made a speech, and said that he hoped he'd be able to work with Chatterton again, that she would be back . . . The telephone rang on the set. It was the front office ordering Chatterton back on Monday for retakes . . .

The title of Mae West's new flicker "Personal Appearance," has to be changed, or movie fans would believe that Mae West was really making a personal appearance.

Joseph Schenck once appeared as a movie actor playing a role in the flicker "Pierre of the Plains," which starred Edgar Selwyn . . . All any one needs for Hollywood is one hit picture . . . There's Simone Simon, who was taken out of "Under Two Flags" . . . who was said to be temperamental and hard to manage . . . Then, "Girls' Dormitory" was previewed and Simone was a hit . . . Now she attends previews with the same executives who shunned her . . . Simone Simon's temperament is now artistic—because she is commercial at the box office.

Cesar Romero, holding Virginia Bruce closer while dancing at the Trocadero than he does a heroine in a flicker . . . Robert Taylor going onto the "Camille" set, like a fan, to watch Garbo work . . . "Inside" on Hitler's snub of Col. Lindbergh is the Bruno Hauptmann case . . . Jack (Hollywood) Waldron rushed up to a guy at a nudist camp and congratulated him on his blue suit . . . "Blue suit, hell," said the nudist . . . "I'm freezing" . . . Owl-faced George S. Kaufman was the last fellow on Broadway you'd tab as a Great Lover . . . But Miss Astor, in her diary, says that she was recommended to him by another Coast girl . . . Evidently he was a New York institution, like the Battery or the Empire State Building . . . Next year's road maps will probably list him on Route 41.

Cards Defeat Cubs; Boost Margin

24,000 See Warneke Driven Out; Davis Belts Homer.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Roy Parmelee pitched five-hit ball today as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 1, to extend their league lead to two full games over the second-place National League champions.

The Gas House gang's attack collected eight hits off Tex Carleton, Lon Warneke and Clay Bryant, one of the blows being Virgil Davis' fourth home run of the season.

Carleton and Parmelee hooked up in a brilliant pitching duel, which lasted until Carleton bowed to a pinch hitter in the eighth. The Cub flinger allowed but four safeties in eight frames, but two of them resulted in as many runs in the fifth when Davis hit his homer, Durocher walked and Garibaldi doubled.

Warneke Batted Out.

The Cards made their other two runs in the ninth when they knocked out Warneke, who had replaced Carleton.

Frisch singled and John ("Pepper") Martin sacrificed. Joe Medwick singled to score the Card manager and Johnny Mize's single moved Medwick to third before Bryant took Warneke's place on the hill. Davis singled to score Medwick with the final run of the tilt, the Card catcher being out when he tried to reach second.

The Cubs got their only run in the fifth after two were out. Billy Herman hit his thirty-fifth double of the season and scored on Frank Demaree's single. Herman hit his thirty-sixth double in the ninth.

More than 24,000 fans saw the Cards win their second victory in as many days in the current four-game series.

Yankees' Guns Beat Boston 9th Time

Broaca Holds Sox to 7 Hits as DiMaggio Stars at Bat in 7-2 Win.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The New York Yankees downed the Red Sox today for the ninth straight time this year, slugging out a 7-to-2 victory behind Johnny Broaca's seven-hit hurling.

Joe DiMaggio belted a homer and double, Frank Crosetti hit two two-baggers and a triple, and Lou Gehrig cracked out three singles to lead the 12-hit attack on four Boston pitchers, with Johnny Marcum, the Red Sox starter, being charged with the loss.

Jimmy Foxx led the Bostons with three singles, but he was the only batter to hit consistently against Broaca, who chalked up his seventh victory of the season.

DiMaggio's homer, his seventeenth of the season, started the Yankee scoring in the first inning. In the third, 4 Yankee runs came across on consecutive doubles by Crosetti and DiMaggio, Gehrig's single, walks to Bill Dickey and George Selkirk, and Tony Lazzeri's single, which drove Marcum off the mound.

In the fourth, with Jack Russell pitching for the Sox, Crosetti's triple and Roy Johnson's long fly added another run, and in the eighth the final tally came across on a walk, a sacrifice and Johnson's single.

Nats Present Another Game to Athletics, 9-6

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

The gift season continued at Griffith Stadium yesterday with the Nats presenting another ball game to the Athletics, who took it by a 9-to-6 score.

They set about in a very determined manner to force the victory upon the A's and succeeded admirably with a blend of sour pitching and inexpert infielding that set the Athletics up in a 4-0 lead in the first nining.

Jimmy DeShong, who had encouraged the A's in the first inning with his wildness that set the stage for two damaging errors by Buddy Lewis, played a lone hand in producing two more runs for the Athletics in the second inning. By that time they had a 6-0 lead.

Travis' Muff Hurts.

Along in the fifth inning, Cecil Travis got into the swim and spirit of things with an inexcusable muff at shortstop and the A's picked up two more runs that boosted the score to 8-1.

The Nats were helping the A's plenty, but they couldn't help themselves much against the pitching of Harry Kelley, the little right-hander, who spent a career in the minors. Kelley held 'em to seven hits and one run until the ninth when, with two out, the Nats came up with three runs that were as futile as an injunction against the humidity.

All told, the A's made 14 hits off the pitching of DeShong, Syd Cohen and Pete Appleton, but the Nats' three errors were directly responsible for five of their runs. Kelley held the Nats to 10 hits.

DeShong pitched himself into a box seat before the second inning was over, and Buddy Lewis helped to put him there. After DeShong walked Finney and Moses to start the game and pitched a triple to Johnson that scored two runs, Lewis threw away a grounder off Huggins' bat and then muffed an equally tame rap by Higgins that put two more runs in position to score.

In the second inning DeShong filled the bases with one out, pitching a single to Finney and walking Moses and Dean. The next man out was DeShong. Cohen relieved him and two runs scored on Johnson's out and a single by Higgins.

The Nats cut the 6-0 figures to 6-1 in the fourth when Kuhel walked and scored on Stone's triple and Lewis' single, but the A's bounced back with two more runs in the fifth on singles by Hayes and Finney that sandwiched a muff by Travis.

Kuhel Gets Triple.

Joe Kuhel's triple off the right-field wall inspired the Nats to two runs in the sixth when Kelley contributed a muff at first base and followed by pitching singles to Lewis and Bluege, but the A's responded with another run against Cohen in the seventh on Niemic's double and Finney's single.

So the Nats went into the ninth six runs behind. The fans were already in the exits when Newsom halted 'em abruptly by throwing wild on Reynolds' grounder with two out. Seizing this opening, the Nats drove three runs across the plate on a double by Chapman, a triple by Miles and a single by Kuhel. When Stone drew a walk, a home run off Travis' bat would have tied the score, but there was no home run forthcoming—only a grounder to Newsom.

English Lead In Olympic Yachting

U. S. Boats Are Far Down List With 19 Points to Britain's 49.

By the Associated Press.

Kiel, Aug. 5.—England took the lead today in the first day of actual competition in the Olympic yachting regatta on Kiel Bay.

The Americans were well down the list with 19 points to England's leading 49. Norway sailed away with the two opening races in four classes over the triangular course, Sweden later taking one and Holland another.

The final winner will be the country with the most points after the series of races.

Norway took the 8-meter class race, leading from the start and holding the advantage to the end. Their yacht, Silja, made the triangular course twice in 2:14.20. Germany's Germania III was second and Sweden's Ilderim third.

The American yacht, Angel, was second and Sweden's Ilderim third.

The American yacht, Angelita, finished eighth among 10 starters.

Women's Fencing.

Helene Mayer, the pretty blonde German Jewess, fought a dramatic half-hour battle with the foils today, but failed to win her match for the Fatherland.

She was bested by Miss Preiss, of Austria, in the finals of the individual fencing with foils. Had Miss Mayer won this match she would have won the singles championship, which ultimately was taken by Fraulein Elk-Schacherer, of Hungary. Miss Preiss was third.

Soccer.

Poland won its first-round Olympic contest, 3 to 0, against Hungary. Austria won over Egypt, 3 to 1.

Polo.

The largest crowd ever to see a polo match on this continent today watched the great Argentine machine start the defense of its Olympic title won in 1924 in Paris by soundly trouncing the inferior Mexican four, 15 to 3.

Field Hockey.

The United States lost to Japan, 5-1, in the opening round of the Olympic field hockey competition today but remains in play under the point system being used. Japan led at the half-way mark, 2-0. India triumphed over Hungary, 4-0, after leading 2-0 at half-time.

Weightlifting.

Joseph Menger, Germany, won the final Olympic heavyweight weightlifting championship. Psenipka, of Czechoslovakia, was second and Mohaaar, of Esthonia, third.

The two Americans in the division, John Grimek, Perth Amboy, N. J., and David Mayor, York, Pa. finished ninth and twelfth respectively.

Modern Pentathlon.

Lieut. Gotthard Handrick, of Germany, virtually clinched the Olympic modern pentathlon crown today when he finished among the leaders in the 300 meters free style swim. Lieut. Charles F. Leonard, jr., of the United States, is among the leaders in total points.

Ohio State Ace Breaks World Mark in 200, Despite Rain.

penter, of Compton, Calif., beating his California rival, Gordon (Slinger) Dunn by hurling the platter 50.48 meters, 165 feet 7 29-64 inches for a new Olympic record.

Another gold medal was added to the steadily growing American collection by Earle Meadows, of Fort Worth, Tex. The Southern California Trojan soared to the Olympic mark-smashing height of 4.35 meters (14 feet 2 15-16 inches), eclipsing the old record of 14 feet 1⅛ inches, made by Bill Miller, at Los Angeles four years ago.

The day's competition saw Great Britain retain the 50-kilometer walk championship as Harold Whitlock clipped nearly 20 minutes from the records, winning in 4 hours 30 minutes 41.4 seconds, and Uncle Sam's 110-meter hurdling trio and 1,500-meter triumvirate qualify in stirring trials marked by the elimination of Stanley Wooderson, Great Britain's "metric mile hope."

Surmounts Bad Weather.

Surmounting dismal weather conditions throughout his four-day stretch, Owens set two new Olympic records, equalled a third besides adding his name twice to the world record list by equalling the 100-meter mark of 10.3 seconds in addition to his 200-meter mark this afternoon. The only thing Jesse lost in the four days was an official decision by the I. A. A. F. ruling out his 10.2 performance in the 100 with an aiding wind.

Owens thus became the fourth American to capture three or more championships in one Olympiad and the first athlete to achieve a triple since peerless Paavo Nurmi ran them all dizzy in 1924 at Paris.

Women Beaten.

The only day's reversals for the Americans, not unexpected, came in the women's 110-meter hurdles and the marathon walk in which new Olympic marks were set in both events.

The trio of American girls reached the semifinals in the timber-topping feature but Anne Vrana O'Brien, of Huntington Beach, Calif., was shut out in the first heat, won by Italy's Trebisonda Valla in 11.6 seconds, equalling the world mark as well as clipping one-tenth of a second from the Olympic standard.

14 Walkers Better Mark.

Little Tidye Pickett, Chicago Negress, fell at the second hurdle and hurt her foot severely, while Simone Schaller, of Monrovia, Calif., was eliminated on a photographic recount, the judges reversing themselves and yielding the third qualifying place to Claudia Testoni, of Italy, after the photographs showed the American fourth.

European walkers, led by Britain's Whitlock, outclassed American pedalers. Albert Mangan, of Lowell, Mass., finished twenty-first; George Crosbie, of Baltimore, twenty-third, and Ernest Koehler, of New York, twenty-sixth in the 30,050-mile test over roads circling Grunewald Forest within the city limits.

1,500 Hopes Raised.

America's 1,500 meter hopes were raised by a sensational last-lap finish, in which Archie San Romani, of Frontenac, Kan., came up from ninth to second place, in addition to stretch comebacks by Gene Venzke, the Penn Picture runner, and Glen Cunningham, Lawrence, Kan. All told, a dozen qualified for the "metric mile" final which is anticipated will embellish Oympic history tomorrow.

Wooderson passed out of the picture in this heat, virtually stopping at the stretch after being passed by San Romani and jogging home eighth after finding his customary sprint missing. Later Wooderson explained that a sore ankle, which has been bothering him for some weeks, failed to loosen up in the chilly, wet weather.

Cunningham's Legs Sore.

The other favorites came through unscathed in a series of close finishes. Cunningham rating himself well throughout, finished at the heels of Sweden's formidable Eric Ny as both were clocked in 3:54.8.

Jack Lovelock, the slim New Zealander, performed under wraps and appeared contented to slide home with great Britain's veteran John Cornes, while Venzke's stretch rush carried him to the front in the last stride to win the heat in the slow time of 4:00.4.

Towns Is Favorite.

The other heat was won by Luigi Beccali, Italy's defending champion. The "dark horse" winner of 1932 captured his trial in 3:55.6.

Georgia's sensational Forrest Towns, who was clocked in 14.5 seconds in the trials despite a shaky start, established himself a firm favorites to capture the 110-meter high hurdles crown and complete an all-conquering record-smashing year.

Apparently he has the Olympic mark of 14.4 set by the late George Saling, of Iowa City, during the 1932 trials at his mercy with not much to worry about unless his two mates, Fritz Pollard, jr., Chicago Negro, and Roy Staley, of Corona, Calif., as well as Great Britain's Don Finlay and Sweden's Erik Lidman show more than they displayed this afternoon.

Upset in Discus.

Pollard, who appeared to have recovered from a muscle strain, scrambled over the hurdles to a 14.7 victory in his heat the same as Finlay. Staley loafed along at 15 seconds flat. Lidman, strong and rangy, was clocked in 14.9 in the sixth and last heat in which Miguel White of the Philippines, fell and finished fifth.

The society, "I chased Owens home," absorbed Mack Robinson as a new member today. The California Negro twice bettered the former Olympic record with 21.1 seconds performances in the semi-finals and the final, but had the misfortune of pursuing the world's current super-athlete.

Martin Osendarp, of Holland, threatened in the first 100-meter whirl around the turn, but thereafter the Dutchman was no match for either American in the stretch drive and finished third almost 6 meters behind Owens and 2 meters behind Robinson.

The discus tossing developed the day's biggest upset, shocking German enthusiasts as the result of Willi Schroeder, the new world record holder at 174 feet 1⅝ inches, to do better than 157 feet 3 1-32 inches.

Teuton Off Form.

The Teuton was more than 5 meters off his best mark and did not challenge the Americans to whom Italy's Giorgio Oberweger was their nearest rival.

Dunn's 49.36 meters (161 feet 11 11-32 inches), led the qualifiers for the final, but Carpenter overhauled him on the next to the last throw with a heave of 50.48 meters (165 feet 7 29-64 inches). Oberweger took third with 49.23 meters (161 feet 6 7-32 inches).

Walter (Duke) Wood, Cornell University athlete from Summit, N. J., was off form. He failed to do better than 43.32 meters, 142 feet 1 35-64 inches, and was eliminated.

Pole Vaulters Battle 3 Hours.

The pole vaulting battle, waged for three hours after all other competition ceased, nevertheless excited 20,000 spectators, who remained through the raw, wet weather, watching America turn back Japan's challenge for the second straight Olympiad.

The crowd alternately yelled, clapped and whistled like American bleacherites while Meadows, the Southern California Trojan, battled his wiry little rivals, Sueo Oye and Shuhei Nishida.

The veteran Bill Graber, Ontario, Calif., listed world record holder at 14 feet 4⅝ inches, failed twice at 4.25 meters, 13 feet 11 inches, after Meadows, Sefton and the Japanese cleared the height.

Meadows then negotiated the new Olympic record height of 14 feet 2 15-16 inches. With silver and bronze medals assured the Nipponese discontinued the vault-off after outlasting Sefton and are expected to settle the issue by tossing a yen before the "ceremonie olympique protocolaire" tomorrow.

Discovery, at 1-25, Wins Saratoga Feature Race Under Wraps

Vanderbilt's Ace Jogs To Win

5-Year-Old Increases His Earnings $3,475 by Easy Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Race Track, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Although Owner Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt declared to win with Purple Knight in order to keep a weight penalty off his champion, Discovery, the latter won the seventh running of the Wilson mile in a common canter here this afternoon. The only other starter was Elmer Dale Shaffer's St. Bernard, a Chicago invader. Purple Knight was not good enough to beat this colt, with the result that Johnny Bejshak had to win with Discovery.

The display 5-year-old won by a half dozen lengths with his rider tugging on the reins, while St. Bernard beat Purple Knight by five lengths The Vanderbilt entry went postward at 1 to 25, one of the shortest prices quoted since the days of the immortal Man o' War.

The event was almost an exact duplicate of last year's running, when Bejshak rode Discovery to victory in another three-horse field. Under the conditions of the fixture, Discovery got into the event under a mere 126 pounds, which scared others out of the race. Of the six named overnight, Psychic Bid, Gleeman and Chicstraw were scratched.

Discovery picked up $3,475 in purse money, bringing his total earnings to $187,787. He covered the 1 mile in 1:38 4-5, always under double wraps.

After the event, Owner Vanderbilt and Trainer Bud Stotler said that they believed they would start the big champion in Saturday's $7,500 added, mile and three-sixteenths Merchants and Citizens Handicap. Discovery had been assigned 140 pounds topweight for the week-end stake, and because of his winning effort today picks up a 3-pound penalty, making his impost 143 pounds for Saturday if he goes.

Discovery broke second to St. Bernard and went to the front, opening up plenty of daylight, while Purple Knight and St. Bernard battled for second position. Purple Knight faded completely around the final bend, so it was up to Bejshak to let Discovery win for the stable. Bejshak looked back and saw that Purple Knight had no chance. Discovery moved farther away despite his rider's strong hold.

Redgrave Upsets Willis in Middle-Atlantic Tourney

Field Seeking Post Cup Is Cut to 18

Markey Draws a Tartar; Mrs. Robinson Goes to Women's Final.

By John R. Vosburgh.

Marked by one upset, the Middle Atlantic tennis championships yesterday narrowed down to 18 survivors out of the original field of 72, which started play at the Edgemoor Club for the coveted title and The Washington Post Challenge Bowl.

One of Uncle Sam's naval officers, Lieut. Comdr. D. C. Redgrave, accounted for the lone upset, defeating Rickey Willis, No. 8 seeded player, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4, in a third round match. The unseeded officer, outsteadying the former University of North Carolina star in long rallies, abounted often on Willis' mediocre forehand.

Commander Redgrave was given hearty support by one of his young sons, incidentally, who appeared to be the only spectator not surprised at the result. Redgrave will face Hubert Simmons, young champion of Harrisburg, Pa., today, in a bid for the quarter-finals. Simmons is seeded No. 8 in the out-of-town list.

Markey Given Battle.

In one of the day's outstanding matches, all but one of which were third round, Tom Markey, third seeded local player, caught a tartar in hard-hitting Alan Staubly. Markey took the first set, 6—2, but lost the second by the same score. They will resume play at approximately 4 p. m. today. The stocky Staubly was hitting fiercely, off the ground and overhead. It was anybody's match when darkness halted play. Staubly is unseeded.

Dooley Mitchell, the top-seeded Washington entry, turned in an impressive win over the veteran Pat Deck, 6—1, 6—4. The No. 1 player appears to be hitting 'em as well as he ever has in his career. He meets the redoubtable Ray Stocklinski today.

Frank Goeltz, the No. 3 seeded out-of-town player, became the second man to gain the quarter-finals by eliminating Lieut. Stanley Robinson, No. 9 seeded local entry, 5—7, 6—2 and default. Goeltz joined Hunter Lott, of Philadelphia, in the round of eight, one step ahead of the rest of the field.

The Wilkes-Barre, Pa., star appeared well on his way to victory over the capable officer when darkness prevented finish of the match. Robinson was forced to default due to his absence from the city today.

Ralph McElvenny, seeded No. 4 in the Washington list, smashed his way into the round of 16 with a 6—1, 6—2 win over Kent Boyle at Columbia Country Club. Tom Mangan, president of the Middle Atlantic Lawn Tennis Association, and former ranking player of the District, was deadlocked with the veteran R. N. Bradley at 7—7 in the first set of a free-hitting baseline duel.

In outstanding matches today, Gilbert Hunt, seeded No. 2, plays Herb Shenkin, who eliminated Alex Kelles, of Baltimore, seeded No. 4 among the visiting players, and Ed Mather, seeded No. 7, faces Lieut. John K. McCue, of Annapolis, No. 2 seeded out-of-towner.

Mrs. Robinson in Finals.

Margaret Robinson gained the semifinals of the Women's Middle Atlantic singles championships yesterday by defeating Sara Moore, 7—5, 6—4.

She will meet Edith Clarke for the title Saturday afternoon at 2 on the Columbia Country Club courts.

Washington Post Tennis Trophy on Display

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Personally, I want no parts of a 1-to-25 shot, which was the figure at which Discovery won yesterday at Saratoga, as you may have noticed. Too many things can happen in a horse race to gamble two bucks on a mere 8-cent profit, which was what Discovery returned to the $2 betters yesterday.

But the odds on Discovery did serve to recall Man o' War's short-priced performances when the Glen Riddle colt was winning as he pleased more than a decade ago. Those 1-to-25 odds on the Vanderbilt racer at Saratoga were a throw-back to 1919 and 1920 when any price on Man o' War was a good price, even 1 to 100.

POVICH.

Man o' War did, in fact, win one race at that figure. Like Saratoga's triumph yesterday, it took place on a New York track. Odds like that are possible only on bookmaking tracks. In the mutuels, the lowest odds obtainable are 1 to 20, inasmuch as the tracks are obliged to pay off at least $2.10 on each $2 bet no matter how heavy the wagering on any single horse may be.

Maryland tracks in 1919 and 1920 actually took a loss in paying off on Man o' War at 5 cents on the dollar. The results of the Glen Riddle colt's races were the closest thing to a foregone conclusion and often times the mutuel play made him a 1-to-100 shot or a 1-to-150 shot, but the tracks paid off at the rate of 1 to 20 under the State racing laws.

But there was no hesitancy there on the part of the tracks. The small sums they might have lost in the mutuel payoffs were easily offset by the increased number of admissions from the folks who wanted to see Man o' War run. He was a sure-fire drawing card on the days he was entered and a Man o' War entry always enabled the track to show a nice profit for the day.

Even as a 2-year-old, Man o' War was running at odds of 1 to 20 and 1 to 50 on the New York tracks. In Maryland, he was always 1 to 20. A $2 winning parlay on ten of Man o' War's races would not have netted the better even money, so short-priced was the horse in his every start.

He did lose a race as a 2-year-old, the immortal contest with Upset, but he was beaten that day by a bunglesome ride, and came back as a 3-year-old in 1920 to win all of his 11 starts and retire with a two-year purse-winning record of $249,465.

On the other side of the odds picture is a shocking collection of upsets recorded by Franke Menke in his all-sports record book. At Haydack Park, England, a horse named Coole won a hurdle race in 1929 and returned odds of 3,400 to 1. Mrs. Arnsworth, the wife of a Liverpool physician, collected $1,705 for a 2-shilling (50 cents) wager on Coole.

The American long-shot record was established at Latonia on June 17, 1912, when Wishing Ring paid off $1,185.50 for each $2 win ticket, $644.40 for place tickets, and $172.60 for show tickets.

Before the turn of the century, when Chicago tracks were operating strictly on a book-making basis, bookies at the Washington Park track paid off at $500 to $1 on Peytonia in 1894, a price which stands as the record payoff in oral wagering. At Oakland, Calif., in 1932, Bright Skies won at the 500-to-1 odds, quoted by bookies to equal the record.

Hialeah Park holds the record for the largest place price ever hauled down by a mutuel better. Two-dollar tickets on Baal to place brought the lucky ticket holders $971.10 on February 4, 1932.

But nearby Charles Town was the scene of perhaps the freakiest of the mutuel payoffs. In fact, there was no mutuel payoff. When Sweep Vestal won at the West Virginia track in 1934 at odds of $1,318.50 to $2, nobody held a ticket on the winner. But the track generously paid off the win pool to holders of win tickets on the second horse.

The vagaries of mutuel betting were perhaps most strikingly illustrated in a race at the St. John's track near Jacksonville, Fla., in 1930. Miss Scotia, which ran second, would have paid a $121.60 mutuel had she won. In the place mutuels, the filly returned only $3 for $2 tickets, despite the fact it was a nine-horse race.

Jersey Angler Takes Florida Tarpon Prize

Sarasota, Fla., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Dr. Fred Collier, Trenton, N. J., tonight was declared winner of Sarasota's tenth international tarpon tournament on basis of his 135-pound catch.

More than 300 fish with an aggregate weight of more than two tons were entered in the competition which opened May 15 and closed August 1.

Scores of prizes went to anglers of New York, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago and elsewhere.

Miss Miley Holds Golf Lead Over Patty Berg

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Tall, slender Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., shot enough golf today over the Midlothian Country Club course to retain the lead in the Women's Western 72-hole medal play derby, but saw her margin reduced from three strokes to one, by Patty Berg, of Minneapolis.

Miss Miley played a very presentable round, 39—43—82, for a 54-hole total of 242, but the red-haired Minneapolis youngster, who finished runner-up to the Kentuckian last year, made a battle of it

2 Upsets Feature Women's Net Play

Easthampton, N. Y., Aug. 5 (U.P.). Upsets spiced the quarter-finals of the Maidstone Club's women's singles tennis championship today with two of the country's "first ten" feminine players as victims.

Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., one-time American girls' champion, put out Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, of Kansas City, Mo., ranked seventh nationally, 6—4, 6—1. Theodosia Smith, of Los Angeles, eliminated the ninth-ranking Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, 6—4, 6—2. Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Calif., eliminated Kay Winthrop, of Boston, 7—5, 6—0.

Indians Down Tigers, 6 to 4, In Tenth

Game Is Pitchers' Battle for Nine Frames; Sullivan's Double Wins Tilt.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5.—The Cleveland Indians defeated the champion Detroit Tigers, 6 to 4, today in a ten-inning game that was a pitchers' battle between Johnny Allen and Elden Auker for the first nine innings.

The teams went into the tenth deadlocked at three runs. With one away for Cleveland, Hale walked and Earl Averill doubled, putting Hale on third. Trosky, the Indian clean-up man, was walked purposely and Weatherly forced Hale at the plate. Billy Sullivan then doubled, clearing the sacks.

WHAT PHYSICAL AND MENTAL FATIGUE DOES TO MEN PAST 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This harmone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets and are sold and recommended by all modern druggists. Zo-ak is the formula of a distinguished American physician who has written a booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," a copy of which will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St. N. Y.

TO PHYSICIANS: Samples, professional literature and clinical data on Zo-ak will be sent gratis if requested on your letterhead or card.

Out Fishin' . . . . .

By Jack Hawley.

J. L. Albright, of the Army Air Corps, informs us the blues are churning up the waters of Herring Bay. While fishing for croakers from a rowboat he noticed in the distance and at the edge of the channel large schools of blues cutting up capers, too far away to pull his boat, which would have been useless had he been on the scene. He informed another boatman nearby, fishing from a similar boat, but equipped with an outboard motor, who immediately proceeded toward the school of fish, motor running wide open. The roar of his exhaust did the trick—the fish sounded, came up again a mile further down the bay, and continued dodging the angler until, in disgust, he gave up the chase.

If this and other anglers would stop a moment and figure out their procedure of approaching schools of bluefish before attempting to bear down upon them as quickly and noisily as possible, their chances would be much better for a good catch. The roar of a motor always sends sound vibratoins through the water to the nervous system of all fish. This sudden and unlooked-for disturbance warns the fish of approaching dangers and quite naturally they move away and out of range of the approaching noise, which continues to increase in volume as it gets closer.

The writer suggests that the approach should always be made cautiously and with motor throttled at half speed. Reduced to trolling speed of 3 to 4 miles per hour when within 200 yards of the school, depending on the direction in which the boat or fish are moving. When within casting distance of the school request your boatman to circle the school of fish slowly in order to keep them on or close to the surface as long as possible.

At this time, fish with a short line. A long line will carry to far beyond the school and will result in tangled lines with all on board, especially on the turns.

Never, under any circumstances, drive your boat through a school of bluefish for the sake of picking up one or two while the rest of the fish sound and ruin what might have been an unusual catch. It is a quite common practice among some boatmen to leave their gray matter on shore when encountering good fishing among the blues.

Some of their most flagrant practices are high-speed maneuvering around and through the schools, cutting in close to the stern of other competitors, causing tangled lines in both boats, or, worse, allowing the keel or propeller to cut the lines of other anglers in nearby boats. Most of this is caused by the selfish desire to beat the other fellow out of his share of the catch.

The net result is usually disappointment for all anglers, and the echo of opinions rendered by the anglers and real honest boatmen if heard on shore would cause a sudden rise in the cotton market.

Since our article of Friday, July 24, concerning Marlin fishing at Ocean City, Md., many local anglers have been going to the fishing grounds 30 miles off shore and having the time of their piscatorial lives. A few are returning with marlin, but the majority are telling of the ones hooked (plenty of 'em) and later getting their freedom.

W. D. Termohlen, chief of the poultry section, Department of Agriculture, accompanied by W. R. Morgan and J. R. Eddyington, of Federalsburg, Md., boarded Capt. Crawford Savage's cruiser,

Wheat Prices Jump as Corn Again Slumps

Wheat in Chicago Rises 3⅝ Cents; Corn Drops 4 Cents.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—European reports of a tense political outlook and adverse harvest weather overseas, together with big domestic purchasing of flour, sent wheat values kiting today.

Wheat in Chicago rose 3⅜ cents a bushel and at Minneapolis 4⅝ cents, despite the fact that corn values had suffered a temporary break of nearly 4 cents. Stress was given to reports that wheat production the world over is now less than the amount needed for normal use, let alone an emergency.

Jobs, Earnings, Living Costs Continue Rise

Real Income Declines Because of Higher Expenses.

New York, Aug. 5.—The National Industrial Conference Board reports gains in employment, hours worked and money earnings during June, 1936, as the result of a regular inquiry in 25 manufacturing industries. Real earnings, however, declined because of higher living costs.

Hourly earnings in these 25 industries averaged 61.7 cents in June as compared with 61.5 cents in May, an increase of 0.3 per cent. Weekly earnings averaged $24.29 in June against $24.08 in May, a gain of 0.9 per cent. This advance, however, was more than offset by the rise in the cost of living, with the result that real weekly earnings declined 0.6 per cent. The average workweek was 39.2 hours in June and 39.0 hours in May, an increase of 0.5 per cent.

The number of workers employed rose 0.7 per cent from May to June, total man-hours worked, 1.2 per cent, and pay rolls, 1.5 per cent. Although there was a net gain in total man-hours worked, in ten industries fewer hours were worked in June than in May, the declines ranging from 0.3 per cent in the manufacture of hardware and small parts to 5.4 per cent in the manufacture of agricultural implements.

Since a yer ago substantial gains have been made. Hourly earnings have risen 2.8 per cent; the average number of hours per week, 8.9 per cent; money weekly earnings, 12.9 per cent, and real weekly earnings, 9.7 per cent; employment, 7.4 per cent; total man-hours, 16.8 per cent, and pay rolls, 21.3 per cent.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Work Irregularly Lower in More Active Trading; Wheat Advances Sharply.

New York, Aug. 5.—Financial markets were mixed. Commodities resumed their advances in most sectors. September wheat closed 3⅛ cents higher at 113¼ cents a bushel. Corn and cotton improved. Bonds were mostly higher, particularly the Government section. Stocks opened well enough but fell under the influence of profit taking. A half-hearted improvement got underway in the last hour, but nothing much was accomplished. Prices were irregularly lower at the close with sales of well over a million shares.

Again the motor share group had to take a good deal of profit, and although most units held up well, the fact that so much selling was taking place helped to restrain any buying enthusiasm in other sections that might otherwise have appeared. General Motors and Chrysler declined 1 and 2 points, respectively. Rubbers were weak with them and the oils were irregular.

Airplanes were closer to ground transportation units in having to absorb profit taking, but the rails worked irregularly higher. Union Pacific gained more than 2 points, reaching a new high price. Delaware & Hudson and Nickel Plate were stronger, but New York Central and Santa Fe softened. Most of the rail equipments were indifferent to the 2-point jump in General Railway Signal.

Telephone Advances.

Telephone was a bright spot in the utility section. The stock moved up with conviction in the last hour. Most of the group were firm. California Edison recovered its previous day's loss. Metals were mixed. Howe Sound and Cerro were higher, but pressure was heavy on the hard-pressed United States Smelting, which dropped 3 points. Chemicals were mixed. DuPont suffered with General Motors, but Allied was rushed into new high ground on an advance of half a dozen points. Farm implements declined, in spite of the rally in grain prices.

A small miscellaneous group of stocks had a varied career. Canade Dr. Gabriel, United States Pipe, Container, Commercial Credit and the shares of the cement companies enjoyed active and strong markets. Losses ranging from 1 to 3 points in some high priced shares were taken, among them being Coca-Cola, Manville, Owens Glass, Western Union, Radio preferred, Philip Morris and Timken. Douglas tumbled 3 points. Universal and Pipe common and preferred dipped on suspension news. McKeesport and Zenith were weak.

Favorable News.

On short term outlook the news of the day was favorable. Iron Age, reviewing the steel industry, predicted no important let down this month in the trade's present high operating rate of around 72 per cent of capacity. Railroad freight car loadings, as indicated by reports of leading carriers, rose last week 24 per cent above the total of the corresponding week of last year and were 1.5 per cent higher than for the preceding week of this year. Electric output last week also continued its sharp gain over a year ago.

On the reverse side, the United States Weather Bureau held the drought the worst in history for some of the Northwestern and Central States. No prediction on crops was made, nor is it possible to determine from Government statements just how much the effect of the drought on business and public purchasing power may be exaggerated. Doubtless the most possible political capital will be made of the affair, and especially since the farm business is the weakest part of the New Deal policy.

Unemployment.

It seems reasonable to suppose that general business this autumn and winter will be less active than it would have been with normal crops. How much that reduction will be offset by Government expenditure can only be guessed at. Actually, as any one who takes the trouble to study the figures knows, the revival in industry has largely taken up the slack in unemployment; but the mass of unemployment still existing is confined to those agricultural States which were the subjects of New Deal experimentation. The AAA created unemployment and the drought is helping to increase relief demands from the AAA States.

Trade Obstacles.

Business may lose much of its momentum by autumn, but on the other hand the recovery has gone far enough to generate more improvement, and it is at least too early to look for a setback of consequence before the end of the year. An element of growing importance in the mixture is the commodity price structure. Rising prices are growing scarce on AAA unwisdom and the drought.

This country is not alone in experiencing higher prices. In nearly all parts of the world a noticeable advance is now under way, a development which might eventually put the brakes on recovery or which might hasten a period of inflation. Anyhow, living costs are rising, a portent of higher wages, increased costs of production, and possibly of labor troubles; and the invitation for the speculator to use a little of the oceans of cheap credit lying about is an appealing one.

Slow Recovery.

Meanwhile the trade difficulties with Germany appear to be a menace to the banks rather than to American exporters. We are now largely importers of foodstuffs, which come from other countries than Germany. Our trade with that country likely will be sharply cut on the latest moves regarding higher tariffs and mark exchange restriction (which ties up bank credits in Germany), but the value of exports that cannot be paid for, or at best only slowly, is doubtful from the long range viewpoint. The ideal would be removal of restrictions on both sides and resumption of trade on a broad scale. Until that time comes, world trade recovery is bound to be slow.

"Agents Provacateurs."

Certain other trade restrictions of a domestic nature are bound to take increasing effect in the next several months. One is the Patman act which is demoralizing the primary trades, as regulating practice as between purchases by a retailer or wholesaler from a manufacturer, or by a retailer from a wholesaler or manufacturer. Having as its expressed object the ending of discounts and other alleged discriminatory practices, as it is now working out, a great many business concerns are in a turmoil, and as usual in such circumstances the public probably will pay more for its goods, without anybody being the gainer.

Still another, being merely a late manifestation of an old New Deal practice, is the procedure of the Government against the oil companies on the charge of price fixing. Nothing was intended so to encourage price fixing and the preservation and propagation of monopoly as the pet of the Roosevelt Administration—the NRA. Its continuation was urged by the New Dealers even after its unconstitutionality and all-round unwisdom were made clear.

Old Army Game.

All along many business men have suspected a trap in that and other legislation. That accounted for the opposition of many (smaller elements in the various industries) to the codes and for the doubts of even the larger members. Now, having apparently done nothing worse than carry out the spirit of the NRA, which sought to end "unfair" competition, whatever that might be, industry is hauled into court by the New Deal "agents provacateurs." It may be a new deal in Federal Government, but it is an old game with municipal political machines.

Cotton, Rayon Output Holds Up Business

August Average Expected to Be Only Slightly Less Than July.

New York, Aug. 5.—General business activity in July held up much better than had been expected early in the month, and the level for the present month is forecast at only slightly below the July composite in the monthly statistical summary of the Standard Statistics Co., of New York.

Industrial production last month reached a new high for the recovery movement. The steel trade operated at about 70 per cent of capacity in July, belying the earlier expectation that operations would be curtailed in the last two weeks of the month. The continued high rate of production in the automobile industry has carried over into August, although the last week of this month will probably see the motor plants pretty well shut down in preparation for the change-over to new models.

The textile trade, or at least the cotton and rayon divisions, has been a factor in holding up the production composite. Cotton and rayon mills have been busy as a result of a combination of rising prices and relatively small stocks.

Continued drought with the resultant sharp reduction in indicated yields has caused sharp rises in the prices of grains during the past month. Corn in particular has seen spectacular increases in price.

Investment Counsel Change Firm Name

New York, Aug. 5.—Announcement is made today that the name of C. W. Young & Co., Inc., of New York, one of the country's largest investment counsel firms, has been changed to Clarke, Sinsabaugh & Co.

The change of name was occasioned by the recent resignation of C. W. Young from the firm. Except for Mr. Young, the executive and research personnel of the firm remains unchanged.

Profit-Taking And Rain Halt Climbing Foods

But Most Items Are Now Selling Near Peak for Season.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The brake has been applied on rising food prices in the big Chicago wholesale markets during the past two days of unsettled weather and rainfall in sections of the farm belt.

"Bulls" in the commodities marts have taken a breathing spell. Buying has been tempered by profit taking. Prices of some items were lower than they were the first of the month. The steep advance in others, scored throughout July, has leveled off.

A study of prices listed on the various markets today showed the general upturn in major commodities has been fairly well maintained, however, with most items now selling near peak levels of the season.

Butter and eggs, weakening with the first sign of moisture relief that might improve pasture conditions, were about 1 cent lower than the recent highs. Wheat futures lost about a cent, corn 3 cents, oats more than a cent.

Market specialists pointed out that the principal trade effect of the weather change had been the stimulation of heavy profit taking. Whether actual conditions on farms have been materially improved and whether agriculture production would gain any immediate benefit remained to be determined.

Mangin, Parker Win in Tennis Tourney

Welsh Beaten in Meadow Club Doubles Play at Southampton.

By the Associated Press.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Top-seeded Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., and Frankie Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., 1935 winners, started their quest for a second leg on the Meadow Club's historic tennis doubles bowl here this afternoon by breezing through a pair of straight-set victories to gain the quarter-final round of the team tournament.

Barney Welsh, Washington, D. C., star, and John Law, of Los Angeles, put up a strong fight before losing to Walter Senior, of Los Angeles, and Gene Smith, of Berkeley, Calif., 6—2, 3—6, 6—3, in a first-round match.

Mangin and Parker defeated Martin Buxby, Miami, Fla., and Watson Washburn, New York, 6—3, 6—3. Burtz Bulware, Miami, Fla., and Paul Guibord, Melrose, Mass., were only a little tougher, going down by a 6—4, 6—4 count.

The youthful clay court champions, second seeded Bobby Riggs and Wayne Sabin, of Los Angeles, Calif, dropped a set to Esmond and Alastair Martin, of Princeton, N. J., before they could pass their first test at 5—7, 6—3, 6—2. Sabin was badly off in this match. In their second start the Californian improved sufficiently to crush Bobby Harmon, Los Angeles, and Modeste Alloo, Hollywood, Calif.

Most spectacular match of the day was the one in which Walter Senior and Gene Smith, of Los Angeles, defeated Robert Underwood and William Seward, Stanford University's Eastern intercollegiate champions. Brilliant team work by the Stanford duo enabled them to hold the harder-hitting Senior and Smith for 26 games in the second set before they finally yielded at 6—4, 14—12.

Cardinal Peewees Win.

Gaining their sixth straight win, the first of the second series, the Cardinal Peewees defeated the Merrick Boys Club, 9 to 0, in an East Washington Community Center game at Eastern High School stadium yesterday.

Nazis Applaud— Until They Learn Victor Is Jewess

Berlin, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Just as the pole vault was being completed in Reichsports field today, it was announced over the loudspeaker system that "Mayer of Germany had placed second in the women's single foils."

The 25,000 spectators who had waited to watch the pole vault finals under the floodlights, immediately broke into wild applause, until they realized that the single name "Mayer" referred to Helen Mayer, pretty blond Jewess member of the fencing team.

Suddenly remembering their anti-Semitic teachings, they let their applause subside somewhat shamefacedly.

March Leads Field of 6 In Playground Tennis

Harry March, the tall, blond Burroughs Playground boy who won the junior playground tennis title last year, led a group of six players into the quarter final round of the senior division yesterday. Curb Prices Dip In Profit-Taking

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—With the exception of firmness in a small group of utilities and industrial specialities, curb market stocks felt the weight of further profit taking today, ending with the majority of issues unchanged to a shade lower.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Imminent circulation of French neutrality notes to all European countries which might be affected by Spain's rebellion and camparative calm in Spanish hostilities held foreign currencies fairly steady against the dollar yesterday.

The French franc in New York gained 00¼ of a cent to 6.59 cents; Swiss francs held steady at 32.62, and Holland guilders eased .01 of a cent to 67.92 cents. German "free" marks were off .01 of a cent at 40.22 cents following the reich ban on dealings in Aski and registered marks. A gain of .¼ of a cent was recorded by the British pound sterling at 5.01⅜.

The dollar was unchanged in London at 5.01⅜ to the pound, compared with the overnight New York rate of 5.01¼. In Paris the American unit closed at the equivalent of 6.589 cents to the franc against the New York overnight rate of 6.588 cents.

Culbertson on Bridge

Bunco Artist.

I know a contract player in New York who has become notorious, if not celebrated, for a type of skill that has nothing to do with bridge theory or technique (although he also is well equipped in these essentials.) This gentleman's claim to fame at the bridge table comes from something rarer than mere knowledge. He is known, far and wide among club players, as a "partner handler!"

When his partners make their inevitable "bulls," does this cagey fellow bellow, glare, or wax heavily sarcastic? He does not? The more stupid the error the more he beams upon his partners, sometimes becoming downright paternal with a "there, there—of course it was just a slip—liable to happen to any one!"

The result of this hypocritical but soothing treatment is amazing! I do not mean that his gratified partners miraculously turn expert, but it is nevertheless a fact that for every mistake they make with him as partner they make three or four with others who would rather "speek their minds," at any cost, than stultify themselves. I ought to know, I'm one of the nonstultifiers!

Unblocking.

It is too bad that the government didn't extend its anti-hoarding law to honors at the bridge table; the declarer, in today's hand might have learned a lesson.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Double
Redouble	2 diam.	Pass	Pass
2 hearts	3 diam.	3 hearts	4 diam
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

North's first bid was of course pretty shady, but, with support in both major suits, not greatly to be criticized. East and West naturally "pressed" to defend a part-scoure.

West opened the queen of diamonds and was allowed to hold the trick. Declarer ruffed the diamond continuation, and figured that he had better clear the spade suit as quickly as possible. He therefore led the ten, let it ride and lost to East's king. East promtly returned a spade. Now when a heart was led from dummy East jumped up with the ace while declarer continued his folly by following with his remaining small trump. East led a third round of spades, which West gleefully ruffed

Already down one, the declarer was now in the very unstrategic position of being unable to reach dummy for a club fineese, inasmuch as he was out of spades and had nothing but high trumps in his own hand Thus, he was forced to concede a trick to East's otherwise finessable king of clubs for a total penalty of 500 points.

This was quite a swing from the result which should have been Declarer should have ruffed the second diamond low and led high hearts until the ace was driven out. Only after the adverse trumps were out of the way should he have tackled the spade suit. This plan not only would have prevented a third round spade ruff, but would have maintained communications between declarer's hand and dummy so that the club finesse could have been taken without difficulty at the proper time. Thus, instead of paying a 500-point penalty, South should have won the game and rubber.

London, Aug. 5.—Business developed in late dealings in the stock exchange today and trading dwindling somewhat from earlier in the session. Oils, however, were strong with Royal Dutch showing an improvement. Transatlantic issues and Kaffirs lost ground, and Greek bonds dropped about half a point. Rubber shares, gilt-edged securities and industrials were maintained, with Leylands and Motors, steel and electrical equipment issues firm features of the latter group.

Paris—In a generally heavy market, rentes sagged and international issues turned irregular in the bourse today.

Indicted Firms Followed Oil Code, Says Platt

Publisher Charges U. S. Denied Him Right of Free Press.

A charge that the 23 major oil companies and 61 individuals indicted on anti trust allegations were prosecuted by the Government after they followed practices prescribed for them under the NRA oil code, was made here yesterday by Warren C. Platt, of Cleveland, publisher of the National Petroleum News and Platt's Oilgram.

Indicted along with his two publishing companies, and the 23 large oil corporations, Platt also charged the Government with denying him the right of a free press.

Meanwhile, Attorney General Cummings at a press conference here, said the return of indictments against 84 individuals and corporate oil leaders "does not mean that the investigation is closed."

Cummings said a grand jury investigation at Madison will be resumed August 19, in connection with petroleum price-fixing charges. He said the Madison jury is restricted to ten States in the Midwestern area, but the department has received complaints from other sections. Cummings would not say whether the Government will push its inquiry into alleged gasoline price-fixing into other sections of the country.

Conspiracy Charged.

Platt was charged in the indictment with participating in an alleged conspiracy by knowingly publishing the "artificially raised and fixed prices of gasoline" and representing the quotations to be "prices prevailing in spot sales to jobbers in tank car lots."

Platt replied in his statement:

"The indictment admits that these publications printed the truth as to actual prices and sales, but denies to these publications this exercise of the right of freedom of speech and freedom of the press, if other parties have violated the anti trust law with those prices or sales.

"If a publisher becomes a party to a conspiracy because the prices or other information that he prints is used unlawfully by others, then no newspaper or magazine can be safe in the printing of news or editorials as to market prices, or information of racing or pools or information which may be used by others in the violation of the law."

Increase Cited.

The indictment returned at Madison charged that defendant oil companies participated in the East Texas Refiners Marketing Association in the east Texas field and the Western Petroleum Refiners Association in midcontinent field, composed of independent refiners, for the purpose of selling gasoline to themselves at "uniform, high, arbitrary and noncompetitive prices, and from time to time at progressively increased prices." It was further charged in the indictment that "in furtherance of said unlawful purposes said independent refiners * * * curtailed their production of gasoline."

Platt in his statement said that this is exactly what the oil companies did with the approval of Secretary of Interior Ickes, administrator of the NRA petroleum code, when efforts were being made to limit the production of oil, prevent the flow of "hot" or excess quota oil into marketable channels, and raise prices in the industry.

"The government's charge turns on whether a practice legally started and carried on under the recent NRA oil code was continued in an illegal manner after the codes were killed by the United States Supreme Court," Platt said.

Services Are Held For J. H. Beall, 90

Funeral services for James Henning Beall, 90, said to be the last veteran in Prince Georges County who saw active service in the Civil War, were held at 2:30 p. m. yesterday at the residence in Laurel, Md. The services were conducted by the Rev. Edgar Showacre, pastor of the Methodist Church, which Mr. Beall attended for many years, and by the Rev. Royal Rice, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Savage, Md.

Mr. Beall fought with the Union Army in the Battle of Gettysburg. A native of Frederick County, Md., he had lived in Laurel for the last 46 years. Members of the American Legion and the Sons of the Legion attended the funeral services.

He is survived by seven children: W. E. Beall and Wellington Beall, both of Laurel; the Rev. Luther Beall, of Baltimore; Mrs. Charles Lily, Mrs. John Fairall and Mrs. Edward Vogts, all of Laurel.

Life Plea Rejected.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—Federal District Judge Elwood Hamilton denied a habeas corpus writ to Rainey Bethea here late today and remanded him to the custody of State authorities to be hanged in Owensboro for an attack upon 74-year-old Mrs. Elza Edward, who was assaulted, robbed and slain there. Judge Hamilton said there was no evidence to show Bethea did not have a fair trial.

HOW TO TREAT IVY POISONING

Ivy poisoning may be caused by three plants—poison ivy, primrose or poison oak. The first thing to do is to puncture with a sterile needle, and drain the blisters. Then wash the parts thoroughly with a thick lather of Resinol Soap. Always wash toward the affected parts, so as not to carry the poison to the healthy skin.

When there are no more blisters, apply Resinol Ointment liberally, and protect the part with a light gauze bandage. Use Resinol morning and night—it relieves itching and burning promptly, tends to counteract the poison, and promotes healing.

Buy a jar of Resinol and a cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 7, Baltimore, Md.

'Uncle Abe' Price Is Dead at 89; Once Knocked Off Lincoln's Hat

Was Able Narrator of Civil War Episodes, Which He Frequently Recounted as He Met With His Buddies in D. C. Park.

The man who knocked President Lincoln's hat off is dead. To frequenters of Lincoln Park he was Uncle Abe, but to his "gang," the oldest of whom still lives at 92, he was Abraham Price, retired carpenter.

Every day Uncle Abe and his "gang," as he called them, used to gather in Lincoln Park, and Uncle Abe's vivid recollections attracted a wide circle of listeners.

It was in 1862, he would recall, when he was helping his uncle, a carpenter, repair a stair in a photograph gallery opposite where the Fox Theater now stands.

Picking up a two-by-four board, Uncle Abe who was too young to go to war, swung around and to his dismay heard a thud and saw a high silk hat sail into a vacant lot. Looking up, he said he was paralyzed with fear when he recognized the tall, spare figure of President Lincoln gazing ruefully at the fallen hat.

But the President was quick to allay the youth's fears, and putting his long arm around the quaking boy's shoulders, told him to forget it. He even took all the blame for being in the way, Uncle Abe would say.

Mentally, Physically Alert.

Despite his 89 years, Uncle Abe was very alert, mentally and physically. Small of stature, grey hair and a close cropped mustache, he gave the impression of being 20 years younger. His more vivid recollections were of the period during the Civil War, and he liked to tel stories revolving about President Lincoln.

A story he liked to tell was the one about the company of Union soldiers camped on the southern lawn of the White House.

Every evening President Lincoln would come out and talk with the soldiers, Uncle Abe recalled. With characteristic boyish admiration for soldiers, Uncle Abe spent most of his evenings at the camp. One evening, he would relate, a huge turkey gobbler, the company mascot, took a sudden dislike to him. Catching him, it would set on him and beat him with its powerful wings while he yelled for help. This greatly amused the President, Uncle Abe would say, and his great frame would bend double with laughter.

Recalling the first Battle of Manassas—or Bull Run—Uncle Abe said that he stood at Fourteenth and B streets until late into the night watching the tired and dusty Union soldiers as they retreated. Most amusing to him was the sight of the fleeing Washington aristocracy who had gone down in their carriages to watch the "picnic."

Uncle Abe nearly lost his life watching the battle at Fort Stevens. With youthful eagerness, he got too close to the firing and when a Negro sitting beside him on a rail fence suddenly toppled over with a bullet in his head, he would chuckle and recall how quickly he lost interest in the battle and how quick he was in getting back to helping his uncle, whom he had left to watch the fighting.

With a somber look on his face, Uncle Abe would tell of the turmoil in Washington which followed President Lincoln's assassination. He would recall how troops rode all over the city and the sleeplessness of the nights.

Uncle Abe's reiniscences were endless. Familiar with all the old landmarks in Washington, he would sit for hours and talk about the "days when!" Every warm day would find Uncle Abe and his "buddies" holding forth in Lincoln Park. But several months ago Uncle Abe began to feel a little weary, and for the last few months had been seriously ill at his home at 1024 Massachusetts avenue northeast, where he lived with his two daughters.

Green's Sister, Widow to Fight For Huge Estate

Will Filed in N. Y. Names Mrs. Wilks Sole Heiress to $80,000,000.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Two sisters-in-law tonight prepared for a possible court battle over the multi-million-dollar estate left by Col. Edward H. R. Green, captalist-son of the almost-legendary Hetty Green.

A conflict was foreshadowed when it became known that Col. Green's sisters, Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, of New York, had presented a document, naming herself as sole beneficiary, to the surrogate's court at Port Henry, N. Y., last Saturday.

Three days earlier, on July 29, Col. Green's widow had been appointed temporary administrator of his estate, estimated at upward of $80,000,000, leading to the belief the financier died without leaving a will.

County Judge Ben Brooks, of Kaufman, Tex., who made the temporary appointment, said tonight he would make it permanent if no objections were filed before Monday. Should the document submitted at Port Henry by counsel for Mrs. Wilks be admitted to probate, it would tend to deprive the widow of any control over the Green fortune.

The alleged testament contains no bequest for Mrs. Green—the former Mabel E. Harlow, of Highland Park, Ill.—explaining she was provided for when she married the railroad executive in 1917.

At the time of their marriage, Col Green said he had given his bride a wedding present of $500,000 in cash and $125,000 in Liberty bonds. Whether he made any further provision was not known.

Homesick Vice Consul Turns To Poetry in Plea for Leave

Kansan Pens Lines to U. S. From Rio; Must Wait, Officials Say.

By the Associated Press.

Homesick after seven years abroad, a young American diplomat has burst desperately into verse in an attempt to get Secretary Hull to approve a free ride back to the United States.

Harold B. Minor, of Holton, Kans., who is vice consul in far-off Rio de Janeiro, indited this poem, published in the American Foreign Service Journal:

I've the honor to ask the department
To refer to almost a tome
Of dispatches I've written requesting
Leave of absence to visit at home.

Yearly, I've bored the department,
In prose neither moving nor terse,
With petitions for free transportation—
Now lend ear while I try it in verse.

I can't sue with the wit of a Clemens,
Set words in gallant array
Of the glorious poet of Avon
Or the lyric perfection of Gray.

For want of the genius of Byron,
The rhythmic persuasion of Hood,
I must rest my case on its merits
And pray that you think it is good.

Seven years in three countries I've labored,
Since the shores of my homeland I've seen,
And my exile will doubtless continue,
'Less the department or God intervene.

Give me a glimpse of the sunflowers of Kansas,
A smell of sweet clover in bloom,
The perfume of prairies at sunrise,
And I'll work 'till the sounding of doom.

Let me see Times Square at twilight,
View Washington's new lifted face,
Feel the pulse of a land that is changing,
And I'll serve with a smile any place.

If the department approve this petition
And forgive these stanzas inane,
I'd like to leave Rio in August—
Respectfully yours, I remain.

HAROLD MINOR,
of Holton, Kans., vice consul at Rio de Janeiro, who has been homesick after seven years on foreign soil, bombarded the State Department with verse in an effort to get leave and transportation back to the United States.

State Department officials, while sympathizing with Minor's nostalgia, said he would have to wait his turn for leave. Funds for such purposes are limited, they said, but they will get around to him in due course.

W. S. Andrews Dies In Fall From Bed

Three days after the death of his noted author wife, Mary Shipman Andrews, William S. Andrews, retired judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, was found dead at his home in Wolf Hollow, N. Y., Wednesday.

Death came from a broken neck suffered in a fall from his bed sometime during the night, according to Coroner William R. Winne.

Mrs. Andrews died Sunday night following an operation of nearly a week before. Famous as a writer of several short stories and novels, she was most noted for her book which sold 600,000 copies, "The Perfect Tribute," a story of Lincoln's return from Gettysburg.

Army Develops Devices to Train Bombing Fliers

Flares, Radio Camera Obscura and Indoor Range Cut Time and Cost.

Three new shortcuts in aerial bombardment training, the use of flares for night bombing, a radio camera obscura that saves the use of expensive explosives and indoor range bombing, have been developed by the Army Air Corps, it was announced yesterday. They were worked out by the Nineteenth Bombardment Squadron at March Field, Calif.

Under the flare bombing technique as developed, a giant bomber laden with 300-pound bombs is sent out at night at the height of 8,000 feet. A few seconds ahead flies another plane at 2,500 feet, with a load of parachute flares.

The flights of the two ships are carefully timed so that when the parachute flare is released it will illuminate the target in time to permit the bomber coming up to drop its load of steel eggs.

The camera obscura has been developed chiefly to save the expense of using "live" bombs, each costing roughly $500, for training purposes. The camera obscura, consisting of a portable box mounted on four wheels with two-way radio equipment, serves as the target. As the bombardier wings his way over the target he "dumps his load," only instead of dropping a load of expensive bombs, he flashes a radio signal.

The path of the plane is caught on a lens in the roof of the portable box. When the operator of the camera obscura equipment receives the radio signal he fixes the plane's position on the lens. With a little calculation, making allowances for the speed and height of the plane, hits or misses are scored.

The third shortcut is used before the bombardier takes to the air. He is seated near the ceiling in a specially constructed room. Below him is a "miniature range" across which a strip of terrain on which are painted bridges, railroads, farm houses, airdomes, highways, cities and ammunition dumps, moves. The order to bomb one of these targets is flashed to the bombardier. As the object moves into line on his bomb sight, the bombardier pulls the handle which operates a signal to the scorer.
